Ickes Urges Coal Price Boost Higher Than OPA's

Appeals to Vinson To Authorize Higher Charge Than Suggested by Agency

By Ben W. Gilbert

A new coal controversy flared yesterday—this time on the price front—with Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes appealing to Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson to authorize higher coal prices than those suggested by the Office of Price Administration.

Ickes contended, it was learned, that a schedule of coal price increases submitted to Vinson by OPA was insufficient to meet the increased costs occasioned by the wage agreement which Ickes signed with United Mine Worker President John L. Lewis.

Crux of the dispute appeared to be the amount of additional coal production which the new agreement will provide. The pact purports to increase underground work time by an hour a day, to provide an eight-hour workday, excluding travel time.

Matter of Statistics

On the basis of an estimate by Ickes that 20 million extra tons of soft coal a year would be produced by additional 15 minutes' work each day, WLB has assumed that the new agreement will provide 80 million tons more of coal a year, an increase of more than 14 per cent.

OPA in suggesting a price boost averaging 15 cents a ton for soft coal allowed for possible fatigue because of longer working hours and estimated that the increase in production would be about 11 per cent, or about 60 million tons extra. Ickes was said to have advised Vinson that he expects an increase of only 7 or 8 per cent—in the neighborhood of 40 million tons additional, or half the amount assumed by WLB when it approved the pact.

A decision by Vinson is expected shortly.

Other Developments

Other developments in the many-sided coal picture included:

1. The United Mine Workers' Journal in a three-page editorial bitterly denouncing the War Labor Board, suggested that its four public members resign to permit the board to be reconstructed "free from Administration political domination, free to judiciously determine the wage issues presented to them."

2. The UMW Journal, recalling that miners do not work without a contract, hailed the Ickes-Lewis pact as a partial victory, significantly added that it did not represent "full attainment," but "paves the way for an ultimate victory."

3. Ickes warned the country's coal operators that he was not prepared to restore their mines to private ownership until a "firm" wage agreement is signed by the operators and the United Mine

Senate Committee Votes to Probe Liquor Shortage

A full-scale investigation of the present hard-liquor shortage was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday and by nightfall Chairman Van Nuys had named a subcommittee to conduct hearings, beginning probably early next week.

Van Nuys said "there is enough liquor in this country to last five years" but that it is being held off the market for higher prices. He said legitimate retailers were not responsible, and he planned to invite some of the Washington retailers to the hearing to "tell their story."

The investigation resolution was introduced by Senator Scrugham (Democrat) of Nevada.

By E. V. W. Jones

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 15 (AP).—Alfred de Marigny announced today that he would remarry his wife, the former Nancy Oakes, but the couple failed to appear at the Francis Xavier Catholic Church, where a priest waited to perform the ceremony.

"There will be no wedding today," announced the Rev. Father Bonaventure after talking with De Marigny by telephone more than an hour after the time set for the wedding. "He said he is ill."

But friends of his wife indicated that she was taken by surprise by the marriage plans and wanted more time to think over the idea.

The handsome De Marigny, acquitted last week of the murder of Nancy's father, Sir Harry Oakes, made his announcement while he was discussing an official order inviting him to get out of the Bahmaas. The jury which freed him recommended deportation.

His bosom friend, the Marquis Georges de Visdelou, also was named in the deportation action taken by the governor in council at a special meeting Saturday.

De Marigny said the archbishop in charge of this diocese had approved the ceremony. "We were not married in a church before," he said.

Father Bonaventure, provicar apostolic of the church, said the scheduled ceremony was a "validation of marriage" rather than remarriage.

He remarked that the twice-divorced de Marigny had not married his first and second wives in a church, either.

He had waited from 2 p. m., the hour set by De Marigny, until after 3 o'clock, before he asked an explanation by telephone, then announced:

"There will be no wedding today. De Marigny said he is ill."

Then, with a shrug of the shoulders:

"It takes two to make a wedding. I only perform the ceremony."

He explained the scheduled cere-

Father Draft Legislation To Be Revived

May Urges Final Decision to End Board's Confusion

By Robert C. Albright

House and Senate Military Committee leaders yesterday moved to revive stalemated fathers' draft legislation, which recently bogged down in conference after passing House and Senate in different forms.

Announcing another conference on the legislation today, House Military Committee Chairman Andrew J. May told newsmen: "We ought to pass it or kill it. Indecision by Congress only adds to the confusion."

The conflicting bills revising draft law procedure came to life after reports reached the Capitol that draft calls were lagging behind quotas because local boards were awaiting the final congressional word. May said he had not heard the report, but thought further legislative delay might have that effect.

As finally passed by both Houses, neither bill stops inductions of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, but both tend to speed up drafting of all other categories before fathers are touched.

Local boards already have scraped the bottom on other categories, and some fathers were being called this month in virtually every State. As a practical matter, the nonfather categories will never be entirely exhausted, since new groups become available every month, from job replacements and youths turning 18.

Fathers draft conferees deadlocked when they first met two weeks ago on provisions granting Selective Service boards of appeal in any area where a registrant works the right to pass on local board deferments, with final say vested in the Selective Service director.

Another impasse may develop on House bill provisions abolishing Manpower Director Paul V. McNutt's "work or fight" nondeferable lists by preventing calling up of men by occupational groups. The two bills are in agreement on setting up of a special medical commission to review armed forces physical standards, with the object of inducting some 4-F's for limited service ahead of fathers.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 15 (AP).—Charlie Weems, 31-year-old Negro, one of the principals in Alabama's "Scottsboro case" trials of several years ago, will be paroled Thursday.

President Asks Aid of U. S. in Rehabilitation

Message to Congress Seeks Appropriation To Be Divided Later

President Roosevelt called yesterday for American help in the relief of victims of war abroad "as a matter of military necessity as well as of humanity."

He asked that Congress authorize appropriations to help finance the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration—leaving specific sums to be named later—and Chairman Bloom (Democrat) of New York of the House Foreign Affairs Committee promptly introduced such a resolution.

Under it, from time to time the President would be given "such sums as the Congress may determine to be appropriate" for this country's share of the relief agency's work. He would submit quarterly reports on what was done with the money.

Would Shorten War

Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to Congress, laid great stress on practical advantages to be gained by strengthening the peoples in liberated lands.

"The length of the war may be materially shortened," he said, "if, as we free each occupied area, the people are enlisted in support of the United Nations' armies."

He cited the cases of Frenchmen and Italians rallying to the fight against the Axis and said "millions more are waiting for the moment when they, too, can strike a blow against the enemy. They do not want charity. They seek the strength to fight, and to do their part in securing the peace."

"The Axis leaders," the President related, "have boasted that as they withdraw they will leave only devastation—what they have not stolen they will destroy. As our American soldiers fight their way up the Italian boot they are discovering at first hand that the barbarism of the Nazis is equal to their boasts. Their only rivals in this respect are the Japanese."

He said it is hoped that "a small fraction of the national income" of the contributing member nations of the UNRRA will be sufficient to meet the purpose, which he summed up thus:

"To help the liberated peoples to help themselves, so that they may have the strength to undertake the task of rebuilding their destroyed homes, their ruined factories and their plundered farms."

Stabilization Under Fire

By Christine Sadler

A vociferous three-way attack on OPA and other Government agencies concerned with the stabilization of prices on food was under way in Congress yesterday but a defense of the agency came from the congressional committee for protection of the consumer.

The attack was marked by these activities:

1. In a sharply worded report calling for immediate "remedial action," a House committee headed by Representative Howard Smith (Democrat) of Virginia, declared OPA issued 3196 regulations, amendments, and orders—many of them "illegal, absurd, useless and conflicting"—and had set up an extra judicial procedure that jeopardizes the country's system of civil liberties.

2. The Senate Agriculture Committee starting an investigation into "the whole farm industry," heard Joe C. Montague, general counsel for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, call food subsidies a "form of bribery and blackmail" perpetrated by enemies of the American way of life.

3. On the House floor, Representative Curtis (Republican) of Nebraska, termed OPA claims that it is holding prices down " a pious fraud," while Representative Phillips (Republican) of California, declared the citrus fruit pricing program being formulated by the Office of Economic Stabilization is giving the middleman more than he received in normal times and "much more than he wants in war time."

Demonstrating his thesis that the citrus prices would be unfair to growers, Phillips held up two apples—one obviously twice as large as the others—and declared "OPA has put the same price on both of these and intends to do the same with citrus."

OPA's comeback to all the outpouring against it was not immediately forthcoming, but officials did say apples were priced by the pound and not individually, and pointed out Chester Bowles, the new administrator, has been working to simplify OPA regulations.

The defense of OPA by the congressional Committee for the Protection of the Consumer came when Representatives Scanlon (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, and McMurray (Democrat) of Wisconsin, chairman and secretary of that group, issued a statement attacking the Smith committee findings as "based upon questionable and in many instances seriously biased interpretations of the statutory and constitutional powers of the OPA."

Coupled with the accusations raised by Montague before the Senate committee was the prediction by another livestock spokesman—

Nazi Garrison Cut Off at Gomel, Guns Pound Last Escape Route; Yanks Rain Bombs On Sofia

Key Railroad Yards Smashed In First Direct Blow at Bulgaria

By Edward Kennedy

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 15 (AP).—Two waves of American medium bombers, escorted by fighters, smashed railway yards in the heart of Sofia, Bulgaria, yesterday in what an official Allied announcement termed the "successful opening of the Balkan offensive."

(Dispatches from Berne published in London papers Tuesday morning said waves of American bombers had "totally destroyed" an important German-operated munitions works at Luino Creva in northern Italy in a massive midday raid on Monday. The explosions could be heard in Switzerland, according to these dispatches.)

First Blow at Bulgaria

Official reports of the assault on Sofia—the first direct blow at Bulgaria since that country declared war on the United States, December 13, 1941—described the bombing as "extremely accurate," with the Mitchels laying thousands of pounds of explosives squarely on locomotive repair shops, car assembly shops, a main line depot and acres of trackage.

(The Turkish Anatolian agency broadcast a dispatch from its Sofia correspondent which said the attack had been carried out by 130 planes which dropped approximately 200 bombs, some of which were fused for delayed action and were still exploding today

(The dispatch added that the raid lasted an hour and 45 minutes and "some direct hits were scored," causing fairly high casualties. The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said some sections of Sofia were without electricity today as a result of the bombing.)

The Italy-based bombers and their Lightning escorts shot down 9 of approximately 24 Nazi fighters that engaged them in a fierce battle over the target. The raid on the Bulgarian capital came as the Germans were reported using all available rail routes to rush men and supplies south for the fighting in the Dodecanese Islands.

Link Other Balkan Lines

"Through this immensely important rail center, German supplies are transported to Greece and down into the islands of the Aegean and also to the western Balkans," an Allied announcement said.

"The Sofia railway yards link up with rail routes through Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria, and congestion at Sofia would have the effect of dislocating traffic over the whole Balkan rail system."

(The Germans, evidently stung by the midday attack, broadcast a threat of dire reprisals upon Britain for what they called a "naked and undisguised terror raid" on Sofia, in which many persons were reported killed.)

The blow at Sofia, entailing a round trip of some 700 miles, followed by only a few hours a "blockbuster" assault by RAF Wellington bombers from this theater on a railway bridge between the resort

SALUTE TO THE HEROES—Rockets lit the cold night, aquivver with the boom of guns saluting the Russian army, when Moscow celebrated the victory of Zhitomir yesterday

Fall of Korosten Deemed Imminent; Russians 35 Miles From Old Poland

By Judson O'Quinn

London (Tuesday), Nov. 16 (AP). The Red army isolated the big German garrison at Gomel in White Russia yesterday, sent an armored spearhead to within striking distance of the prewar Polish border, and converged on the northern Ukraine rail bastion of Korosten, whose fall is expected momentarily.

Berlin said nearly 500,000 Russians had punched out initial gains near Krivoi Rog, in the Dnieper bend, in an effort to break through to the Black Sea and trap enormous German forces. The Nazi high command said a German counterattack had stemmed the Russians, but Moscow remained silent for the second day about this fight, allegedly entering its third day.

Successfully outflanking Gomel, the Russians killed 3,000 Germans to seize 14 villages, including the rail station of Demekhi, 34 miles west of Gomel, and only eight miles west of Rechitsa, said a midnight Moscow broadcast bulletin recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

Last Route Under Fire

This action cut the Gomel-Kalinkovichi railway and highway, leaving the Germans only one perilous avenue of escape by railway, from Gomel, the line running northwest to Zhlobin. But that line already is under artillery fire by Russian troops drawn up north and south of Gomel.

In addition to killing 3000 Germans in this fateful blow north of the Pripet Marshes, the Russians said their troops destroyed 40 enemy tanks, captured 27 more "in good working order," and smashed German reserves hurled against them, and captured 39 guns, 477 trucks, 10 ammunition and oil dumps, and other booty.

35 Miles From Old Poland

Gomel itself appeared to be on the verge of falling, Moscow dispatches said late last night, as the Russians sought to eliminate any major German counterattack in White Russia on the flank of the big offensive westward through the Ukraine.

General Nikolai Vatutin's forces already were within 35 miles of the old Polish border with the seizure of Baranovka, which is 20 miles south of Novograd Volinsk, and only 30 miles northeast of the rail junction of Shepetovka. This col-

Navy Bombers Rip Another Jap Cruiser

BULLETIN

Honolulu, Nov. 15 (INS).—An official announcement revealed today that Liberator bombers of the United States Seventh Air Force have carried out two attacks on Betio Island and the Tarawa Atoll in the Gilbert group. They also attacked Millo Island in the Marshall group.

There was no interception by Japanese planes on any of the three raids and the Americans suffered no losses or casualties. Heavy antiaircraft fire was encountered, however.

By Murlin Spencer

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters (Tuesday), Nov. 16 (AP).—A Japanese cruiser—latest in a series of cruisers to be smashed by Allied planes—has been directly hit by Catalinas off Rabaul, New Britain.

Headquarters, in reporting the air action today, also reported a large merchantman bombed by the Catalinas.

The cruiser was hit on the stern by a 1000-pound bomb. A 500-pounder hit the merchantman amidships.

Fifth Army Hurls Back 3 Nazi Attacks

Holds Fast to Position In Mountain Area; Little Change Noted

By Noland Norgaard

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 15 (AP).—American troops in the mountains near Mignano have hurled back three sharp counterattacks by refreshed Nazi troops making determined stabs to wipe out the Allied threat to their "winter line" in Italy, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

Generally, there was little change aground in Italy yesterday.

The Nazi assaults against Americans in the heights about Mignano were thrown in by a regiment of the 29th Armored Grenadier Division, recalled into battle after resting behind the lines.

Three times the crack enemy unit charged the slopes, and three times it was driven back by searing American rifle, machine-gun and artillery fire that left many dead among the rocks and crags. Prisoners were taken.

Otherwise the rainy, cold day was marked only by artillery duels and patrol activity. Near the center of the front, Eighth Army troops advanced northward of Rionero to occupy some high ground. Both the Allies and Germans appeared to be bringing up reserves and generally getting set for a major battle.

The German controlled Paris radio reported that the American Fifth Army launched a heavy new attack last night on German positions in front of Cassino, on the main road to Rome.

(A Swiss border dispatch today said Allied bombers were making a violent daylight assault on a northern Italian city, apparently the railroad center of Luino, 24 miles

Norfolk Rocked By Yorktown, Va., Mine Depot Blast

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 16 (Tuesday) (INS).—An explosion which the Navy and Virginia State police said was at the Yorktown (Va.) Naval Mine Depot, rocked the lower Virginia peninsula and Hampton Roads at 12:30 a. m. today.

Windows were broken in Norfolk and Portsmouth, which are at least 20 miles by air line from the depot on the York River. Citizens of Norfolk were shaken in their beds by the rumbling explosions, which appeared to continue for eight to ten seconds.

The Fifth Naval District Public Relations office said a first report, the explosion had occurred at the Norfolk Naval Air Station, arose from a false fire alarm at the station a few seconds after the blast.

Officers at the depot confirmed that the explosion had been there, but declined to give newsmen any report on casualties, if any, and on property damage.

Regensburg Raider Describes Debris, Bodies Sailing in Air

Herewith is a spine-tingling account of the August 17 Flying Fortress raid against the German roller-bearing works at Schweinfurt and the Messerschmitt plant at Regensburg, in what was termed the "greatest daylight aerial battle in history."

Fifty-nine U. S. bombers were lost, but the Nazis paid dearly with 308 fighters shot down.

The story is told by Lieut. Col. Beirne Lay, jr., of Los Angeles, who rode as copilot in the lead plane of one formation.

When our group crossed the coast of Holland at 17,000 feet, I was well situated to watch the proceedings, being copilot in the lead ship of the last element of the high squadron. We were the last and lowest of the seven groups that were visible ahead on a southeast course, forming a long chain in the bright sunlight — too long, it seemed. Wide gaps separated the three combat wings.

Near Woensdrecht, I saw the first flak blossom out, light and inaccurate. A few minutes later, two FW-109s whizzed through the formation ahead of us in a frontal attack, nicking two B-17s in the wings and breaking away beneath us in half-rolls. Smoke immediately trailed from both B-17s, but they held their stations. As the fighters passed us, the guns of our group went into action. I saw pieces fly off the wing of one of the fighters.

The crew sensed trouble. There was something desperate about the way those two fighters came in fast, right out of their climb without any preliminaries. For a few seconds the interphone was busy with admonitions: "Lead 'em more . . . short bursts . . . don't throw rounds away . . . there'll be more along in a minute."

Three minutes later, the gunners reported fighters climbing up from all around the clock, singly and in pairs, both FW-190s and ME-109Gs. A coordinated attack followed. Every gun from every B-17 was firing, criss-crossing our patch of sky with tracers to match the time-fuse cannon shell puffs that squirted from the wings of the Jerry single-seaters. I would estimate that 75 per cent of our fire was inaccurate, falling astern of the target—particularly the fire from [illegible] guns.

Despite Reputed Confession

Youth Freed When Court Bans Evidence Obtained by Grilling

Haywood Wilborn, 17, Negro, was declared innocent by a directed verdict in District Court yesterday despite uncontradicted evidence that he had confessed a housebreaking and attempted rape and had re-enacted the crimes for police.

Justice David A. Pine said he was constrained to direct the not-guilty verdict because of recent United States Supreme Court and Court of Appeals decisions declaring defendants must be arraigned as soon as possible and that evidence obtained before such arraignment is inadmissable. Wilborn was held seven and a half hours before arraignment.

The "inadmissable evidence," said the justice, indicated Wilborn was guilty. He added, "In my judgment the inability to present this case to the jury results in a miscarriage of justice."

This was the second time this year that Wilborn had been brought to trial on a charge of assault with intent to rape. In this trial, the complaining witness, a 25-year-old woman, said her assailant entered her apartment last March and awakened her when he clutched at her neck. She said she screamed and frightened him away.

But she was unable to positively identify Wilborn as her assailant. This identification came from his own confession, which Wilborn admitted signing but denied reading.

In the previous trial, Wilborn was convicted of attempted rape on a Federal Bureau of Investigation stenographer, but the verdict was set aside because of insufficient evidence to convict. Wilborn then

Hull to Report to Congress Thursday on Pact of Moscow

Secretary of State Hull will address a joint meeting of the two Houses of Congress Thursday noon and report on the four-power agreement reached at Moscow.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Kentucky) said the precedent-breaking appearance of the Secretary would be before an informal gathering in the House chamber and not a formal joint session. Prime Minister Winston Churchill spoke at such a meeting several months ago.

Hull is expected to give a detailed account of the Moscow negotiations, which led to a declaration by the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China for cooperation in the prosecution of the war to a victorious finish and produced a pledge to form an international organization to preserve postwar peace.

Barkley said that Hull would not be questioned by members.

Earlier in the day Secretary Hull asked Americans to accept as their nonpolitical foreign policy the charter of international unity laid down in the Moscow pact, a document he termed free from secret commitments.

The people, he said at a press conference in which he made his first public report on the Moscow meeting, must carry forward the program of international cooperation for peace established at the American-British-Russian discussions last month, or they will have no program.

A reporter asked if he believed foreign policy should be taken out of politics, and he replied affirmatively. For a year, the Secretary reported, he has been working to-

Sforza Excluded From Italian Setup

Diplomat Says

Chaos Rules North Italy Under Nazis

On the German-Swiss Frontier, Nov. 15 (AP).—Chaos exists in northern Italy where the Germans have failed in their efforts to conscript Italian men as both soldiers and workers, a foreign diplomat who left there Sunday said today.

At the same time new stories of harsh repressive measures used by the Nazis against increasing sabotage and guerilla resistance came out of France, and from Germany new accounts of Nazi measures to stiffen their hold on the home front were reported.

A Swiss telegraph agency dispatch said four French Partisans had been shot by Nazi authorities in the Toulouse area in retaliation for large-scale terrorizing of collaborationists, of whom 24 were killed in the past ten days.

Youths Grow Beards

The diplomat who just returned from northern Italy said youths were growing beards and using other disguises to make them appear old so they could avoid Nazi military or labor conscription.

He said trains carrying Italians marked for labor in Germany frequently were stopped between stations, the conscripts fleeing to isolated hideouts. Trains often are deserted by trainmen, requiring the Germans to send special expeditions to clear the tracks. The populace fears to travel at night because of constant sabotage.

However, this informant said, German defenses in northern Italy are excellent. Second string troops guard neutral frontiers, but in the south and in the Po Valley crack divisions are stationed.

Germans Not Withdrawing

Current reports that the Germans were withdrawing troops from Italy were discredited. One estimate was that the Germans now have 25 divisions defending all Italy, but this figure, like most concerning precise military details, could not be confirmed.

A new burst of shooting and sabotage caused the authorities to extend to Monza, Sesto and San Giovanni the state of siege ordered in Milan last week.

The Berlin correspondent of the Basel newspaper National Zeitung said the Nazis had widened the powers of the police in Germany and were recruiting more men for the long-dormant SA (Sturm Abteilung) storm troopers, or brown shirts, to strenthen the guard on the home front.

Almost every able-bodied man now is doing some sort of armed service and thousands of businessmen and employes are sleeping in their offices ready to act as civil defense workers in case of air attacks, he added.

Badoglio Asserts Abdication of King Would Bring Strife

By Homer Bigart

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Naples, Nov. 15.—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, asserting that the forced abdication of King Victor Emanuele III would pro oke disorders, has formed a government which excludes Count Carlo Sforza, former Italian foreign minister, and the anti-Fascist leaders who have refused to take any part in the Badoglio regime so long as the King remains on the throne.

Meanwhile, the profound apathy of the Italian masses, which seemingly can be dissipated only by the prompt appearance of some leader capable of arousing the nation, will certainly continue. Moreover, there is no assurance that the King will abdicate even after Allied occupation of Rome, since, according to Badoglio, it is the King who will form the promised Roman government.

Unless Sforza and other anti-Fascist leaders retreat from their vow never to collaborate with Victor Emanuele or Crown Prince Umberto, the projected Roman government can hardly represent liberal elements.

Badoglio characterizes the abdication demand a "radical act" whose consummation must be avoided "in our interest and that of the Allies at all costs." He insists that the issue of King versus a republic must await complete liberation of Italy for a final answer.

Sforza's followers argue that it is only by a radical amputation of the House of Savcy the Italian spirit can revive. Under a new order, they hold, it would be possible to bring about a rebirth of the national will such as occurred in 1918 when Italy rallied from the military disaster at Caporetto to crush the Austrians at Vittorio Veneto.

It is increasingly doubtful. however, that Sforza represents a new order. The old aristocrat is far too moderate for Italian Communists, whose influence will be stronger when the great industrial centers of Milan and Turin have been freed.

Georgia to Close Prison Camp After 8 Escape

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 15 (INS).—As Georgia law enforcement officers sought eight escaped prisoners tonight, officials of the State penal system announced that the camp from which the break was made will be closed immediately.

The break is the third occurring in Georgia within the past three months and the second since the State inaugurated a "cleanup" of its prison system.

(The dispatch said that border reports indicated the town of Sesto Calende, about 20 miles southwest of Como, also was attacked, with hits scored on the magneto factories and air base there.

Rail Line Disrupted

(It was added that the last Allied attack on the vital Brenner Pass between Italy and Germany had destroyed the railroad trackage along a distance of 3 to 5 miles.)

Allied planes swept over Yugoslavia in continued support of patriot forces that are engaging six German divisions there. Spitfires shot up German crews rebuilding installations near Durazzo on the Albanian coast, and in sweeps along the Greek and Albanian coasts blew up a gasoline dump at Kavaji and strafed enemy troops and trucks at Bicak.

British Tell Catroux to End Lebanon Row

By John F. Chester

Cairo, Nov. 15 (AP).—Gen. Georges Catroux, ace trouble-shooter for the Fighting Frenc., arrived in Beirut tonight empowered to make peace with the Lebanese in the name of the French Committee of National Liberation after being bluntly told by the British to settle the dispute quickly.

While the French kept protesting that the situation was exaggerated, the British made it clear that they regarded the flare-up as serious in an area militarily strategic and politically important in view of the Arab situation.

Emile Eddeh, former Lebanese President, was variously reported to have formed a temporary government, but the Arab news agency at Cairo said he had failed in such an attempt.

(A Reuters dispatch from Haifa said the Palestine-Lebanese frontier had been closed to all except military traffic.

(The London press adopted the attitude that Britain had no desire to enter formally into the dispute, but would not hesitate if Catroux did not act immediately. Catroux, who played an important part in bringing Gens. Charles de Gaulle and Henri Giraud together, is highly regarded in London both as an administrator and as a person well acquainted with the Moslem world.)

(Ibn Saud, King of Saudia Arabia and the most powerful of the Arab leaders, sent Prime Minister Churchill a message protesting the French action in Lebanon which, he said, "has created the worst impression on the Arab peoples" and he urged the Prime Minister to use his influence for the release of the persons arrested by the French. Similar messages were reported sent by the Arab leader to President Roosevelt and General de Gaulle.)

Curtis Ryan, controller of the British Ministry of Information in the Middle East, who returned from Beirut, said the situation in Lebanon was "potentially grave" and that a real clash between natives and the French "might come at any time—no one knows." He said casualties in the political controversy already have totaled 140, including 10 or 12 dead.

Richard G. Casey, British Minister of State in the Middle East, explained Britain's position in the dispute to General Catroux today before the latter left for Beirut. Casey conferred yesterday in Beirut with Sir Edward Spears, British Minister to Lebanon and Syria.

Witness Tells of Leros Battle

By Marsland Gander

Leros Island, Nov. 14 (AP) (Delayed).—German parachute troops who landed on this Dodecanese Island's rocky hillsides yesterday were reinforced at dawn today by others who dropped through the furious fire of many machineguns.

The Nazis suffered many casualties.

I saw a Junkers transport hit squarely by Bofors fire and fall into the sea.

German landing craft, creeping into Alinda Bay in the half light of morning, were heavily machine-gunned and bombarded from the overlooking height. The air was filled with the red streamers of tracers. One craft blew up in a great, musaroomed explosion.

The German plan was for the parachute troops to cut the island in half, seizing the waist between Alinda and Gurna Bays.

There have been no further landings by sea-borne enemy troops this morning and the stubbornly-fighting English and Italian defenders are greatly encouraged by the appearance of RAF Beaufighters to drive off enemy fighters and Stukas strafing and dive-bombing our positions.

A report from Cairo said Greek parachute troops had been landed recently on the Aegean island of Samos to reinforce the British garrison, which had held the island since mid-September.

(Dispatches from Cairo Monday said that the situation on Leros had improved slightly within the previous 24 hours and that Italian forces were fighting well alongside their British allies.

(The German hold on the strategic waist has been weakened, according to Cairo reports, and the Germans have suffered substantial losses in dead and wounded. Long-range RAF fighters and bombers continued to come through in support of the defenders.)

Faster Payroll Handling
"Makes" Hours of Office Time

"LOST TIME," said old Ben Franklin, "is never found again." That's why new ways to save time in business and in war production call for quick adoption. He who acts promptly saves more of that most critical of all materials.

First order of business everywhere is now to find and quickly apply all ideas or shortcuts that save precious time—in rifling a gun barrel, packaging a food, or speeding an essential office task.

▲ FOR INSTANCE—this week many offices will produce today's complex payroll records in one-half the time formerly consumed. This despite the new "load" added by the Withholding Tax.

▲ THE REASON—a new payroll plan by Shaw-Walker automatically transfers each figure to the several essential records.

After writing payroll figures just once, every record needed is completed, correct and up-to-date—ready for quarterly reports and government inspection. Rewriting of figures is entirely eliminated.

Entirely eliminated, too, are separate records for War Bonds, Social Security, Withholding Tax, employee insurance, employee hospitalization, union dues and all other ledger records of a similar nature.

Every pay day the statement you give to each employee includes:

(1) A complete record of earnings.

(2) A detailed list of deductions.

(3) A notice telling the worker the exact amount he has on deposit with you toward his next War Bond.

▲ SO SIMPLE is the "KOPI-SPOT" payroll system that any clerk can handle it. It can be adapted to any type of payroll whether you pay by check or in cash—whether you make your entries by typewriter or by hand.

▲ A COMPLETE FOLDER has been prepared, illustrating the "KOPI-SPOT" and explaining its application to various payroll methods. May we send you a copy of it?

ALL MADE AT ONE WRITING: pay checks, employee pay statement, social security and withholding tax record, War Bond Record, ledger record of other deductions, check register and payroll summary.

FOR THE DURATION any old file will do—it's the system itself that counts!

AFTER THE WAR transfer the system intact to any of the following:

A SHAW-WALKER FIRE FILE—the steel file with built-in fire protection. It gives safe-like security, even in severe fires.

OR THE DRAWERS of the Shaw-Walker steel desk. This is the famous new low desk for comfort and hard work.

"FUNDAMENTALS OF THE SCARCITY"

Reprinted from the Nov. 15th Issue of the Beverage Bulletin

So much heat and so little light has been turned upon the shortage of alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia by arguments and discussions during the last two weeks that it seems time that everyone concerned sat down and looked the situation over with calmness.

Everyone is getting into a pet over something which he cannot control. Everyone is developing a particular peeve against someone else. Everyone seems to be finding that everyone else is a villain.

We can't see that we are going to get very far by proceeding along that line.

We don't know that we are going to get very far along any line—if by getting far is meant getting more whiskey of particular brands for the Washington market. That, of course, is what we want to do and what everyone connected with the beverage industry in Washington wants to do and has wanted to do from the moment he went into business.

There is much talk about "black market" and "bootleg" selling. We ought to know. We started it by condemning the few isolated instances which are known to have occurred here.

We condemned those sales in our last issue. We reiterate the condemnation in this and will continue to reiterate it every time such a thing occurs. It is a rotten thing. It must be stamped out. It is unfair to the consumer. It is unfair to the trade. It must go.

BUT, and it is a big "BUT", these sales are not the reason that a consumer can't walk into any store and buy as much as he wants of his favorite brand. They aren't the reason the retail dealer can't call up the wholesaler and buy what he wants for the market. They aren't the reason the wholesaler can't call up his suppliers and have car-loads of merchandise rushed to the city.

These bad market sales—and there has been no indication of any of these in the last month or more—aren't a drop in the sea compared to the real problem.

The real situation is that there just isn't enough whiskey on the market to meet the demands. No one can make any more whiskey—in fact, no one wants to make any more whiskey when the government wants them to make something else.

So it develops that the industry now is engaged in selling off the stocks of whiskey which it possessed when, months and months ago it stopped making more, first voluntarily and then under government order.

The distillers are selling off their stocks. The wholesalers have sold or are selling off the stocks they possessed and they are now able to acquire. The retailers are selling or have sold off the stocks they possessed and are now able to acquire.

The distiller, the wholesaler and the retailer want to stay in business. None of them wants to sell out now and be out of business.

So, from the top down they are selling what they own slowly enough, they think, to keep them in business until the war is over and they can replenish their stocks.

Now it happens that there is coming into Washington under this policy of doing business about fifty or sixty per cent of the volume of whiskey, in principal brands, that formerly came here.

We don't know of any way of telling a distiller that he must sell us all that is wanted for the Washington market. We don't know of any way of telling a wohlesaler that he must sell to a single retailer all that he can buy in order that the single retailer may sell a single or an individual group of consumers all that they want to buy.

We don't know how this can be done in the beverage business any more than it can be done in the meat business, the shoe business, the refrigerator business, the automobile business, or any other.

And the fact that the condition does exist in our business calls for the same forbearance among ourselves, among the public; and among officials that exists among and toward other businesses which are struggling to keep alive in a perilous time.

Certainly this is no time for obscuring the fact, for uttering baseless rumors and for making groundless threats.

Pacific Gets Enough Supply for Big Push

100% of Material Getting Through, Adm. Young Reveals

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—The United States Navy, after overcoming the greatest transportation and handling problems ever presented in any war, now is pouring supplies into the southwest Pacific on a scale large enough to support a major offensive against the Japanese, Read Admiral William Brent Young disclosed today.

The chief of the Navy Bureau of Supplies, who recently completed a 24,000-mile inspection tour, told a press conference that in the last six months virtually 100 per cent of supplies sent were getting through to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

To illustrate the complexity of the supply problem in this global war, he said that so far as supply was concerned "we have 34 fronts" all over the world to which literally millions of different items must be delivered.

Due to increased mechanization, many things are needed in this war that were not even heard of in the first world conflict.

"For example, there actually are 800,000 different spare parts needed by all types of Diesel engines now in use by our forces."

Admiral Young praised highly Australian and New Zealand reverse lend-lease cooperation which he said was "absolutely 100 per cent," and had done much to simplify the staggering supply problem.

In addition to providing port facilities of all kinds, plus labor, they actually have created new industries to meet special American needs, he said, such as plants to bone and freeze beef, to make candy bars, and even built a factory to make sauerkraut, "which they never even had heard of" before.

Roosevelt Assures Filipinos of Liberation

President Roosevelt last night assured the people of the Philippines, on the eighth anniversary of the establishment of the Philippine commonwealth, that the United States is working and fighting "for the day of your liberation" and the time when "the Japanese enemy is finally and totally defeated."

The presidential message was made public in a radio address over NBC by Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy, former governor general of the Philippines.

In a message to Justice Murphy, the President said:

"Today, on this anniversary, and on every day that shall pass until the Japanese enemy is finally and totally defeated, the American people send messages of hope and faith to you, the gallant people of the Philippine commonwealth.

"We work and we fight for the day of your liberation—for the day when your government shall be restored to Manila—when you shall enjoy the true freedom and independence and national dignity which you have so fully earned."

President Manuel L. Quezon, in a message broadcast to the people of the Philippines, said that he had it "on good authority that General MacArthur will soon have the men and materiel he needs for the reconquest of our homeland."

Optimistic

Vandegrift In California On Way Here

San Francisco, Nov. 15 (AP).—Just in from the Solomons, Lieut. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift declared today that Allied landings on Bougainville, where "everything was going well at last reports," were "harder than the original fight on Guadalcanal, but not as hard as the original fight on Tulagi."

The general, who commanded the first Marine Amphibious Corps which landed on Bougainville November 1, told interviewers he turned the command over to Maj.-Gen. Roy Geiger last Tuesday. Vandegrift has been ordered to report to the commandant of the Marine Corps at Washington, D. C. The general, whose home is at Charlottesville, Va., said he did not know what his duties would be.

Asked how long it would take to get to the strategic Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, Vandegrift replied:

"We're getting along all right."

Brewster Plant Seizure Unjustified, Former Head Says

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP).—Belief that the Navy was not justified in taking over the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. plant in 1942 was expressed at a congressional inquiry today by Navy Comdr. G. F. Chapline, former Brewster president.

"It was simply a misunderstanding between the company's board of directors and Navy officials," he testified. "The Navy did not give the Brewster company a chance to show results on its Navy contracts. The Navy was misinformed as to the reason for the company being behind on its production schedule."

The hearing was conducted by Representative R. A. Grant (Republican) of Indiana, a member of a House Naval Affairs subcommittee.

Chapline attributed the lag to a shortage of capable engineering personnel, plus frequent design changes. The witness said Tom de Lorenzo, then head of the local aircraft union in Brewster's Johnsville, Pa., plant, had always met his commitments.

Agencies Adopt Health Program

A five-point health education program for employees of three Government departments was announced by Jesse Jones, Commerce Secretary, yesterday. They are Department of Commerce, Maritime Commission and the Office of Inter-American Affairs.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, and Nelson A. Rockefeller, Inter-American Affairs Coordinator, have joined the plan to supervise health service and render preventative measures for departmental employees, Jones said.

Included in the program are: a public health nursing consultant for advice on nursing problems, expert advice on health and nutrition, X-ray for tuberculosis surveys, psychiatrists and mental hygiene experts, and mental hygiene courses for personnel officers and employee counselors desiring them.

The program will be supervised by Dr. Leon Schwartz of the United States Public Health Service.

gainville's northern tip, dropped 51 tons of bombs and destroyed four Zeros on the ground.

Since a 350-ton bombing attack on Rabaul on October 12 touched off the current operations in the Bougainville-New Britain sector, two cruisers have been sunk and more than 10 damaged by Allied planes at Rabaul.

The latest blows by the Catalina flying boats were scored Saturday night and in the predawn of Sunday.

The cruiser was in a convoy spotted 18 miles northwest of Rabaul and moving toward that base. The 1000-pound bomb penetrated the cruiser's armor and exploded inside. Antiaircraft fire on the ships and enemy fighter planes forced the Catalinas to leave before they could determine if the cruiser sank.

Later the Catalinas saw a second convoy moving away from Rabaul, about 50 miles to its northwest. The planes dropped four 500-pounders, one of which struck the merchantman.

Fighter-escorted Mitchell medium bombers first hit the Buka area, spotting their targets by moonlight and dropping down to treetop height. Later, in daylight, Liberators hit the Bonis airstrip area.

In the same general area, Allied fighter patrols attacked and probably destroyed a barge loaded with Japanese soldiers.

In addition to the enemy's light raid at Empress Augusta, 13 Japanese bombers attempted a daylight attack on Finschhafen, New Guinea, where General MacArthur's troops hold positions near the western tip of New Britain. Today's communique said the planes "dropped 30 bombs harmlessly in the harbor."

Northwest of Australia, Mitchells attacked Japan's Penfoei airdrome on the island of Timor. Their bombs started fires and explosions at night which were visible for 50 miles.

Gloucester To Be Governor Of Australia

London, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Duke of Gloucester, youngest surviving brother of King George, will become Governor-General of Australia next July, it was announced from Buckingham Palace.

The King approved the appointment of his brother to succeed Lord Gowrie, whose term was scheduled to expire January 22, 1944. The term was extended six months, however, when the Duke of Kent, the King's youngest brother who had been nominated to the post, was killed in an airplane crash in August, 1942.

The Duke of Gloucester, whose first child, a son, was born in December, 1941, has been serving as the King's personal aide de camp and until recently as liaison officer to the home force army headquarters.

Tojo Built Up As Greatest Jap War Hero

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Nov. 15 (AP).—Stern-faced Gen. Hideki Tojo, Japan's most active and most publicized premier, has become the empire's outstanding war hero and at least outwardly its unchallenged dictatorial leader.

As a general and war-time premier, Tojo escapes the criticism the Japanese usually level against their commoner rulers. An intensive press campaign is building him up as a symbol of stern devotion to duty and the frugal living which the times demand of all subjects.

Dominates Stern Cabinet

His outward power is tremendous, for he completely dominates a cabinet which rules the country firmly. Other cabinet members, even the namy minister, are of relatively little importance amid the fanfare of the government-inspired propaganda surrounding Tojo.

His picture is constantly featured in the newspapers showing him visiting wounded soldiers and sailors, addressing factory workers, consoling youthful war orphans.

Tojo is never shown smiling. He always wears the same expression—solemn and severe, with outthrust jaw and squared shoulders, accepting homage with condescension and a brief salute.

Newsreels show him marching briskly during reviews so that his aides, some of whom are large physically, have to step lively to keep pace.

Some pictures of the premier conferring with his subordinates give him an expression of hurried impatience. Other shots show a striking similarity to the Emperor.

Japan's war leader has traveled widely in the past two years almost always by air, so that he has become Japan's first Premier to fly while in office.

In addition to numerous trips to all parts of Japan, he has visited Manchukuo, north and south China, Indo-China Thailand, Burma, Singapore, the Netherlands East Indies and Manila.

The Japanese carefully guard his shining car in each city visited, and naturally his coming is never heralded beforehand.

All evidence is that these junkets are not intended primarily for propaganda purposes, but are his direct method of coordinating the war effort.

In his outward personality there are none of the human touches which gossipy Japanese normally expect in public officials—a man's drinking capacity, his ability as a poet, his attitude toward art, or his preference for some geisha girl.

Instead, he is pictured as an abstemious, hard working soldier who in daily life shares the hardships of the front.

Thus as a symbol of the Japanese ideal which the army is trying to spread among the people, Tojo is publicized more than any other officer while alive. Other generals and admirals are given a brief play in the press after some reported victory, but they are soon blacked out. Japan's national heroes in this war, except Tojo, are still men who died in action.

Axis Withdrawal to Bug River Urged by Rumanian Leaders

By Frank Brutto
Associated Press Staff Writer

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 15 (AP).—Influential military leaders at Bucharest have urged the withdrawal of German and satellite troops to the Bug River line for a stronger defense against Soviet armies, private advices from the Rumanian capital said today. Some Rumanians fear Russian invasion of their territory may be only a matter of days.

While these reports through a diplomatic channel came in part by way of Budapest and therefore were subject to cautious appraisal, there was no doubt that extreme nervousness existed in the Rumanian capital. The advices pictured this situation:

The Rumanian Royal Palace has been placed under heavy guard by political police to prevent opposition parties from getting the ear of young King Mihai.

The organized evacuation of Rumanians from Transnistria—the territory across the Dniester, prewar frontier, which Germany allotted to Rumania from her 1941 conquests—has extended to Bessarabia, which Russia seized from Rumania in August, 1940.

From Bessarabia peasants poured into Bucharest, jamming the capital. They came without direction or general plan, individually fleeing in front of the threatened Red army advance.

A series of arrests has been made of those seeking to bring an end to the war, but in many cases opposition political leaders were warned and fled beforehand to the countryside.

One report said Rumanian military leaders had protested to the Germans that unless Axis troops were withdrawn to a more easily defended front, the difficulty in keeping the population in line to continue the war would be almost insurmountable.

towns of Cannes and Monte Carlo on the French Riviera, and a damaging raid by RAF Bostons on port installations and a chemical works at Civitavecchia, northwest of Rome. Pilots returning from the latter raid reported an explosion that could be seen for 40 miles.

In all the Allied day and night air operations, including fighter sweeps over battle areas in Italy and Yugoslavia and fighter-bomber attacks on enemy camps and motor transport, only one plane was reported missing.

According to a story—not guaranteed as to accuracy—going the rounds here, the raid on Sofia carried aerial warfare back to its birthplace.

In the Balkan war of 1912, this story goes, the Bulgarian army sent a primitive plane over a Turkish munitions dump. The pilot first burst a can of gasoline on the dump and then dropped flares to ignite the fuel. That was said to have been the first effective "bombing" in warfare.

Fleet Crippled

Foe May Quit Northern Norway Soon

Stockholm, Nov. 15 (AP).—The crippled condition of the German fleet may force the Nazis to abandon northern Norway as a naval base and even evacuate the far north before the turn of the year, responsible Naval authorities here believe. Some units of the fleet have been withdrawn to the Baltic Sea during the last few months.

Another reason for withdrawing the German fleet from Norway's fjords is the fact that the Allies no longer send convoys to Murmansk. It was to combat this supply line to Russia that the Germans moved some of their heaviest units into the northern waters.

Here is the latest information obtainable here on the Nazi fleet itself:

The 10,000-ton cruiser Admiral Hipper, long laid up in a Baltic port, has been written off for the duration; the Hipper's sister ship, the Prinz Eugen, is reported to have been converted into a training ship; the Gneisenau, a 26,000-ton battleship mauled by the RAF when she made her dash from Brest to the Baltic last year, is reported being used as an antiaircraft training school at the Baltic port of Gdynia; the pocket battleship Luetzow, previously reported to have been sabotaged, is reported here to have been damaged so badly it is uncertain when she will return to action; the 35,000-ton battleship Tirpitz was damaged last September when British midget submarines made a daring attack into her fjord hideaway; and the aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin is reported in a Baltic port, needing months of work to put her into fighting shape.

As a result, the 26,000-ton battleship Scharnhorst and other units which might be still lurking in northern waters may up anchor and sneak for the Baltic.

150 Czechs to Pay Tribute With Blood

Hull to Tell Congress of Moscow Pact

ward a united foreign policy by conferring with leaders of all parties.

Among other points mentioned by Hull in his hour-long and unusually informal meeting with the press:

1. He is confident that the sound view of the American public is for creation of agencies to insure national security and world order under law.

2. The war-and-peace unity declaration of Moscow came about because each country, America, Russia, Britain and China, wants to abandon isolationism for sane international principles.

(He indicated that as one result of his conference with political leaders here, he was able to speak for this country at Moscow with the feeling that the American people were agreed to back up pledges of cooperation in peace as well as in war.)

3. Without letting down on the fullest prosecution of the war, Hull said, the time is here to pay attention to maintaining peace unless we are to run the serious risk of utter confusion at a later stage.

4. The declaration of the Moscow conferees that Italians will have a chance to choose freely their own Fascist-purged government is regarded as a formula for the treatment of all nations still to be liberated from Axis oppression. All countries, he told a questioner who wanted to know about the Baltic states which were absorbed by Russia efore their Nazi occupation, will be allowed to choose their governments at a free plebiscite.

5. The London Council set up at Moscow will deal with questions arising at the termination of hostilities and act as a clearing house for information. General Charles de Gaulle's demand for French representation on the London commission will be taken up by the group itself.

6. The principles of the Atlantic Charter were not compromised at Moscow but upheld by the three powers.

7. A Russian monetary mission is coming to Washington to discuss postwar currency and trade problems. Hull said he knew of no two countries with more common interests and less conflicting interests in the world economic field than the United States and the Soviet Union.

8. The Free Germany Committee in Moscow lost any influence it might have had the moment Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov signed the four-power declaration.

Hull praised Stalin as a remarkable person and marveled at the stamina of the Russian people.

umn also was within 115 miles of the Rumanian border to the south.

Korosten, important junction on the Leningrad-Odessa line, appeared to be doomed as the Ukraine forces seized 40 more towns and villages, including Ksavero, 2 miles to the east; Kaganovich (Khabnoe), 36 miles northeast, and Bazar, 29 miles northeast. Another Russian column already had taken Chepovichi, only 15 miles to the southeast.

Pursuing the enemy falling back on Korosten, 50 miles north of captured Zhitomir, the Russians said their troops killed 800 Germans and wiped out another 500 in the Fastov sector, where the Germans still were counterattacking furiously to protect the approaches to the Rumanian border. Scores of enemy guns, mortars and tanks were wrecked.

Soviet airmen, swinging into the fight near Fastov, 35 miles southwest of Kiev, were said to have destroyed or damaged 19 tanks, 80 trucks and an enemy troop train, while Russian ground forces continued to beat down infantry counterattacks.

Turning south from Zhitomir, some of General Vatutin's cavalry and tank formations threatened the flank of the German army battling near Fastov, 50 miles to the southeast. These troops were reported within 21 miles of Berdichev, another junction on the Leningrad-Odessa line.

Not until today did the Germans acknowledge the fall of Zhitomir, which the Russians seized early Saturday. They said Axis troops had been withdrawn west and northwest of the rail and highway hub.

On the Kerch peninsula, Soviet forces continued to fight for an extension of their bridgeheads north and south of the town of Kerch, the communique said.

The Soviet bulletin still made no mention of the action in the Dnieper bend on an 80-mile east-west line between Krivoi Rog and Zaporozhe, but indicated the ferocity of the fighting along the entire front with an announcement that 114 German tanks were knocked out Sunday.

Berlin today repeated that the Russians were attacking in the Dnieper elbow with "vastly superior forces," in their effort to sweep to the Black Sea and trap hundreds of thousands of Germans in the Axis salient now dangerously exposed with the Red Army plunge

The Germans also told of fresh Red army crossings of the Dnieper on both sides of Cherkasi, between Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk, but said the Russians were hurled back to the opposite bank.

Heavy fighting west of Smolensk on the snow-covered central front also was reported by Berlin's high command, which said waves of attacking Soviet troops had made "local dents" in their drive on Vitebsk and Orsha, but that these dents later "were sealed off."

The Russians who captured Demekhi forced a major breach in German lines south of Rechitsa, where an earlier German broadcast said that an attempt to take Rechitsa itself was beaten off.

U. S. Antisub Craft Transferred to Brazil

Miami, Fla., Nov. 15 (AP).—It took only five minutes today to complete ceremonies attendant to the transfer of a United States antisubmarine craft to the Brazilian navy.

The 173-foot patrol craft was the thirteenth handed over to other countries here under lend-lease terms.

D. C. Airman Killed in Crash In Africa Area

Lieut. Robert B. Smith, jr., a native of Washington, lost his life in a plane crash in the North African theater, the War Department has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Smith of 8 Albermarle st., Westmoreland Hills.

Lieutenant Smith, 24, previously had been reported "missing." The crash of his plane in the Mediterranean was caused by his "heroic efforts to avoid hitting a friendly craft." A veteran of 46 "missions," whose plane had been shot up five times, he had won the Air Medal and three Oak Leaf Clusters.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, told Mrs. Smith in a letter that her hero-son had "left an outstanding record of achievement." Throughout his faithful service as a pilot, General Arnold said, Lieutenant Smith "applied himself to duty and manifested a determination to accomplish all tasks to the best of his ability."

"I hope," General Arnold wrote, "that your grief will be relieved by the memory that your son made the supreme sacrifice for our cause, and I offer my heartfelt sympathy to you and other members of the family."

Mr. and Mrs. Smith (he is assistant to the Commissioner of the Federal Housing Commission) have two other sons in the service—Lieut. Richard B. Smith, 22, stationed at Quantico, and Apprentice Seaman Sherwood Smith, in training at the University of Richmond.

with the suggestion that the financial formula be based on foreign trade figures.

Eurico Penteado, Brazilian delegate, said his nation, largest exporting country in South America with the exception of Argentina, which is not a member of UNRRA, would like to base her contributions on her foreign trade with the areas which would receive relief.

Penteado said Brazil expected to meet her financial contribution to UNRRA largely through coffee, but also through supplies of cereals, sugar, cocoa and cotton.

The Brazilian plan did not appear to be uniformly acceptable here to Latin American delegates. Carlos Davila, Chilean delegate, said a figure based on foreign trade would take too much out of Chile, proportionately, since so many of the companies exporting from Chile were owned by foreign capital.

Penteado's suggestion came after a finance committee meeting in which it appeared that the United States and England would prefer a financial basis predicated on national income. He said it would be simpler to ask a Brazilian contribution from the general population based on foreign trade, since everyone understood they were producing for sale abroad. He said his nation's national income would be too great.

England's position was explained thus: She lives on foreign trade, but because much comes out of one pocket and goes into another, she would be paying a much larger proportion of the entire purse if the basis were set on foreign trade.

A combination formula may be evolved.

pilots lingering behind under dirty yellow parachutes.

A few minutes later we absorbed the first wave of a hailstorm of individual fighter attacks that were to engulf us clear to the target. The ensuing action was so rapid and varied that I cannot give a chronological account of it. The sight was fantastic and surpassed fiction.

It was over Eupen that I looked over my co-pilot's window after a short lull and saw two whole squadrons, 12 ME-109s and 11 FW-190s, climbing parallel to us. Several thousand feet below us were many more fighters, with their noses cocked at maximum climb. Over the interphone came reports of an equal number of enemy aircraft deploying on the other side. For the first time I noticed an ME-110 sitting out of range on our right. He was to stay with us all the way to the target, apparently reporting our position to fresh squadrons waiting for us down the road.

At the sight of all their fighters I had the distinct feeling of being trapped—that the Hun was tipped off, or at least had guessed our destination and was waiting for us. The life expectancy of our group suddenly seemed very short.

Door Sails Past

A shining silver object sailed past over our right wing. I recognized it as a main exit door. Seconds later a dark object came hurtling through the formation, barely missing several props. It was a man, clasping his knees to his head, revolving like a diver in a triple somersault. I didn't see his chute open.

In a split second, a B-17 completely disappeared in a brilliant explosion, from which the only remains were four small balls of fire, the fuel tanks, which were quickly consumed as they fell earthward.

Our airplane was endangered by hunks of debris, Emergency hatches, exit doors, prematurely opened parachutes, bodies and assorted fragments of B-17s and Hun fighters breezed past us in the slip stream.

I watched two fighters explode not far below, disappearing in sheets of orange flame, B-17s dropping out in every stage of distress, from engines to fire control surfaces shot away, friendly and enemy parachutes floating down and, on the green carpet far behind us, numerous funeral pyres of smoke from fallen fighters, marking our trail.

On we flew through the strewn wake of a desperate air battle, where disintegrating aircraft were commonplace and 60 chutes in the air at one time were hardly worth a second look.

Ten minutes, 20 minutes, 30 minutes, and still no letup in the attacks. The fighters queued up like a breadline and let us have it. Each second of time had a cannon shell in it.

After we had been under constant attack for a solid hour, it appeared certain that our group was faced with annihilation. Seven had been shot down, the sky was still mottled with rising fighters and target-time still 35 minutes away. I doubt if a man in the group visualized the possibility of our getting much farther without 100 per cent loss.

I learned firsthand that a man can resign himself to the certainty of death without becoming panicky. Our group firepower was reduced 33 per cent, ammunition was running low. Gunners were becoming exhausted and nerve-tortured from the prolonged strain.

I observed what I believe was an attempt at air-to-air bombing, although I didn't see the bombs dropped. A patch of 75 to 100 gray-white bursts, smaller than flak bursts, appeared simultaneously at our level, off to one side.

Pressure Eases Off

Near the I. P., one hour and a half after the first of at least 200 individual fighter attacks, the pressure eased off. We turned at the I. P. with fourteen B-17s left, two of which were badly crippled. They dropped out ofter bombing the target and headed for Switzerland.

As we turned and headed for the Alps, I got a grim satisfaction out of seeing a column of smoke rising straight up from the M-109 shops, with only one burst over in the town of Regensburg.

The rest of the trip was marked anti-climax. A few more fighters pecked at us on the way to the Alps. A town in the Brenner Pass tossed up a lone burst of futile flak. We circled the air division over Lake Garda long enough to give the cripples a chance to join the family, and we were on our way toward the Mediterranean in a gradual descent.

At dusk, with red lights showing on all of the fuel tanks in my ship, the seven B-17s of the group still in formation circled over Bertoux and landed in the dust. We slept on the hard ground under the wings of our B-17, but the good earth felt softer than a silk pillow.

mony by saying:

"We welcome De Marigny back into the church and his function as a Catholic. We seek to do Christ's work in welcoming back sheep which were lost."

De Maringy went directly to the priest Thursday night after the acquittal verdict was announced. He called himself "a good Catholic" and said his rosary had helped him bear the uncertainties of his trial.

Nancy is a Protestant.

In an interview De Maringy said he hoped to be admitted to the United States.

"I hope the American people, who always are so understanding of people in trouble, will understand this situation," he said. "If the United States doesn't understand, I don't know where we'll go. We are between the devil and the deep blue sea. If we are allowed to go to the United States it will give us time to breathe and feel able to do something."

De Visdelou was shocked by his inclusion in the order. He came to Nassau several years ago as a guest of De Maringy, and remained.

Under Nassau custom, anyone "invited" to leave the colony has a reasonable time to prepare and an opportunity to choose destination.

Anyone who does not accept the "invitation" then may be escorted from the islands and sent to the place of his citizenship. In the case of both De Marigny and De Visdelou, this would be the British Indian Ocean island of Mauritius.

De Marigny and De Visdelou were reported planning to go to Mexico, if arrangements can be made.

The governor in council is the ranking executive group of the colony. Members are the governor, now the Duke of Windsor, colonial officials and ranking private citizens. The duke is in the United States and did not take part in the vote.

Nancy, who was reported depressed by the turn of events, had no definite plans, except that she wants to go to New York for a surgical operation, provided De Marigny can accompany her. She stuck by De Marigny throughout the trial and indicated she would stay at his side now that he is free.

D. C. Education to Be Guarded In Student Employment Plan

Determined to avoid harm to the education of District students and yet use their ability to ease a tight wartime labor situation, Fred Z. Hetzel, area director of the War Manpower Commission, has assured Robert L. Haycock, superintendent of schools, "close cooperation between the USES and the school in matters relating to the selection and placement of student workers," it was learned yesterday.

Hetzel, in a letter to Haycock, "substantially" agreed that "the school should be responsible for placement of part-time student workers" and promised that the United States Employment Service will furnish labor market information to the school's "centralized service."

The Department of Guidance and Placement, Hetzel agreed, "shall be staffed and equipped for these functions." He suggested that "before referring students to employers the schools should check with the Employment Service to determine whether adult workers are available."

Leaving the selection of prospective student workers up to the school authorities, Hetzel asked that "schools shall place them only in accordance with war needs as recommended by the USES." He also pointed out that the plan was confined to part-time student workers.

The Board of Education is on record as favoring an amendment to the District labor laws to permit employment of boys and girls over 16 years of age until 10 p. m. provided their combined working and school day does not exceed nine hours. At present, girls may not work after 7 p. m.

3-Way Attack On OPA Opens In Congress

P. O. Wilson, secretary of the National Livestock Producers Association—that OPA price regulations would create a serious beef shortage next year.

"The subsidy on meat is not reaching the cattle grower," he declared, "and is not a weapon either to increase production or combat inflation."

Hog Situation Called Worse

As bad as the beef cattle situation is, Wilson said, the "situation in the hog markets is worse." This arises, he declared, from the fact pork prices have fallen below the support price of $15.75 per 100 pounds set on hogs by the War Food Administration and "nothing is being done to make up the difference."

"Price control by directive has failed," Wilson said, "and a raid on the Treasury for money with which to pay subsidiaries will not remedy the situation. The consumer may save a few cents now, but will be paying more than that later in taxes that not only must cover the subsidy but the cost of its administration."

Montague declared a recent directive from OES to WFA authorizing the latter agency to allocate the number of cattle that producers could market and the number that slaughterers could slaughter would "require a Gestapo bigger than the standing Army of the United States" to put it into effect.

Cites "Perfection" of 1917

Pushed by Senator Ellender (Democrat) of Louisiana to say what he wanted in the place of price control, Montague replied: "A return to the law of supply and demand."

"I thought you would say that," Ellender declared, asking, "Don't you think that would be hurtful to the war economy?" To this Montague replied he was no economist but "the law of supply and demand worked to perfection in 1917."

The Smith committee report declares OPA makes no effort to protect individuals and businesses from hardships imposed under its regulations, searches houses without writs for evidence to use against "suspected offenders" and under its rationing provisions has assumed the power to "sentence citizens of the United States to starvation" by taking away ration points for long periods of time. In addition to closing up places of business, it said, OPA insists on adding the double stigma of placards which proclaim the "guilt" of the business to the public.

This fashion of displaying "guilt," it declared, is just as bad as the system of branding or mutilating convicts in medieval times "for the purpose of drawing public ridicule and contempt."

New Citrus Price Plan Awaits Developments

Current maximum prices on citrus fruits will remain in effect until a revision of the price regulatioon covering this food has been completed, OPA announced last night.

The maximums were to have been replaced yesterday by a new citrus pricing plan, but the Office of Economic Stabilization has not yet completed its work on the order. The new plan, under fire in Congress, is supposed to call for Government purchase and resale of the crop and a considerable reduction in retail prices.

Workers. He promised to try to be "helpful" on the price question, but proceeded to attack the operators for "stirring up controversy" in the press.

4. Ickes announced his intention to return to their owners all mines in which no work stoppages occurred this month.

5. Ickes denied flatly that he has any thought of trying to nationalize the coal industry.

The price controversy puts Ickes in the same position with respect to coal that he has taken with respect to oil—in support of price increases which the Office of Price Administration has resisted on stabilization grounds. Vinson supported OPA in the oil price fight.

Woolley Appointed Director For OPA in New York Region

Daniel P. Woolley, New York City commissioner of markets, yesterday was appointed regional administrator of the Office of Price Administration for the New York region, which embraces the District of Columbia.

Woolley, 59-year-old former general manager of Standard Brands, Inc., succeeds Sylvan Joseph, who resigned last month. The New York region, one of the largest of OPA's eight, embraces the States of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland and the District.

Woolley led the list of three highest-ranking men certified to OPA by the Civil Service Commission as eligible for the post and was named by Price Administrator Chester Bowles.

More than 76 persons had sought the position on the basis of their training and business experience, it was said.

"The position of administrator of the New York region, with a population of 30 million, is one of the most responsible of any in the Office of Price Administration," Bowles said.

"We are asking Woolley to look over the whole OPA organization in this region and to streamline it from top to bottom so that we can improve the service to the public and to business."

Starting his 40-year business career in St. Louis as a $3 a week stock clerk for the Corticelli Silk Co., Woolley went to Standard Brands in 1908 and rose from a $15 a week employe to vice president and general manager in excess of $50,000 a year. He was named commissioner of markets in 1942.

Two other men certified to the OPA by the Civil Service Commission, OPA announced, were Adolph Radnitzer, vice president and secretary of the Pepsi Cola Co. of Long Island City, N. Y., and Emile A. Mesner, former general manager in Baltimore for Montgomery Ward Co.

pleaded guilty to simple assault and was given a year in prison.

Justice Pine said his reading of the higher court decisions convinced him the seven-and-a-half-hour arrest was too long a period of time before arraignment before a magistrate.

Edward M. Curran, United States attorney, said later that he has several cases which may never come to trial unless the McNabb decision of the Supreme Court in March and other decisions outlawing police grilling are reversed.

The McNabb decision, which involved a man accused of a Federal liquor law violation, reversed a conviction because the defendant, who had no attorney, was kept by police for eight days and a confession extracted from him before he was arraigned.

A Message about Coffee

To the Coffee Trade and Coffee Consumers of America

Dear Friends:

THE NATIONAL COFFEE DEPARTMENT OF BRAZIL is pleased to announce that the new crop of Brazilian coffee has just been harvested. In the opinion of experts, this year's crop is one of the finest, if not the finest, in QUALITY, ever produced in Brazil.

A further reassuring statement from the National Coffee Department of Brazil is to the effect that necessary steps have already been taken to make this new, and finer, crop of coffee immediately available to American Importers in the ports of Santos, Rio de Janeiro, Angra dos Reis, Paranagua and Victoria.

In addition, the utmost is being done to permit buyers to make up their shipments, without delays, of all grades from the new crop.

As a result, Brazil is now in a position not only to supply the increasing demand for fine coffees on the part of the American Consumer, but further, to enable its customers either to increase the percentage of Brazils in their blends, or to maintain a high standard of quality in their hundreds of "Straight Brazil" or "Straight Santos" brands.

Senate Liquor Probe Voted; 'Startling Revelations' Hinted

A full-dress Senate investigation of the current hard liquor shortage yesterday was unanimously voted by the Senate Judiciary committee.

Without waiting for Senate approval of investigation costs, Chairman Frederick Van Nuys last night named a five-man subcommittee to go ahead with the inquiry.

Van Nuys told newsmen he was assured the Senate would foot the $10,000 bill. He charged "a Nation-wide conspiracy by a few people—chiefly some big distillers—to create scarcity, raise prices, and make immense profits."

The Scrugham resolution, approved by the Judiciary committee, does not require Senate action. It authorizes the subcommittee, headed by Van Nuys, to investigate "business practices and operations of the alcoholic industry in all its phases."

To serve with him on the subcommittee, Van Nuys appointed Senators Kilgore of West Virginia and Murdock of Utah (Democrats), and Danaher of Connecticut and Ferguson of Michigan (Republicans).

Senator Scrugham (Democrat) of Nevada, who introduced the resolution only Friday, said he had received a tremendous popular response to his charges that large liquor supplies are either being held for profit or "cut" with neutral spirits to sell without ceiling under new brand names.

Scrugham's allegations were further elaborated yesterday by Senator Van Nuys, who said there was evidence that whisky monopolies "are buying up small wineries for two purposes: To get hold of their inventories and to stop manufacture, so the price will go up.'"

"You may await some very startling revelations as to liquor tax-dodging and hoarding," the Indiana Democrat told reporters.

"There is enough liquor in this country to last for ve years if they don't make another pint. It is being held from wholesalers and retailers under the control of a handful of dealers who are holding it for a higher price. We are going to stop that."

Van Nuys said the mere threat of investigation "already has had a good effect" and predicted more stored liquor will be released for sale as the investigation proceeds. Only two million gallons was withdrawn from bond in September, 1943, compared with 10 million gallons withdrawn in the same month last year, he told the press.

Under present law, the Hoosier Senator said, liquor may be held in bond for eight years without payment of taxes "when it is common knowledge that liquor does not age perceptibly after six years." He suggested it mgiht be a good idea to change the tax laws in this respect, and said his subcommittee will develop this and other legislative recommendations.

Neither Van Nuys nor Scrugham blamed the legitimate retailer, who, the Nevadan said, is "caught in a squeeze." Scrugham said one local retailer had called to thank him for suggesting the inquiry. Van Nuys said most of the wholesalers "are in the same boat with the retailers." He said he would invite some of the Washington dealers before his subcommittee "to tell their story."

Maid Indicted for Larceny

Miss Sylvia Greene, 24, was indicted yesterday by the District Grand Jury on a charge of larceny of $1000 in jewels and personal effects belonging to Mrs. Graciella Sarminto, wife of Col. Gorge Sarminto military attache of the Peruvian Embassy.

Miss Greene was employed as personal maid to Mrs. Sarminto, who resides at 2315 Bancroft pl. nw. Police said she confessed to the thefts.

The grand jury returned 38 indictments before Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher of District Court. The cases were presented by Assistant United States Attorney Sylvan Schwartz.

Frank S. Fowler, 45, no local address, who was said to have fraudulently attempted to get a letter of introduction from Senator Nye (Republican) of North Dakota in order to open up a bank account, was charged with forgery of a check for $2700 and misrepresenting himself as a member of the Army intelligence staff.

James F. Tolan, 51, of Brooklyn, was charged with failing to state that he had a criminal record of grand larceny when he registered under the Alien Registration Act.

Cecil E. Beckner, 31, of Los Angeles, was charged with violating the white slave traffic act in transporting two women from Virginia to the District for immoral purposes.

The other indictments follow:

Manslaughter—Arline Dennis, 34, Negro, of 26 I st. ne.

Cost of Woman's Happiness Stumps Supreme Court

The Supreme Court ruled yesterday that a "reliable prediction" cannot be made concerning the amount of money required for the "happiness" of a woman.

Specifically, the court held that bequests for charity made from a trust fund cannot be deducted, in computing the Federal estate tax, if part of the trust fund could be used by the widow of the man establishing the trust. Involved was the estate of the late Ozro M. Field of Beverly, Mass. Mrs. Field was to receive the net income during her life with the right to any amount from the principal which the trustee thought "wise and proper" for her "happiness." The money was to go to charity at her death.

Justice Rutledge said that the woman's "happiness" is "not a standard fixed in fact as capable of being stated in definite terms of money." He held that factor to raist too big an element of speculation, "notwithstanding the widow's previous mode of life was modest and her own resources substantial."

Lonergan Wins Delay

Man Killed On Highway

A resident of nearby Virginia was killed Sunday night and a 20-year-old employe of the Naval Air Station was seriously injured yesterday, while five persons, injured in weekend traffic accidents were reported still in serious condition. These casualties were in addition to five traffic deaths on Saturday.

Elmer K. Boothe, 48 of Keysville, Va., was killed Sunday when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the highway about 15 miles south of Alexandria, Va. According to Virginia State police, Boothe was walking to a roadside restaurant, after parking his car, when he was struck.

Irma Frances Goliwas, 20, of 3101 Bunker Mill rd., Mount Rainier, Md., was admitted to Casualty Hospital yesterday suffering from a fractured skull incurred when she was struck by a hit-and-run automobile at 18th st. and Bunker Hill rd. ne.

The condition of Miss Marjorie Jacob, 23, of 225 Maple ave., Takoma Park, Md., who was taken to Emergency Hospital Saturday after the car in which she was a passenger collided with a fire engine, was reported as critical. Thre other persons, injured in the same accident, were reported still in serious condition. They are: Miss Nell Lord of 3421 14th st. nw., Sergt. Wilbur Carmalt of 1549 35th st. nw., and Pvt. Francis Marcey of 4316 N. Fairfax dr,. Arlington, Va.

Miss Peggy Scott, 116 N. St. Asaph st., Alexandria, Va., injured in a two-car collision at Bladensburg, rd., and Montana ave. ne. Saturday, was said to be in only fair condition at Casualty Hospital.

Suffrage to Be Discussed

Wilbur S. Finch will talk on "Local Suffrage" at a meeting to be held in Petworth Library, under auspices of the Petworth Citizens Association, at 8 o'clock tonight. A turkey will be given as a door prize.

Tuition Case Appeal Set

A petition for declaratory relief in United States District Court, joined with one for interpretation of the District School Act, excluding nonresident students who fail to pay tuition costs, was planned in behalf of Mrs. Paul Schneller, and indirectly, for parents of 12 other dismissed students, by Warren E. Magee, attorney, last night.

If his joint petitions fail, an appeal will be taken to the District Court of Appeals, Magee said, adding that "the law must be interpreted by the courts, since it never has been adjudicated.

Magee's retention by Mrs. Schneller came as Senator Wallgren (Democrat) of Washington addressed a request to the United States Attorney General for an opinion on the legality of dropping the children from the school rolls.

Mrs. Schneller's 13-year-old son is back at a junior high school, after she had paid out $37 to carry him through until November 22.

Full House Greets Final Ballet Show

By Ray C. B. Brown

National Symphony Orchestra collaborates with Ballet Theater on Monday night in Constitution Hall. Program: Slavonika (Choreography by Vania Psota; music by Dvorak), Pas de Deux from Shchelkunchik (Choreography by Marius Petipa; music by Chaikovski), Three Virgins and a Devil (Choreography by Agnes de Mille; music by Respighi), Mademoiselle Angot (Choreography by Leonid Miassin; music by Charles Lecocq). Conductor: Mois Zlatin.

Before a third sold-out house in Constitution Hall last evening, the Ballet Theater closed its brief engagement with the National Symphony Orchestra, leaving an impression of merry entertainment through the medium of mimed dancing. The final program was so arranged as to include all varieties of ballet style from the days of Imperial Russia to the present, and to do this Rosella Hightower and Andre Eglevski danced a pas de deux from Chaikovski's "Shchelkunchik." Otherwise the formal technical feats would have been represented only incidentally in the course of the three modern ballets presented.

The first was Vania Psota's "Slavonika" with music selected from Dvorak's Slavonic dances, which were conducted too flowingly by Mois Zlatin. One missed the characteristic rhythmic breaks and the strong accents, save in one or two instances where they were properly observed. The ballet is a mixture of folk steps, sometimes pure and sometimes modified, with the traditional technique, and the slight thread of story scarcely holds it together. The spectacle was pretty and colorful, but the bright and immaculate costumes made the dancers look like dressed dolls. This item has been one of the least effective in the troupe's repertoire since it was first staged, and it could well be discarded.

Agnes de Mille's "Three Virgins and a Devil" with scenario by Ramon Reed is a clever piece of humorous satire in the medieval vein with finely planned choreography in which there is no waste motion. Jerome Robbins, who is mischievous in every role, was a veritable limb of Satan in the wiles with which he successfully tempted Maria Karnilova, Lucia Chase and Janet Reed to their damnation. The characterizations were excellent and the miming eloquent in gesture. It's a pity that the music was not credited to the composers, who would have delighted in the use made of it. Respigni did nothing but orchestrate a gagliarda by Vincenzo Galilei, a rustic dance by Giovanni Batista Besardo and a bergamasca by Bernardo Gianoncelli, all of whom lived in the 16th and early 17th centuries.

The final ballet, "Mademoiselle Angot," is the latest creation of Leonid Miassin and the choreography differs very little from his "Gaite Parisienne." Based on Charles Lecocq's operetta, "La Fille de Madame Angot," the ballet takes all the logic and character development out of the original plot and leaves only the skeleton of amusing intrigue. Nora Kaye danced the feminine lead, supported by Michael Kidd as the barber lover, Andre Eglevski as the artist suitor and Rosella Hightower as the demi-mondaine. The music, tuneful and bubbling as champagne, may well cause argument as to which was the better writer of French operettas, Offenbach or Lecocq.

An apology is due to Antony Tudor. In my review of the previous performances, the imp of perversity that lurks in typewriters made me spell out Anton Dolin as the choreographer of "Lilac Garden."

4 Reasons Cited For Improved Army Health

Four major reasons why America's present Army is healthier than "any we have ever put in the field" were cited yesterday by Brig. Gen. Frederic W. Rankin, senior surgical consultant, to the District War Finance Committee.

1. An "intelligent" plan of mobilizing and training.

2. The Army's policy of immunization—"the many shots inductees have to submit to."

3. Advanced medical care for the troops at the front lines.

4. Proper use of new therapies, including plasma, sulfa, penicillin, and adequate surgery.

Back from an inspection tour of the world's battlefronts, General Rankin pointed to the "particular difficulties" under the jungle conditions of the Pacific area but asserted that the "malaria problem is being conquered."

"Blood plasma," General Rankin said, "is still the greatest single factor in saving the lives of our boys." He added that the mortality rate today is only 3.1 per cent, compared with over 7 per cent in the last war.

Speaking of the medical problems of the Eighth Air Force in Great Britain, the general revealed that development of a body armor for airmen was far advanced and promised "considerable added protection for our fliers." He declared that "20 MM. cannon account for half of their casualties."

4 Times as Many "Happy Birthdays"

Before Your Post-War Gutters Give Out!

IT'S GREATER than you think—your share in the billion dollars stolen in America every year by corrosion. The gutters and downspouts on your home, for example—demanding costly upkeep and all-too-frequent replacement . . . And the parade of garbage cans you buy, each a quick victim to rust . . . And your window screens, and wire fence, lawn mower, automobile muffler, tools and many other things . . .

When war ends, this constant raid on your purse can be ended, too! A new miracle of protection—called Corronizing—can give your post-war gutters and screens, and a host of other things, four times as many years of life! Four times as many happy birthdays before corrosion steals the usefulness you've paid for!

New, simple and inexpensive, Corronizing is the result of years of development by Standard Steel Spring Company. Under the most gruelling conditions, Corronizing has proved its amazingly longer and better protection against destructive rust.

Now Corronizing waits only upon Victory to make scores of post-war products serve you better—give you more for your money. For the present, the full facilities of Standard Steel Spring Company are devoted to production of armor plate, bombs and other war materials. Airline Seeks Overseas Expansion

Direct air service from Washington and three other American terminals to points in South America, Europe, Africa and India was proposed yesterday by American Export Airlines, one of the two American companies operating commercial overseas routes.

AEA applications, filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board on the eve of a prehearing conference on Caribbean air routes, ask for an extension of the line's present route from Foynes, Ireland, to Paris, Rome, Athens, Cairo, Basra (on the Persian Gulf), and Karachi and Bombay in India.

The other proposed trunk line would lead from the lines' present stop at Belem, Brazil, to Natal, and branch off to South Africa, on the one hand, and to French West Africa and Rome, on the other hand.

This latter route, J. E. Slater, executive vice president, said yesterday, may well replace a similar route flown before the war by an Italian line.

Slater reiterated the company's previous declaration in support of competition in international flying and denied the assumption that it would lead to chaos.

"The CAB and the President will have to decide on the necessity and qualification of every carrier that wants to fly overseas," he said, "but there is definitely room for several lines."

The prehearing conference will begin today at 10 a. m. at the Departmental Auditorium, Constitution ave. and 14th st. nw.

Historical Group to Meet

Unpublished letters from Dolly Madison to Anthony Morris will be discussed at the 330th meeting of the Columbia Historical Society at the Mayflower Hotel at 8:15 p. m. today. The letters dealing with the Nourse family will be discussed by Mrs. Walter G. Peter.

Preachers Must Be Versatile, Dr. Lee Tells Baptist Meeting

The modern preacher must be versatile, Dr. Robert G. Lee said yesterday at Petworth Baptist Church, 7th and Randolph sts. nw., as the 66th annual session of the D. C. Baptist Convention of Churches began.

Dr. Lee, pastor of Bellevue Baptist Church, Memphis, Tenn., one of the Nation's 10 largest Baptist congregations, addressed a ministers' session on the problems facing clergy today. Dr. Lee's congregation has more than 5000 members.

The complexities of modern life, said Dr. Lee, demand that a minister do more than preach from a pulpit. He must do his utmost to make religion felt in industry, politics, and other fields of endeavor, he said.

Discussing the need of pastors with an evangelistic spirit, Dr. Lee said that "the church that is not evangelistic is not evangelical." He was introduced by the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church and president of the Baptist Ministerial Association.

George Fraser, president of the District of Columbia Convention of Baptist Churches and layman of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, presided last night when Dr. Lee again spoke.

Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, chairman of the program committee, will deliver the convention sermon this morning. The Rev. James P. Rodgers, pastor of Petworth, will give a digest of church letters. Dr. Noble Y. Beall of the Southern Baptist Missionary Board will speak tomorrow morning instead of today as originally scheduled.

Dr. W. L. Darby, president of Washington City Bible Society, and Dr. Luther Wesley Smith, executive secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society, will speak this afternoon.

Robert L. Haycock, new superintendent of District public schools and superintendent of the West Washington Baptist Sunday School, will be tendered a testimonial dinner today at 5:30 p. m. "Young People's Night" will be celebrated today at 8 p. m.

Draft Board Plans To Call Sinatra About Jan. 12 or 14

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP).—If it's any consolation to his feminine fans, Frank Sinatra will still be around in civilian circles for the holidays, but:

Ira W. Caldwell, chairman of Hudson County Draft Board No. 19, said today the singing idol of the distaff side, who was classified 1-A at the beginning of the month, will be called up for induction at Newark "about January 12 or 14."

Sinatra has informed the board, Caldwell said, that he and his wife, Nancy, are expecting their second child.

Police Charge Man With Safebreaking

The first break in a series of recent safe-cracking jobs came yesterday when the police apprehended a 32-year-old former convict, on parole since January, and found they had "a perfect case" against him, they said.

The man, Gordon Albert Schofield, who rooms at 2119 Randolph pl. ne. and is employed at the Fred S. Gichner Iron Works, 1214 24th st. nw., was arraigned before Needham C. Turnage, U. S. Commissioner, yesterday on a charge of housebreaking in connection with a safe theft Saturday at The Melody Inn, 1122 Bladensburg rd. ne. The safe had been jimmied open and $494.70 in cash was taken along with six bottles of whisky valued at $24.

Police said Schofield had let himself be locked up in the night club Saturday at closing time by hiding behind the furnace and had opened the safe after everyone had gone.

According to R. E. L. Smith, executive secretary of the parole board, Schofield had been released January 13 of this year from Lorton, Va., after serving almost five years of a three-to-eight-year sentence on a charge of housebreaking and larceny.

The charge was made against him because of three thefts, police records show. On April 15, 1938, he had stolen jewelry valued at $135 from a Myer Greenbaum. On April 26 of the same year he and a companion had attempted to hold up and rob three men in the Capital Transit Co., at 14th and Decatur sts. nw., according to the records. Two days later he entered Castleberg's jewelry store at 1004 F st. nw. by forcing a window and stole jewelry which he later sold for $500.

On May 2, 1938, Schofield admitted to police that he had gotten over $4000 worth of jewelry from Castleberg's and from a second-hand store on U st. The was indicted by a grand jury May 12 of that year and committed to Lorton the next month.

Schofield's record shows that he was charged with house-breaking in 1934, that he was arrested in California both in 1935 and 1936 and that he was also arrested in Takoma Park, Md., in 1936.

Detectives on the general assignment squad had been looking for Schofield Sunday and arrested him early yesterday at the Gichner Iron Works after he returned from Baltimore, where he spent the previous day.

Organized Citizenry

Particularly in wartime, there is a tendency to overlook the routine activities of organized citizens in promoting the community welfare. If such activities should slacken at a time like the present, it would be understandable. But in Washington there has been no slackening. On the contrary, the recent annual report of the Federation of Citizens Associations shows that that agency and its 67 constituent bodies have been extraordinarily active in many endeavors that have helped this distracted city to meet its wartime obligations.

A federation committee made a painstaking study and report on civilian defense, and virtually all of its recommendations were accepted. Other reports on housing, fuel oil and milk brought the influence of an organized citizenry to bear upon problems of interest to a large percentage of the city's residents. In the legislative sphere the federation strongly supported the District delegate bill and the Sumners-Capper resolution. A committee is now at work on Senator McCarran's and Senator Holman's proposals for local suffrage here. The federation has done very well indeed to expand its interests and activities under the handicaps of wartime. A goodly share of the credit for this achievement must go to its energetic president, Mr. Harry S. Wender. His boundless interest in and devotion to the community welfare led recently to his reelection. So we may expect to see a further awakening of community spirit in the year ahead.

Interdependence

What obstructs full understanding between the British and the American people is the idea of empire. It is with the taunt of imperialism that our noisy anglophobes commonly belabor the British. And it is Britain's discharge of her imperial responsibilities which troubles even those among us who most clearly recognize the need for Anglo-American unity. They find it, somehow, incompatible with democracy. And so it is, to be sure, within their definition.

But there are Britons who hold that this definition is outmoded, that it applies to the past rather than to the present. One of them is the Ambassador to the United States, Lord Halifax, who last week told the Academy of Political Science that "no ghost of George III any longer haunts the Colonial Office, or the India Office." He sees a striking similarity between the expansion of the American people westward across this continent and the expansion of the British people from their small island to other islands and to continents in every quarter of the globe. Others have called the former process "internal imperialism" Like our own pioneers, the British settlers, responding to the force of what was then an unmanifest destiny, carried with them the "concept of man and of what, by God's grace, man's life should be" which had been imbued in them by their own institutions and traditions at home. And out of the common heritage thus implanted there grew the interdependent association known as the British Commonwealth of Nations.

"The British Commonwealth," says Lord Halifax, "resembles a crowd of widely assorted persons, linked together in one society, and all making the same journey. They started on it at different times. Some of them—Britain herself and the Dominions—have already reached the end of the journey that is complete self-government. Others, like India, Burma and Ceylon, have nearly reached it, so nearly that there is only one more difficult stream to cross. Others have not got so far. But they are all moving, and all moving in the same direction." Of British colonial policy, he declares that, though it has made plenty of mistakes, it has been guided, at least during the last half century, by two principles: "The first is the principle of trusteeship; that we are where we are, not for our own profit, but for the good of the governed. The second—perhaps slightly younger in point of time—is the principle of progressive education in the business of self-government." There is nothing in these principles which is incompatible with democracy.

As to the first of them, Americans who recall the doctrine of empire preference or the rubber and tin cartels may be pardoned a certain measure of skepticism. But it is worth remembering that we have grown to our present stature in large part because of the scope of the free market available to us. And it should scarcely surprise us that the British sought a comparable free trade area within the commonwealth. We have not been wholly innocent of cartelism ourselves. Perhaps in the future we can widen our respective markets by merging them and protect one another against monopolies by outlawing them.

Self-Determination

Secretary Hull yesterday sought to dispose of the skepticism about the Moscow pacts which was expressed in a manifesto issued over the weekend by the Catholic bishops. The prelates, while welcoming the Four Power declarations, feel that they do not "dispel the fear that compromises on the ideals of the Atlantic Charter are in prospect." Doubtless the ideal they have in mind is that of self-determination. The Atlantic Charter pledges the signatories to respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live.

There was nothing in the agreements to which Secretary Hull attached his signature that would abridge this pledge. Mr. Hull now adds that neither were there any such agreements reached in private. All that was done in Moscow—and it was an immense advance on the thorny road to world peace—was to outline principles which would serve as a guide in the settlement of specific problems. To those principles there was attached a formula. This was the formula on Italy providing for free elections after liberation under the auspices of an Allied commission, and it is this formula that will be applied in the Baltic and in the Balkans when the shooting is over.

It is gratifying to have Mr. Hull's assurances. Perhaps in his address on Thursday he may go further and elaborate our position on frontier settlements in Eastern Europe. There are those who feel that the only way to redeem the Atlantic Charter is to restore the status quo ante. But would that necessarily be in accord with either the letter or the spirit of the Atlantic Charter? In these war years the world has been undergoing profound change. If, for instance, there were a poll tomorrow in Bulgaria, the Bulgarians might opt to join the Soviet Union. Such an event would be entirely permissible within the meaning of the Atlantic Charter. This is only one example of the permutations which under cover of war have been going on in Europe. All these borderland countries are awaiting the day when they will be liberated from the Nazi yoke. If the liberation is effected by the Russians, they might wish to cast in their lot with the Russians, and he would be rash indeed who from this side of the ocean would seek to prevent any such development. Their decision, of course, must be uninfluenced, and it should be the purpose of American diplomacy to safeguard such freedom of choice

In the larger sphere Russia intends to contribute to the pacification of Europe. This is a prospect which both this country and Great Britain must welcome profoundly as destined to uphold the common interest. Without Russia as one of the pacifying powers, chaos would follow strife in Europe, and the last state would be worse than the first. More than that, peace can be secured in Europe only by the neutralization of the borderlands in the realm of power politics. But the right of every people to lead its own life is of the very essence of what we are fighting for. This is what Mr. Hull reaffirmed yesterday.

Conversion Problems

The suggestion that Bernard M. Baruch should head a separate Office of War Demobilization is a logical outgrowth of his appointment as adviser on demobilization to the Director of the Office of War Mobilization, James F. Byrnes. Mr. Baruch has a heap of useful data to work on. For instance, in a report covering less than 15 pages the Truman Committee has presented an admirably concise but comprehensive survey of the problems that will arise from postwar conversion of war industries to peacetime uses. The primary purpose of the outline is to draw attention to these problems preliminary to holding public hearings. The report contains a liberal sprinkling of opinions on various controversial issues, but most of the recommendations are tentative, except insofar as they relate to legislative powers and obligations of Congress. For instance, the committee states emphatically that the methods by which contracts are to be terminated should be determined by Congress. It refers with patent disapproval to public statements of Army officials to the effect that the War Department will not release soldiers from the Army until it believes industry is ready to provide them with jobs and will continue its war contracts until industry is ready to make a transition. Such suggestions, says the committee, "are beyond the authority of the War Department." That being the case, Congress is under obligation to take action now to avert the economic disorders that would follow demobilization without advance preparation for the event.

Termination of contracts—a subject that currently holds the business limelight—is only one of many difficult postwar problems calling for solution. The disposal of inventories and the sale of surplus materials owned by the Government likewise are of immense importance. As a means of reducing inventories the report states that consideration should be given to disallowing any payment for materials in excess of the amount permitted under the controlled materials plan unless the excess accumulation had been authorized. Even with inventories reduced, the liquidation of surplus materials will call for extremely careful management to prevent disorganization of markets with consequent serious effects to businesses. The prompt removal of Government property from private plants is also essential to speed conversion. Last, but far from least, the financing problems connected with postwar conversion are defined.

The committee is of the opinion that the additional funds obtainable from private investors and loans from private banks will not supply all of the needed working capital for converted industries, if, as hoped, postwar civilian business should prove to be much greater than that of the prewar years. It concludes, therefore, that some Government agency will have to provide working capital to worthy concerns that otherwise would not be able to obtain it. However, the supplementary character of such aid is strongly emphasized. Every effort should be made, the committee says, to induce corporations to secure their working capital from the investing public instead of by loans from a Government agency.

These admonitions indicate that the committee is fully aware of the fact that the fate of private industry may depend upon the manner in which conversion plans are executed. Government aid will undoubtedly be essential to assure postwar survival of some private concerns. Financial aid given at the right time in the right amounts, under conditions favorable to effective use of funds, is capable of strengthening private industry. Aid given indiscriminately and without safeguards against dissipation of Government funds would lead to an increasing amount of Government control of business and might result in widespread nationalization of industry.

The disposition to be made of the plants and facilities erected by the Government at a cost of billions of dollars presents another challenge to postwar conversion planners. The Truman Committee sums up the essentials of a disposal program that would, on the one hand, protect the Government against unnecessary sacrifices, and, on the other hand, protect private industry against unfair competition from plants sold at bargain rates, or operated by the Government itself. The Government must, it says, "be prepared to lease or sell these facilities in accordance with a realistic understanding of their true value to those interested in acquiring them."

The report concludes with a warning to labor that excessive demands that may be absorbed in wartime would simply result in many industries with limited profit margins closing their doors in peacetime. "Labor, like business, must recognize and fulfill its obligations to society. The alternative is Government regulation." In a final paragraph the report calls for immediate consideration of public works programs by State and local Governments. But it adds that these projects are of secondary importance when compared to those of private industry. The public projects would only provide "cushion jobs" until private industry is able to get into production.

Even if one does not agree with all the opinions or provisional suggestions scattered throughout the report, an open-minded reader will doubtless conclude that the committee has done an excellent job of preliminary surveying. Furthermore, it has shown a keen awareness not only of the specific nature of the conversion problems lying ahead but an understanding of the conditions essential to postwar preservation of our system of private enterprise. The report should be of great value to Mr. Baruch.

Liquor Probe

The Senate Judiciary Committee has now indorsed Senator Scrugham's resolution calling for an investigation of the liquor industry "in all its phases" as a basis for remedial legislation. Action of some sort is imperative to arrest the growth of lawlessness that is alarming the industry itself as well as Federal and State officials charged with enforcement of liquor-tax laws and regulations. The rapid spread of moonshining, highjacking and bootlegging of tax-paid liquors, combined with widespread violations of price ceilings, was to be expected in view of the shortages created by the wartime ban on manufacture of whisky, and the high rates of taxation. If Congress approves the rise in liquor excise taxes recommended by the Ways and Means Committee, the enforcement problem will become even more difficult than at present.

From their very nature the liquor distributive trades attract certain undesirable elements that are difficult to control even in normal times. Under the abnormal conditions of war, these irresponsible groups within the industry are certain to give trouble to enforcement officials. The projected investigation would be of little use, however, if it were to be made the basis for repressive legislation that would simply drive underground traffic that is now carried on in the open. On the other hand, an inquiry undertaken for the purpose of ameliorating conditions that encourage bootlegging and moonshining would be an invaluable contribution to the cause of law and order.

An investigating committee might, for instance, consider the case for limited resumption of the manufacture of whisky. Despite the heavy alcohol needs of the Government, a way might be found to divert some alcohol to beverage use if it were shown that public morale was being undermined and the health of the public jeopardized by moonshining and bootlegging activities.

PURSUIT PLANE

How swift and straight this arrowing of flight
From earth's cramped surface through untrammelled air.
How wide and clean the rapturous delight
Of curve and spiral, every line aware
That all the blue immensity of space
Is but a back-drop for this regal grace.

The sound of rocket-flight is fiercely flung
Far down the empty avenues of sky . . .
Then, frail as breath, design is briefly swung
To tantalize the earth-bound watching eye.
In practice flight the soaring beauty sins,
Prophetic notes of victory in its wings.

Finland's Last Mile

By Joachim Joesten

Must Make Peace

FINLAND IS rapidly nearing the end of her tether. Although the Finnish army has suffered no major defeat in this war—there has been almost no fighting on the Karelian front for more than a year—Finland's political, economic and diplomatic plight now is such that she cannot possibly hold out much longer. Even the most nationalistic and anti-Soviet Finnish leaders, like Field Marshal Mannerheim, cannot fail to understand that Germany has lost the war and that Finland has nothing to win, but all to lose, by continuing the war at Hitler's side.

In the last few days this belated realization appears to have made considerable headway in Helsinki. On November 5 the Stockholm daily Social-Demokraten, usually well-informed organ of the dominant Swedish labor party and of the Premier, Per Albin Hansson, roundly declared that Finland's fate would be "settled within a few days." In this connection the word "settle" can mean only one thing: that Finland will sue for a separate peace.

The Swedish paper added the information that Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi had been selected as head of a three-man peace delegation now standing by for a signal to leave for Moscow. If this report is correct—and there is little doubt that it is—it will be the fourth time in 25 years that Dr. Paasikivi, 73-year-old ace diplomat, is going to talk peace to the Russians.

Indeed, it was Paasikivi who, after the last war, secured Finland's existence as a free state by negotiating the Peace of Dorpat (October 14, 1920), by which Russia recognized the independence of the former Grand-Duchy of the Czars. Again in October, 1939, Paasikivi headed the first Finnish mission to Moscow which sought in vain to reach a peaceful settlement of the Kremlin's territorial demands. After the short winter war of 1939—40, in which Finland fought alone against her powerful neighbor, Paasikivi again led a peace delegation to Moscow and signed there the peace treaty of March 12, 1940. A few weeks later, he was appointed Finnish envoy to Russia, where he stayed until the renewed outbreak of hostilities in June, 1941. Since then, he has held the inconspicuous post of chairman of the Finnish tax committee.

Paasikivi belongs to the group of international businessmen and financiers who, paradoxically, have time and again proved that they are outstandingly able to get along well with the anticapitalist Soviets. He is, or has been, managing director of the Kansallis Osake Bank, chairman of the Finnish Bank Association, of the Export Association and of the Central Chamber of Commerce. In addition, he is an old hand at the political and diplomatic game. Even under the Czarist regime he was a member of the Finnish Diet from 1907 to 1913; after the establishment of the Finnish state, he was for a few months in 1918 Prime Minister, and later he became a representative of the Unionist (Conservative) Party in the Senate. He has served as minister plenipotentiary in Stockholm and in Moscow.

In the present circumstances Finland will be lucky indeed if she can trade from Moscow any better terms than unconditional surrender. Under the terms of the Moscow Declaration, Great Britain and Russia are committed to pursue the war against Finland until she lays down her arms "on the basis of unconditional surrender." The United States, which is not at war with Finland, has hitherto been inclined to treat that country more leniently than any other of Hitler's cobelligerents, but it was probably not by chance that President Roosevelt, in his message to Congress last September 17, for the first time officially included Finland among the Nazi "satellites."

That Russia is not exactly in a forgiving mood toward Finland is apparent from Stalin's speech on the twenty-sixth anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution on November 7. He used some of his most caustic humor in speaking of the "participants of the Hitlerite coalition: Finland, Hungary, Rumania and other Hitlerite vassals." Stalin also made in this speech a rather ominous reference to the Finnish Republic which the Red army was going to "liberate" along with the Crimea, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Moldavia and Karelia.

This may not necessarily mean that the Kremlin is planning for another Kuusinen-type of Finnish republic, on the short-lived model of December, 1939, but it almost certainly does mean that the Russians will demand the elimination from the ranks of the Helsinki government of those leaders who in the past have most openly compromised themselves in the German alliance.

One of the Finnish leaders whom the Russians dislike most intensely is Field Marshal Baron Karl Gustav Emil Mannerheim, commander in chief of the Finish army, who has openly proclaimed annexation of Soviet Eastern Karelia.

Retreat In Russia

By Barnet Nover

Climax In The Dnieper Bend?

IN REPORTING developments on the Eastern Front the Germans, for some time, have been making a virtue of necessity. Repeatedly announcement has been made of the loss of towns whose capture the Russians were not to claim for hours or even days.

It is thus of major significance that in a weekend broadcast the Berlin radio stated that 30 Russian rifle divisions and numerous tank formations (possibly 500,000 men in all) have broken through the Dnieper bend defenses in the Zaporozhe sector.

This would seem to be tantamount to an admission by the German high command that the so-called "escape corridor" between Krivoi Rog and the lower Dnieper, which the Wehrmacht has up to now managed to keep open, though at considerable cost, is about to be closed. And viewed in conjunction with developments at Zhitomir, Berdichev and Korosten, it suggests that the Germans are about to undertake a retreat from south Russia which will involve the loss of much of what remains of their once tremendous territorial conquests in the Soviet Union.

UNTIL LAST WEEK the Germans were still in possession of one major north-south railroad in Russia—the line that runs from Leningrad to Odessa.

The possession of this line permitted the Germans a measure of fluidity in their operations on the Eastern Front. In other words men and materiel could be sent with some facility from one sector to another.

WHEN ZHITOMIR fell, however, that line was cut although the movement of German troops and materiel from north to south and from south to north is still possible through the use of roundabout routes west of Zhitomir. But the Wehrmacht's difficulties in this respect will increase enormously if the Red army captures Korosten.

Thus, the Red army is in process of achieving a tremendous strategic objective, namely, the splitting of the German forces on the Eastern Front into two isolated armies.

Nor does this tell the whole story of what is happening in Russia. For while the German forces in the western Ukraine now threaten to be completely cut off from those operating south from Leningrad, the German army in the Crimea is now cut off from the German army in the Dnieper bend.

A STILL further splitting up would occur if the Red army now succeeds in recapturing Krivoi Rog before the Germans manage to escape from that sector.

Whether the German retreat which began in July was and still is orderly, a disputed point, has now become an academic question.

The encirclement by the Red army of a very large German force, as happened at Stalingrad, would of course have constituted a grave blow to the Wehrmacht. So far this has not occurred. The loss by the Germans of Russian territory that is of tremendous economic importance and also serves as a buffer from the Red Army and Hitler's Balkan satellites, particularly Rumania, is no less of a blow to the Nazis.

INDEED, until they get to the Carpathians and behind the Bug River in Poland there are practically no natural barriers which the Germans can use as a winter defense line. But such a retreat would mean the loss by the Nazis of all Russian-held territory in the north, including the Baltic states; it would force a German withdrawal from Finland which, if Swedish reports are to be believed, is, in fact, already under way, and it would bring the Red army into Rumania with all of the tremendous repercussions such a development would have on the Balkan situation.

IT IS NO SECRET that large-scale Anglo-Russian preparations are under way for an assault in the not-too-distant future on the German citadel from the west.

That is why there is no undue alarm in Allied military circles over the slow-paced advance of the American Fifth and the British Eighth Armies in Italy The plan never was to invade Germany through Italy and insofar as the Italian Front has compelled the Reich to divert men and materiel from Russia and has made possible the acquisition by the Allies of such Italian airfields as those at Bari, the Allied invasion of Italy has more than justified itself.

For the time being, in fact, the principal importance of our move into Italy is that it has put us in a position where we can reinforce the indirect but potent pressure on the Balkans from the Russian side by direct pressure through our air power.

Sunday's raid on Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, is a case in point.

Sofia happens to be the nearest satellite capital within range of Allied air power in Italy. But Bucharest and Budapest are also vulnerable.

The raid on Sofia, therefore, is a reminder to Hitler's puppets in the Balkans and the unhappy people they rule that they are now in the front line of the war. This circumstance will not make Hitler's task easier.

Forcing De Gaulle

Let those who blame De Gaulle remember that their own actions are forcing De Gaulle's and the committee's hand. If Britain and the United States refuse to cooperate, then he has no other course but to build up French nationalism; if the United Kingdom and the United States heap scorn upon his head, then he has little choice but to cooperate with his own underground, who must see in Russia the chief opponent of Nazi oppression, and with Russia. Franco-Russian cooperation has always been a stable foreign policy of France, except under such Fascist and extremely rightist foreign ministers as Laval.

De Gaulle cannot be blamed for following what historically has always been a basic element of French foreign policy since the opening of the century. If we cannot mend our ways and admit that in betting on Giraud, we bet on the wrong horse, then I am afraid that our relations between the National Committee will weaken, not to De Gaulle's detriment, but to ours and the democratic cause for which we supposedly are fighting.

CHARLES DE BOISPONT.

Hostile Franco

General Franco has just urged the members of the Spanish Blue Division to join the Nazi army and to continue to fight against our ally, Russia. Franco has also recognized the puppet quisling government set up by the Japanese in the Philippine Islands. Franco has also signed a treaty with the Mussolini government in Italy, the Italian puppets of the Nazis.

Since Franco overcame the forces of the duly elected government of Spain and set up his dictatorship only with the help of men and materials sent to him by Mussolini and Hitler, it is plain that he feels he owes his position to the Nazi-Fascist Axis, and he is continuing to play their game. Clearly his government is an enemy of ours, and we should treat him accordingly by breaking off relations with his government.

Defaulting Congress

On Armistice Day, when Government workers and those in war plants and on farms all over the country worked diligently, Congress took a holiday. When all others in the country are pledged to keep at their jobs without letup for the duration, Congress is free to vote itself adjournment; and individual Congressmen take time off, even during crucial sessions, to relax in the country or to drum up votes for the next election.

With all the furore over absenteeism, Congress is the worst defaulter. For every hard-working Congressman, there are the usual loafers. An inspection of records of attendance in Congress at major debates and during votes on the most important issues shows a greater percentage of absenteeism than at any war plant in the country.

I also suggest that a board of Civil Service Commission members be appointed to supervise Congressmen at work and to file annual efficiency ratings—based on attendance and work records—these ratings to be made public each year. When Congress is not in session, members should be at their desks, sounding out public opinion, studying current problems, putting in the same work as any other public servants.

Unless Congressmen study and vote on all legislation, our parliamentary system is not functioning effectively.

CLEMENS NON PAPA.

Food To Europe

I have read with interest the article of Mr. Walter Lippmann in The Post of November 9, in which he said 1 per cent of our income sent to help Europe would "help herself get back on her feet."

When we consider that the Germans have, during the 3¼ years, taken from the conquered 80 per cent of all their products and converted their factories in making war material, it is readily to be seen that they will need badly all these items. Otherwise it would take years for them to recover.

Some of us who were on foreign service for our Government during the winter of 1940-41 experienced what it meant to be cold and not get enough to eat. You can take my word for it, it is not pleasant.

So why not help Europe to help themselves as soon as they are released from bondage. Their release is not so far off now, so let's get together and do our part at once, so they will have our help and in this way we will sooner get back to our normal lives.

French Committee

By Paul Winkler

Underground Triumph

OBSERVERS HAVE been quick to note that the revamping of the French Committee of National Liberation in Algiers means a strengthening of the De Gaullist position within the committee. It would be a mistake, however, to regard the shift as simply the result of a successful political maneuver on the part of De Gaulle. It should rather be interpreted as a granting of satisfaction to the French underground, which is even keener for the principle which De Gaulle has followed than is De Gaulle himself.

Those who are leaving the committee are doing so for one of two reasons: either because they are not sufficiently representative to occupy their important posts, which they must now yield to men considered better entitled to hold them, or because they bear some taint of collaborationism. The new men who are coming in have been selected because they have the backing of some elements of French resistance. Their entry into the cabinet is a measure of national union—but a union from which all those who have been collaborationists themselves, or who have been tolerant of collaborationism are excluded.

Significant Departure

The most significant departure is that of Gen. Alphonse Georges. As second in command to General Weygand, Georges was third in command of the French military effort before the armistice, Petain being number one. Before Georges took over this post, his name was coupled frequently with those of Weygand and Petain as a desirable triumvirate to run French military effort (if not France itself) by the men associated closely with the Cagoulard putsch, who today are under suspicion of having betrayed France.

These three men did control the French army at the critical moment, and the result was disastrous. Perhaps little more could be expected from a trio of defeatists, for all of them decided the war could not be won while General de Gaulle was still crying aloud vainly against surrender without at least a final effort to stop the enemy. Georges' own defeatism, which at times seemed even more marked than that of Weygand, and was exemplified most strongly when he threw all his weight behind the demand for a speedy armistice, was attributed by some observers to his weakened physical condition.

Today, however, the French underground looks upon Georges' defeatism as having been inspired by different motives, and accuses him of association with the men who precipitated the downfall of France. They were deeply suspicious when Georges, who had worked hand in glove with Petain up to the invasion of North Africa, suddenly arrived in Algiers and put himself at the disposal of General Giraud. They looked with an unfriendly eye upon the thousand or more reactionary French army officers who crossed the Mediterranean at the same time, with, the resistance movement feared, the intention of infiltrating into the French North African army and finally dominating it for antidemocratic purposes. Now they have gotten Georges out.

Vichy Minister

Maurice Couve de Murville, another dispossessed member of the committee, was until March, 1934, a member of the Vichy Finance Ministry, in the post of Inspector of Finance—that is, a member of the closed circle of a clique of financial officials closely associated with the Vichy government, of which many of them were members. He had been associated, among others, with Paul Baudoin and Yves Bouthillier, both former inspectors of finance, and Vichy ministers. As the person in charge of handling transactions with the Bank of International Settlements, he was in frequent contact with its German members. The French underground considered that these associations, and particularly the lateness of his departure from Vichy, disqualified him as a member of the Algiers committee.

It was not unfavorable opinion which caused the departure of the other two former members of the committee, Gen. Paul le Gentilhomme and Dr. Jules Abadie. The latter had been only a temporary choice for his position of commissioner for health. General le Gentilhomme was a compromise nominee, for De Gaulle had believed that a civilian should be commissioner for war, in accordance with the principle laid down by Clemenceau that it was advisable that generals should be subject to a purely civilian authority. The original appointment of Le Gentilhomme to the war portfolio, although he was a Le Gaullist, was a concession to Giraud, and today De Gaulle's point has been won with the replacement of a Fighting French general by a Fighting French civilian—Andre Le Trocquer, representing the Leon Blum wing of the Socialist underground. This is an extremely powerful group among French workers, with tendencies opposed to those of the Communists, although both are working together for the liberation of France in the present situation.

The French underground today has two preoccupations: First, to help the war effort, particularly in clearing the Germans out of France; and second, to prevent any compromise with the collaborationists.

Today And Tomorrow

Lebanon: Stop, Look, And Listen

LIPPMANN

THE TROUBLE in Lebanon demonstrates how urgently necessary it is to begin acting at once on the promise of the Moscow agreements. It is that while the four great powers who signed the declaration provide the nucleus of force against great aggression, they cannot make settlements without drawing into their councils other states.

SYRIA AND Lebanon were under a French mandate from the League of Nations, and when Vichy France made an armistice with Germany in 1940, the French rulers of Syria and Lebanon chose to adhere to Petain. By the spring of 1941 Vichy had connived at German infiltration into Syria as Vichy had agreed to the Japanese occupation of Indo-China. These were the preliminary steps to the great German-Japanese pincers movement that was to meet in the Indian Ocean, thereby isolating Russia and China and breaking apart the British Empire.

To forestall this grandiose plan an army composed of Free French, Belgian, British, and British imperial troops entered Syria in June, 1941, and, after a campaign against the Vichy French, occupied the country. By this bold and successful move they closed the back door to Turkey, Egypt, and the whole Middle East, and so made secure the base from which more than a year later Alexander and Montgomery attacked Rommel.

Since Syria was a French mandate the political administration was given by the British to the Free French, and General de Gaulle appointed Gen. Georges Catroux as high commissioner to the Middle East. In his declaration of June 8, 1941, to the people of Syria and Lebanon, Catroux announced that he had "come to put an end to the mandatory regime and to proclaim you free and independent. Your independent and sovereign status will be guaranteed by a treaty in which our mutual relations will be defined."

AFTER THAT the history is obscure and tangled. But it has long been known that the British and French were not getting on well, and that their ancient rivalry in this part of the world continued. The tragic personal friction between Mr. Churchill and General de Gaulle had its main beginning in Syria, and if General de Gaulle has been a difficult man for the British to deal with in Syria, it must be said in fairness that Mr. Churchill's personal appointee in Syria, General Spears, was an almost impossible man for anyone to deal with.

This is the view not only of the French but of very nearly all informed and disinterested Englishmen and Americans. There is a jingle, current among Englishmen about him, which gives an idea of his reputation:

"Ride a cock horse
To the Syrian cross
To see a fine General
Ride on his high horse.
Spears on his fingers
And spears on his toes,
He shall make trouble
Wherever he goes."

The French successor to General Catroux, M. Helleu, appears to have been an equally unfortunate appointment. For it is this M. Helleu who lost his head, and without consulting the Allies started arresting and firing on the Lebanese when they declared their independence without waiting to negotiate a treaty—which, to complicate matters further, the French National Committee, not being a sovereign government, lacks the power to make.

THE FRENCH National Committee has in effect disavowed M. Helleu, and has sent General Catroux to Syria with full power to settle the matter. At this distance and with the information now available here, it is impossible to have an opinion in regard to the practical measures needed to make a settlement.

But this much is clear enough. A settlement must be sought in which the French participate, and any temptation there may be to use this unhappy affair as the occasion for expelling the French Committee from the United Nations councils must be resisted. There will be some in London and in Washington who will be tempted. If they yield, they will jeopardize much that was achieved at the Moscow conference, and they will store up more trouble in the Middle East and in Asia than they can possibly hope to cure by any panicky and angry action in this emergency.

THE PROBLEMS of the Middle East are extremely difficult and complicated. But the war can no longer be won or lost in the Middle East as it might have been won or lost in 1941-1942. Therefore, the problems of the Middle East fall within the scope of that larger international organization which was promised at Moscow. To attempt to settle them now by a British decision alone, even with American support, will almost certainly set a most dangerous precedent.

For, if we take a broad view, this would mean that Britain was in effect the sole western power dealing with the Moslem world. This is not in the interest of Britain, or of the Moslem peoples, or of the world. This whole region is beyond the reach of any genuine, vital, and enduring American national interest, and the British will be very unwise indeed if they adopt a policy based on the assumption that in this region they can count upon the United States to play the role of junior partner and brilliant second. Only in a general way, only as a member of an organized society of many states, can and will the United States for long participate in the affairs of this distant region of the earth.

FOR THIS reason France is indispensable to the British in the Mediterranean as she is in Western Europe. Britain needs France, as she will need Russia and China, to avoid drifting into a dangerous isolation in the presence of the Moslem, and also of the Hindu, world.

For the problems of this vast region are insoluble by Britain alone, and they will never become sufficiently the concern of the United States to cause us to play a large and continuing role. If the British act alone, and not within the framework of United Nations collaboration, they will find that as the problems of the Middle East develop, the issues will tend to drive Britain and the United States apart.

For these reasons, the problem of Lebanon, just because it may set a precedent, calls for the kind of cooperation which Mr. Eden and Mr. Hull represented so successfully at Moscow. This means a scrupulous care to avoid now any brusque decisions which ignore the principle of cooperation.

Senate Group Approves Bill For Soldier Vote

Soldiers' vote legislation, carrying the 1944 Federal ballot to members of the armed forces, Merchant Marine and overseas civilians on every land and sea front, yesterday was approved by a 12 to 2 vote of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee.

Reported with a few minor changes was the Green-Lucas bill, placing administration of the global ballot under the Army and Navy, with a strictly bipartisan war ballots commission charged with printing and clearing the ballots.

Senator Lucas (Democrat) of Illinois, coauthor of the measure, predicted 60 per cent of the armed forces would exercise their franchise in the 1944 presidential, congressional and senatorial elections under the simplified procedure outlined in the bill.

Two-Way Cut Seen

Conceivably the number voting would be enough to swing a close presidential election, and Republicans and Democrats alike evinced interest in the move. Most neutral observers agree that the huge overseas ballot will cut two ways politically.

Soldier voters would be required merely to indicate the candidate or party of their choice on a special Federal ballot to be distributed and collected by the War and Navy Departments. Men who wish to vote for State offices would have to apply to their States for absentee ballots, but the bill would speed this process also by providing postcard applications.

In a radio speech last night, Chairman Green of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee outlined provisions of the bill and urged it be treated as a war measure. Said Green: "It is not fair that these men, who are ready to give their last full measure of devotion, should, because of that fact, be prevented from enjoying the most fundamental right of a free man in a democratic country, the right to vote."

Similar Measure in House

Lucas said an effort will be made to call up the bill for Senate action next week. Meanwhile in the House, Chairman Eugene Worley of the House Elections Committee is perfecting a similar measure. Unlike the Senate bill, the Worley measure confines the war ballot solely to members of the armed forces. A meeting of the elections committee has been called today to consider it but immediate House action is not anticipated.

The only two "no" votes on the Green-Lucas measure were cast by Senators Revercomb of West Virginia and Moore of Oklahoma. Moore and Revercomb announced they were not opposed to the bill on its merits, but wanted time for further study.

Senate Confirms Norweb

The Senate confirmed yesterday President Roosevelt's nomination of R. Henry Norweb of Ohio to be Minister to Portugal.

Bricker Announces Candidacy For Presidential Nomination

Columbus Ohio, Nov. 15 (AP).—Gov. John W. Bricker, saying that "confusion and distrust reign throughout the land," asserted today the Nation needs "a change of philosophy of government" and announced formally he was a candidate for the Republican presidential nmoination in 1944.

The Governor's statement said he would enter the Ohio primaries and put his name "before the Republican National Convention." He told a press conference he had received "much encouragement" from States outside Ohio.

He renounced any bid for reelection to a fourth term and washed his hands of the mixed Republican Gubernatorial picture in Ohio by telling newsmen, "I suppose the Governor's race is wide open now—it isn't my problem any longer."

Critical of New Deal

Bricker was critical of the New Deal in his statement, saying it had come to "the end of its service to the people."

"We need not alone a change of administration but a change of the philosophy of government held by many New Dealers," he said. "The playing of one class of our people against another, the building of pressure groups by Government must come to an end."

He recalled his statement at the Republicans' Mackinac Island Conference in which he said the next President should serve one term without expectation of reelection, and a constitutional amendment be submitted to the people fixing a limit on a President's tenure of office.

Bricker touched lightly and carefully upon the international situation.

"As a result of our fighting the United States will be in a position of great power and responsibility among the nations of the world," he said.

"There must be responsible participation among sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world."

To Seek Third Term

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 15 (AP).—Gov. Dwight Griswold, Nebraska's Republican Governor, announced today he would seek a third term as the State's Chief executive.

Last week the Nebraska congressional delegation, entirely Republican said, it had agreed to support Griswold as a "favorite son" for the GOP presidential nomination, and then for Vice President if it appeared there was no chance of his getting the presidential nomination.

Ohio Parley Called

By the Associated Press

Representative Jenkins (Republican) of Ohio said yesterday Ohio Republican members of Congress would meet Wednesday night to discuss 1944 politics and legislation.

It is expected the Ohioans will discuss Governor Bricker's presidential campaign and sound out each other's choice for a successor to the Governor.

High Court To Pass on Rent Act, Portal Pay

By Edward H. Higgs
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Supreme Court yesterday decided to review the constitutionality of Government rent-control regulations applying to the homes of more than 80 million persons and the issue of portal-to portal pay for iron ore miners.

The rent-control controversy reached the tribunal on a Justice Deparmtent appeal from the Middle Georgia Federal District Court decision that the Office of Price Administration's rent program consitutes an unconstitutional delegation of congressional power.

At the same time the court without explanation declined to review another decision upholding the constitutionality of the rent program. That ruling was made by the United States Emergency Court of Appeals on regulations in the San Francisco area.

In acting on petitions for review, the Supreme Court does not rule on the merits of the case. Granting of a review means that the case will be set for oral argument in a few weeks, after which a formal opinion will be delivered.

Decision Cited by UMW

In the portal-to-portal pay case, the Fifth Federal Circuit Court ruled that the ore miners are entitled to compensation under the Federal Wage-Hour Act for the time they spend in traveling from the mine portal, or opening, to their working places and back again. The decision was cited by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers in demanding portal-to-portal pay for the Nation's soft coal miners.

The challenge of the rent regulations came from Mrs. Kate C. Willingham of Macon, Ga., who was ordered to reduce rates on dwellings which she was renting for the first time.

In an opinion setting forth reasons for his decision, Judge Bascom S. Deaver declared that administrative agencies "apparently regard the Constitution as an outmoded instrument." Wartime conditions, he said, do not "enlarge constitutional power."

"The act of the OPA administrator in designating the entire United States as defense-rental areas affords an illustration of the dangerous tendency to assume and exercise powers never intended by Congress to be granted or by the Constitution to be exercised," the jurist said.

The portal-to-portal pay decision was carried to the Supreme Court by the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. and Republic Steel Corp., who employ about 6000 ore miners in 13 mines in Alabama.

The Circuit Court ruled that all time spent underground except the lunch period "is in and of itself worktime" under the Wage-Hour Act. The companies contended the decision forced employes and employers "to adopt a construction of the words 'work' and 'work week' radically different" from the practice followed for years in the iron ore industry.

The Justice Department supported the Circuit Court's ruling, declaring that the facts showed that "the miners are not only employed during underground travel but are engaged in hard work."

3 Reviews Refused

The Supreme Court refused yesterday to review a decision holding constitutional a section of the Public Utility Holding Company Act prohibiting registered holding companies from making contributions to political parties or candidates for public office.

The legislation was challenged by the Union Electric Co. of Missouri and by Louis H. Egan of Clayton, Mo., former president of the company. Egan was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and fined $10,000. The company, a subsidiary of the North American Co., was fined $80,000.

The Supreme Court refused to review a decision allowing three Chicago lawyers $18,000 compensation—instead of $172,200 requested—for their work as attorneys for a group of creditors in connection with the reorganization of the Cleveland Terminals Building Co. under the Bankruptcy Act.

The court also refused to review the conviction of William Wade on a charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the killing of a Sing Sing prison guard during the escape of three inmates on April 14, 1941.

Wartime Washington

By Merlo Pusey

Flood Of Income—Trickle Of Taxes

NO ACTION taken by Congress since the declaration of war is likely to have as profound an effect upon our lives as its failure to enact taxes to pay for the war. Any comparison of incomes today with incomes before the war shows that the American people are rolling in wealth—money wealth that cannot be used to raise their standard of living because of war-time scarcities. Yet Congress refuses to draw upon that wealth to pay for the war.

PUSEY

In the single month of September income payments to individuals reached the enormous total of 12.5 billion dollars. Department of Commerce figures show that this is an increase of 20 per cent in a year. A much better measure of changes that war has brought may be found in the Department's index of total income payments. It shows: average for the 1935-39 period, 100; for last September, 215.7.

What are the people doing with this enormous income? The Commerce Department's findings on this point are also enlightening. Here is what it has to say as to the disposition of income payments during the third quarter of this year, the figures reflecting annual rates in billions of dollars:

Income payments	144.3
Personal taxes	18.0
Disposable income	126.3
Consumer expenditures.	91.2
Net saving of individuals	35.1

It is interesting to note that net savings amount to almost twice as much as personal taxes. Savings are very desirable, of course, especially in a period of great prosperity that is certain to be followed by a slackening of industry and employment. Some of these savings are going into war bonds. But we ought not to stop our thinking about these enormous savings with this generality. The fact is that much of this money which is being poured into the people's savings coffers is money which the Government has borrowed to pay for war supplies. And there is no way the Government can pay it back, except by taxing the people.

THESE FACTS about our towering wartime savings must be coupled with the spending picture. Consumer expenditures, says the Department of Commerce, are at an all-time peak. In spite of rationing and the shortages of many goods we would like to have, we are spending more than ever before. Part of this, to be sure, represents higher costs of living. Still the fact remains that we are spending huge sums on thousands of things that are not really essential in wartime.

Against this picture of unprecedented wartime prosperity, the House Ways and Means Committee offers a tax bill that would raise a little more than two billion dollars. That would pay a little over half the interest on the national debt at the figure it will reach next June. It would leave us still paying only about one-third the cost of Government in wartime. Great Britain and Canada are paying roughly half of their wartime expenses.

There is one real difficulty in the way of levying stiff taxes to siphon off the vast excess of income which the people cannot advantageously spend. The increase in income payments has not been distributed evenly over the whole population. It is estimated that nearly 15 million heads of families have had no increase in incomes since the wages of organized workers began their spectacular climb in 1940. Severe taxes applied to white-collar workers whose living costs have gone up and whose incomes have remained stationary, it is said, would "draw blood."

TO MY WAY of thinking a little "drawing of blood" on the home front would be preferable to risking a bust in our economy. "Blood that can be draw. from the pocketbook should be at least as expendable as ha shed from the veins of living men on the battlefields. But no such drastic demands upon the people are necessary. Congress can devise ways and means of raising many billions of dollars without imposing any unbearable hardship on anyone. It can recognize the fact that the war has put into the pockets of wage and salary earners about 70 billion dollars that they would not otherwise have. And it can dip into that enormous income, wherever it may be found, to slow down inflation and help pay the cost of the war.

The Government's need for revenue is stupendous. The ability of the people to pay is greater than it has ever been before and much greater than it is likely to be when the war is over. In the light of these facts, the request for a paltry 2.14 billions in taxes out of 35 billion in savings is an insult to our intelligence. It is based on the assumption that we are too yellow to face the necessity of paying for the war, or even a fair portion of it, while our sons and brothers are fighting in foreign lands. We must not admit that that assumption is correct. For it would amount to the worst betrayal of our defenders to which the American people have ever stooped.

Capital Ranks 5th in Building In 10 Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington ranked fifth among the leading cities in building permits during the first 10 months this year, according to a compilation released yesterday by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

Local building through October aggregated $16,749,714, as compared with $28,989,643 in the corresponding period last year. The sharp shrinkage was attributed to wartime restrictions on materials.

Nationally, building permit volume shrank 42 per cent in the 215 cities covered by the Dun & Bradstreet survey. Total building was put at $418,418,809.

Only Detroit, New York, Los Angeles and Portland, Oreg., exceeded the local volume for the first 10 months. Comparative figures for the 20 leading cities follow:

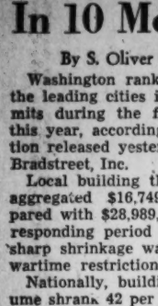
Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

WAL Opens Offices Here

Western Air Lines will open executive offices today in Washington under the management of Ronald C. Kinsey, it was announced by President William A. Coulter in Los Angeles.



MR. KINSEY

Mr. Kinsey, new assistant to President Coulter, is a veteran in the aviation field. He started his career with the Pacific Air Transport and for seven years was secretary-treasurer and director of Gorst Air Transport in Seattle, Wash. He has lived in Washington for the past five years.

Mr. Kinsey was formerly with the Airline War Training Institute headquarters in Washington. In this capacity he did liasion work between the military services and the airlines conducting the war training program for student bomber crews.

U. S. Housing Sale Urged

The National Association of Home Builders yesterday urged sale of all Government-owned housing properties to private enterprise, and a ban on construction of such projects.

"We believe that the public housing experiment has failed," the association declared in a policy statement. "In most instances public construction costs have been exorbitant and the shelter has not given relief to those in greatest need. The movement as presently constituted is a social and political menace and has already become a vested interest of tenants and political jobseekers."

The home builders, meeting in Cleveland in conjunction with the National Association of Real Estate Boards' annual convention, also asserted that "with victory must come the prompt removal of all wartime restrictions, rationing and Government controls."

Ayres Sees Postwar Boom

Noting that "after the first World War and after the Civil War we experienced phenomenally rapid increases in manufacturing output," Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayres declared yesterday "we shall surely have similar developments this time."

"Our expanded resources will do a large part of our postwar planning for us," the retired officer asserted in the monthly business bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Co., where he is a vice president. "They will increase our national income, furnish jobs for great numbers of former servicemen, and provide great volumes of freight for railroads and trucks."

Ayres said the Nation's industrial plant is nearly 70 per cent larger than when the European war broke out four years ago, and that even after allowances for armament capacities unneeded in peacetime, "we have greatly increased during these war years the productive capacity of American industry."

PCA Nets $260,012

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines yesterday reported net income of $260,012 in the first nine months this year. Operating income of $288,087 in the third quarter was the largest of the year, according to Treasurer R. G. Lochliel, because of the return by the Army of an additional airplane for use in commercial service.

Grange Reelects A. S. Goss

The National Grange convention yesterday reelected Albert S. Goss, Washington, as national master for a two-year term. Goss received 65 votes to 1 for Louis J. Taber, former national master of the farm organization.

ACL Nets $14.30 a Share

Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. reported yesterday for nine months ended September 30 net income of $11,785,991, equal to $14.30 a share on the common stock, compared with $13,485,028, or $16.37 a share, in the first nine months of 1942.

Steel Rate Again Dips

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel Institute reported today a further decline in steel operations this week with mills working at 97.8 per cent of capacity and turning out 1,704,600 net tons of ingots. Last week operations, curtailed by the coal strike, were at 98.2 per cent of capacity and output was estimated at 1,711,600 tons.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—Prices worked higher in the grain pits today under buying stimulated by reports that 1944 winter wheat goals were not likely to be achieved, heavy disappearance of wheat during the first quarter of the marketing season, and a good demand for cash grains.

Although grains ranged to around a cent in wheat and rye, trading was not particularly active. Grain experts were closely watching developments in Washington regarding food subsidies. They expected that the congressional battle over subsidies would have considerable influence on grain prices.

At the close wheat was ⅝-1⅛ higher; December, 1.58⅝@1.58⅝; rye was up ⅝-¾; December, 1.12½@1.12⅝; oats were ahead, ½-⅝; December, 78½, and barley was up ⅝-⅝; December, 1.17⅝.

Protest Against Fly Sent President Last Year

By the Associated Press

Testimony that the House Naval Affairs chairman complained to President Roosevelt more than a year ago that the activities of Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission retarded the war effort was presented yesterday to a House subcommittee investigating the FCC.

The investigating committee's lawyer produced a letter written to the President on March 7, 1942, by Chairman Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia of the House Naval Affairs Committee in which Vinson said Fly "must share in the circumstances surrounding Pearl Harbor."

Deprived of Advances

"His activities in connection with television and frequency modulation," Vinson wrote, "seriously delayed putting these into service, and in turn deprived the armed services of the technical advances which would have accrued from these new types of services."

Vinson complained that for months after Pearl Harbor the FCC chairman did nothing "to eliminate doubtful citizens" working for communications companies, and "he refused to turn over fingerprints to the Federal Bureau of Investigation except under conditions which made the accomplishment of this impossible."

Vinson objected to including labor members on the Defense Communications Board Committees and declared: "Naval secrets are not safe with labor members on the committee."

No Excuse for Labor Members

The Defense Communications Board referred to in Vinson's letter later became the War Communications Board. It is made up of representatives of the Army, Navy and Government agencies dealing with communications. The Board, in turn, has several advisory committees working under it.

In his letter to the President Vinson wrote:

"Now I learn that the Defense Communications Board committees are to include labor members. These committees, Mr. President, handle managerial and technical problems of a confidential nature, and there is no excuse for labor representation except on the committee having to do with hours, labor and working conditions.

"His (Fly's) principal adviser, from labor, is reported to be a Communist. Also, some of his staff are under fire for radical tendencies. Naval secrets are not safe with labor members on the committees."

Belgian Detachment To Serve in Asia

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Belgians are sending a motorized medical detachment from the Belgian Congo to the southeast Asia theater and will arm it for defensive fighting alongside the Allies in the coming offensive there, the Belgian press bureau said today.

Eighteen Europeans and 250 natives in the detachmentprovide an outfit able to care for 500 patients.

They called it the "Pursuit of Happiness"

THEY tell you it's over there, where the guard stands on watch. So you walk expectantly over the marble floor, hearing your footsteps shatter the hush and the quiet all about you. And then, suddenly, there you are—peering at it.

And there are the famous signatures—John Hancock. Charles Carroll, of Carrollton. Samuel Adams. Button Gwinnett.

The words, scrawled on parchment, are hard to read at first. But you know by heart the opening paragraphs — remember them from your history book in the sixth grade.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

You've heard those words, you've seen them—many times. But somehow, standing there before that wrinkled parchment, you become conscious of meanings that used to be only sounds in the music of the language.

Those men who signed that document called it "the pursuit of Happiness." The right that every man was to enjoy in this new country was the right to pursue happiness. To roll up his sleeves and go after it and struggle and win it with his own two hands and his wits.

And because the people who first heard those words understood them—because they realized that their right was one of pursuit—they went out with strength and courage and faith to hew quarries out of Vermont rock, to dig mines in the West Virginia earth, to build mills along the rivers of North Carolina.

Their sons, too, understood — and sucked oil out of the sand and harnessed the power in steam and welded one end of the country to the other with rails of steel.

Because of that right—and because they understood it—the people who came to this country, and their sons, made it the richest, most powerful, most restless nation on earth.

Today, there are those who voice other words. Words not of courage or strength or faith. Words of despair. We are too wise, too old, too civilized, they say, to pursue happiness. We have inherited the right to sit back and have happiness brought to us—decked out and trussed up like a roasted turkey on a silver platter. A dead turkey.

The words they speak are not new words. They have been spoken in other nations throughout history, and people hearing them have been lulled by their golden promise into complacency and submission. And slavery.

They are words that ought to be looked at for their meaning, not just listened to for their music—as all words ought to be scrutinized, including those that have become so familiar, so much a part of our daily lives, that their wisdom is likely to be lost.

So long as the true meaning of those earlier words is understood, the rights that they proclaim will never be lost.

CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILWAY • NICKEL PLATE ROAD • PERE MARQUETTE RAILWAY

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The Redskin coaches were more than slightly amazed when Andy Farkas galloped 36 yards off tackle for that fourth-quarter touchdown against the Lions the other day. Something new was being added to the Redskins' running attack. So new, in fact that the Redskins' coaches had never seen that play before. It wasn't in their books.

POVICH

It was a nice piece of improvisation by Farkas who had never been acclaimed befor as a nimble thinker. Back in the huddle that preceded the play, everything was outlined neatly. Farkas was to take the ball from center, fake a run to the right and hand the ball to Bob Seymour on a reverse. The ball was snapped to Farkas all right, but Seymour didn't show up to relieve him of his package.

Nobody missed a signal says Farkas. Andy found himself holding the ball and quite anxious to get rid of it, but no Seymour. "I saw Seymour in trouble," says Farkas. "That big Detroit tackle Kaporch, had Seymour hooked behind the scrimmage line and he couldn't get to me. So I figured I'd better make tracks before I got nailed for a loss."

What resulted was a splendid naked reverse by Farkas off the left side of the line. He came out of a half spin and a bit later was (1) surprised and (2) elated to find himself across the scrimmage line untouched and with most of a clear field ahead. From there is was a breeze. Coach Dutch Bergman likes the play very much.

Any time the Lions want to come back to Washington featuring Frankie Sinkwich in their backfield, it will be all right with the Griffith Stadium customers. In any season when the Lions can surround Sinkwich with better protection and a line that will permit him to run as well as pass, the Georgia boy could be the hottest article in the league.

Sinkwich was throwing most of his passes with Redskin linemen draped around his neck and can be forgiven for the five interceptions, but given half a chance he was spinning some beautiful heaves. Sammy Baugh is probably the only man in the league who is as big a threat. And he can't run with Sinkwich who makes the dazzling run commonplace.

The 77-yard runback of a punt from his 2-yard line that Sinkwich peeled off was a scintillating thing, but the play that was more flabbergasting was his 39-yard gallop with an intercepted pass. That's when he walked away from the Redskin secondary with sheer speed, turning it on three times when it seemed he was hemmed in at the sidelines.

It was the first time that Sinkwich had ever seen Baugh play, incidentally. "He's something out of a book," said Frankie. "I'd like to pay my way into a game and just watch him throw those things."

Gus Dorais, who said he didn't think any team could score 42 points against the Lions, wouldn't venture any prediction on the outcome of the Bears-Redskins' game this week. "It all depends whether Baugh has a better day than Luckman," he said. "I'd like to see that one myself."

Baugh's four touchdown passes against his Lions didn't completely wipe out Dorais' enthusiasm for Luckman. "They're different types of passers," he was saying. "Luckman will murder you on those long floating passes where his timing is perfect and the receiver is taking the ball on the dead run. Or you can get murdered by Baugh on those short ones."

Dorais conceded Baugh one definite edge against Luckman. "Baugh is a master at getting that ball to a receiver who is partially covered. That's sharp-shooting. I didn't think anybody could throw that well. He dots an i with that football on those short ones."

Baugh's magnificent faking against the Lions was something that even Redskin fans hadn't seen in the seven seasons that the slinging Texan has been performing as a pro. His audacity was something to see. On the Redskins' second touchdown play, Sammy gave Bob Seymour time to romp into the end zone by a new trick, faking a shovel pass into the line to draw the Lions in and set the stage for the long pitch over the heads of their secondary.

George Halas, owner of the Bears, always did maintain that Baugh would be even a greater threat as the quarter back in a T formation. "He's the only man who can hide that ball like Luckman," said Halas. "You're never sure where it is. He's got a great pair of hands and a lot of hokum with it. That helps."

Luckman seems to be all right, too, though. On Sunday when Baugh, with four touchdown passes, four interceptions and a half dozen magnificent kicks was having one of his greatest days in the pro league, Luckman up in New York was breaking two of Sammy's passing records.

N. Carolina Gets Second Crack At Duke, May Deadlock Loop

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—North Carolina will get a second crack at the powerful Duke squad Saturday and an opportunity to wind up the 1943 season in a deadlock for the Southern Conference football championship.

Duke has won its three conference games this season, including a 14-7 triumph in its first meeting with North Carolina at Durham, and is now on top of the title chase. North Carolina has won two of its three loop contests, bowing only to Duke, and a win at Chapel Hill Saturday would leave the two Navy-fortified giants of the conference tied in the standings.

Comparative scores give Duke a big edge over Carolina's Tarheels but both teams have been weakened to some extent by Navy transfers. Duke has defeated Georgia Tech, 14-7, and North Carolina State, 75-0. North Carolina, on the other hand, lost to Georgia Tech, 20-7, and defeated N. C. State by only a 27-13 margin.

Impressive Successes

North Carolina, however, has some impressive outside successes to its credit over Penn State, Jacksonville Navy, South Carolina and strong Penn, the latter 9-6 last Saturday. Duke's nonconference verdicts have been won over Camp LeJeune, Richmond, Carolina Preflight and Virginia, all by big, lopsided scores, and the only defeat suffered by the Dukes was at Navy, 14-13.

This is the only game Saturday which counts toward the conference championship. Clemson invades the Southeastern for a scrap with Georgia Tech's pacesetters of that loop, Maryland travels to Lakehurst Navy, Wake Forest plays at Camp LeJeune and South Carolina plays host to Milligan of Tennessee.

Grant Still Tops Scoring

The individual scoring lead was unchanged with Fred Grant, Wake Forest fullback, blanked Saturday but holding the top spot with 42 points.

Bob Gantt, Duke's kicking specialist, booted seven points after touchdown against Virginia for a perfect performance and took over second place with a total of 38 for the season.

Tied for third place are Courtney Lawler, Richmond, and Nick Sacrinity, Wake Forest, with 36 points. Buck Sutton, N. C. State, has tallied 27. Tied for sixth with 24 points each for the season are Blount, T. Davis, Hartley, Luper, all of Duke; Whitmire, Clemson, Tushak, Maryland; Rogers, North Carolina, and Wagnon, South Carolina.

Racing to Net N. Y. $19,000,000 In Taxes This Year

Belmont Park, New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—"Racing will pay to the State more than 19 million dollars in taxes this year," Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the New York State Racing Commission said today.

"Coming into the last day of racing at the United Hunts Meeting, the State has already received $18,946,932.73, representing $18,259,625.59 for its share of the commission and breakage; $682,582.14 in admission taxes and $4,725 from the associations' daily license fees. The admission taxes will be revised upward later. In April of 1944, the racing associations will turn over to the State treasury at least $100,000 accumulated in the uncashed mutuel fund during the present racing season."

Redskins Buy Center Conkright On Waivers

BILL CONKRIGHT

Ex-Dodger in Seventh Year in League; 'Skins Face Busy Week Preparing for Bears

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Red-headed Bill Conkright, a veteran of seven years in the National League with the Bears, Cleveland and Brooklyn, was added to the Redskin roster yesterday as a valuable all-round lineman, particularly at center, his favorite position. Conkright reported yesterday and will work out today.

Meanwhile the importance of Sunday's clash between the Redskins and Chicago Bears presented a new worry to the Redskin office, which sold the last ticket to the game more than two weeks ago. More than a hundred requests for working press reservations were received by General Manager Sid Carroll from the East, South and Midwest, including newsreel cameramen, with absolutely no place to put them at this time.

Skins Face Busy Week

The Redskins were given the day off yesterday, but face a busy week of twilight practice sessions and night movies, scout reports and lectures. Maryland Coach Dr. Clarence Spears scouted the Bears in their 56-7 rout of the New York Giants and will report to Coach Dutch Bergman today.

One player must be cut from the Redskin squad to reduce it to the league maximum of 28 after the addition of Conkright. The announcement will be made tomorrow, but the player will probably be Jack Smith or Coye Dunn.

Conkright was released via the waiver route by the Dodgers last week after playing in more than half of Brooklyn's first seven games. He started against the Redskins three weeks ago, but has been playing an understudy role to Bud Svendsen.

Conkright Released

A big fellow, 6 feet 1½, weighing 205 pounds, Conkright was reported released without consent of the Brooklyn coaches and the Redskins immediately put in a waiver claim. He played college football at Oklahoma and was drafted by the Bears where he played two years. Cleveland gave up Bob Snyder, the place-kicking expert, for Conkright in a straight trade, and he was with the Rams four years.

Brooklyn gained Conkright last year by the grab-bag method when the Rams folded for a year and he remains the property of Cleveland. If the Rams play next year, the Redskins must make a trade for Conkright or give him up.

The Skins have always carried three centers until this year, and when George Smith was hurt in the Green Bay game the burden was on Ken Hayden for the next two games. Conkright has also played end, guard and has taken a turn in the backfield. He called signals for two years with the Rams. He is at best on defense and holds a reputation for intercepting passes.

Eight by Air

EDWARDS

Redskin Line Coach Turk Edwards, looking over the 'Skins' past performances yesterday, discovered, as if he didn't know it already, that the Redskin line had not given up a single touchdown to date.

Only eight touchdowns have been scored against the 'Skins, by far the best defensive record in the league, but every other club in the league has played the Chicago Bears at least once. The Redskins will have that honor Sunday afternoon in Griffith Stadium.

Six touchdowns have been scored against the Redskins on passes, all of them from 20 or more yards out, while the other two were on interceptions.

The 'Skins blanked Brooklyn in the season's opener in their only shutout and one of the few in the league this year on good weather days. The second game Tony Canadeo clicked on a long touchdown pass to Don Hutson after the Redskins had the Packers 33-0.

The Chicago Cardinals scored their lone touchdown through the air, a Walt Masters to Ed Rucinski pass play on which the latter made a circus catch. Brooklyn tallied on a Ken Heineman to Pug Manders pass and a field goal by Bruiser Kinard.

Roy Zimmerman passed to one of the Steagles' two touchdowns and the other was on a Larry Cabrelli interception. Last Sunday Frank Sinkwich passed 28 and 40 yards to touchdowns and raced to another on an interception.

The line is operating in an air-minded league, however, as the Redskins have scored 26 touchdowns to date, four of them on the ground. M. W. W.

Navy's Hamberg Gets Grid Award

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (AP).—Hal Hamberg, 150-pound halfback, who starred in Navy's 24-7 defeat of Penn November 6, today received the weekly award for the outstanding player in local games at the Maxwell Memorial Football Club luncheon. Bob Odell of Penn received the trophy last week.

Jim Bloodworth, Ex-Nat, Inducted

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers announced today that Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth has been inducted into the Army at Apalachicola, Fla. Bloodworth, 25 years old and a father, is the thirtieth Tiger on the service list.

Bloodworth came to Detroit two years ago with Roger Cramer in a four-player deal with the Washington Senators. He batted .238 last summer, but drove in a relatively high total of 55 runs.

Naval Squad Also to Lose 6 More Men

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 15 (AP).—Frank Maznicki, halfback star of the undefeated Preflight Seahawks, and six other members of the first and second teams will not be available for the Notre Dame game Saturday, it was announced today.

Lieut. Don Farout said Maznicki, former Chicago Bears player, definitely would not play because of a knee injury suffered in the game with Camp Grant Saturday.

The other six players were ordered transferred to other Navy training bases before Saturday.

Coach Faurot said Maznicki suffered several torn ligaments. He also disclosed that Ted (Duke) Curran, Maznicki's understudy, injured his leg in the Camp Grant game last week and, although he will be able to play against the Irish, will be decidedly handicapped.

The injuries to the Seahawks' first and second-string right halfbacks may weaken them considerably, especially on defense. Maznicki was one of Faurot's best defense men. It was after he left the game Saturday that Camp Grant was able to connect for its aerial attack that led to its only two touchdowns.

Winter Tour Bids Reported By Corcoran

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—Fred Corcoran, tournament bureau manager of the Professional Golfers Association of America, said today that requests for winter tournaments had been received from several cities in California and Texas.

Corcoran who made this announcement at the opening session of the association's twenty-seventh annual meeting, named eight top-flight pros who would probably be available to compete: Craig Wood, Jimmy Demaret, Byron Nelson, Sam Byrd, Jug McSpaden, Toney Penna, Harry Cooper and Johnny Revolta.

Reading of reports took up most of the time today. The delegates will try to close affairs tomorrow, electing officers and making arrangements for a winter tournament tour.

Ed Dudley of Colorado Springs, Colo., PGA president for the last two years, will be up for reelection, as will Willie Maguire of Houston, Tex., treasurer, and Frank Sprogell of Grand Rapids, Mich., secretary.

Bronko Nagurski Subject of Spears' Touchdown Talk

Dr. C. W. Spears, head football coach and athletic director at the University of Maryland and one of the most colorful figures in the history of American football, will be guest speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Touchdown Club today at 12:30 p. m.

Dr. Spears, who has coached football at the Universities of Minnesota, West Virginia and Oregon, and who succeeded Clark Shaughnessy at Maryland, will center much of his talk around the career of Bronko Nagurski, Minnesota's former All America fullback who is still active with the Chicago Bears.

Nagurski hit the heights under Dr. Spears and his capable assistant, Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman, after being transferred from the line to the backfield. Bergman then was backfield coach at Minnesota.

Fort Meade Hospital Five Wins Two More

The 100th Hospital Detachment basketball team from Fort Mead, Md., added two more victories to its string over the weekend by winning close games from Woodrow Wilson General Hospital at Staunton, Va., and Ashford General Hospital at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The Meade hospital men defeated Wilson Hospital, 34-32, in a hard-fought battle in which Jimmy Coughlin, Arthur Rodgers and Charlie Devic led the offense.

Devic also was a standout in the 44-40 defeat of Ashford, scoring 14 of the points made.

They Own Three of Bears' Six New Records

Sid Luckman (right), aerial artist of the Chicago Bears who pitched seven touchdown passes against the New York Giants Sunday in New York, also helped Bob Snyder to a record of his own, eight point-after-touchdown placements in a single game. The Bears scored one touchdown on the ground. Luckman's 453 yards gained passing was also a league record.

Remember 1942?

Irish Wondering Why Fans Think Seahawks Have Chance

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—From a firm perch on a good stout limb, here's a vote of confidence for the Irish of Notre Dame in their coming day of trial against the Seahawks of the Iowa Naval Preflight School.

For two and a half hours next Saturday Notre Dame figures to be better than its 1942 version which spanked a far more experienced Seahawk team, 28 to 0, to the consternation of Preflight publicity men who even then were drafting literature designed to establish their tactician, Bernie Bierman, as the "coach of the year."

The subsequent junking of a lot of choice mimeographic reading material wasn't the fault of Bierman or of Preflight's stout-hearted commandant, Capt. David Hanrahan. The blame fell on Notre Dame's coaching staff and its perfectionist football players, who rose to the occasion while their coach Frank Leahy, was abed at Mayo Clinic, and scored what amounted to a major upset, so pronounced was the Irish victory.

Not on Same Plane

The mere fact that the Seahawks' record is identical to that of the Irish at the time they collide—eight wins and no defeats apiece—doesn't set the Preflighters on the same plane with Notre Dame. For the Iowans haven't played any of the Midwest's good teams—Michigan, Purdue, or even Northwestern or Great Lakes—and therefore can't claim to have been tested thoroughly this season.

And that's something that can't be said about Notre Dame.

Certainly the Seahawks have some highly skilled players—former professionals Dick Todd of Washington, Perry Schwartz of Brooklyn, Frank Maznicki of the Chicago Bears and some former cracking good collegians. But the supporting cast is scarcely on a par and advices from Iowa City say Maznicki and some other key players won't be available Saturday.

Maznicki Injured

Coach Don Faurot said a knee injury Maznicki suffered in the Camp Grant game is so severe "we have discarded the idea of using him." Six other first and second team players have been ordered transferred before the week-end. Thus Faurot gets the jump on Leahy at the wailing wall.

Remember last year that Pre-Flight had sharpened up with victories over Kansas, Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan before meeting the Irish. This year they've played Illinois, Ohio State, Iowa State, Iowa, Missouri, Fort Riley, Marquette and Camp Grant—hardly the kind of experience needed before facing an outfit as great as Notre Dame.

Scoring Leaders Idle, Hold Ground

Wings Recall Wing

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League announced today the recall of Left Wing Carl (Winky) Smith from Indianapolis of the American League to replace Johnny Sherf, former University of Michigan captain, who is unavailable for a game Thursday against the Rangers at New York.

Grand Jury Hears Bidwill For 2 Hours

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—Charles Bidwell, who owns the Chicago Cardinals professional football team and a printing company, appeared today before a Cook County grand jury investigating gambling.

Bidwill, for whom an attachment was issued when he failed to appear last Friday, spent two hours in the jurors' chambers today. It was his second appearance before the jury. Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley said that on the first occasion he had declined to answer questions as to whether his printing concern provided tickets and wall sheets for handbooks.

Chief Justice Benjamin Epstein of the criminal court issued a subpena for the sale and distribution records of the printing firm.

Mat Headliners On Arena Program Tomorrow Night

A supporting cast which includes the names of several wrestlers only recently used in headline roles was rounded up for tomorrow night's mat show at Turner's Arena.

In cofeature bouts Rose Ecans, the little Texas cowgirl, will engage Mae Young, the Nevada cowgirl, and Ed Strangler Lewis, former world's champion now doing a comeback, will tackle Chief Thunderbird, the British Columbia Indian.

The Blue Streak, villainous hooded grappler, will be pitted against Cliff Olson, the Minnesota Swede, in a special 30-minute match.

Luckman Becomes Maritime Ensign

New York, Nov. 15 (INS).—Sid Luckman, quarterback and record-breaking pass-thrower for the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football League, announced today that he has been sworn in as an ensign in the Maritime service and expects to be called for duty within a few weeks.

The 26-year-old former Columbia star is married and the father of a 2-year-old boy. He is 3-A in the draft.

Bainbridge Finds Duke Won't Play

Bainbridge, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—The football season for Bainbridge, Navy's powerful team of former college and professional players, apparently was ended today with announcement by Duke University officials that the Blue Devil season would close Saturday with the North Carolina game.

Bainbridge athletic officers said they had expected the Commodores to play Duke at Durham, N. C., November 27, and the game was carried thus on the Bainbridge schedule.

Lieut. Ralph H. Plumb, Bainbridge athletic officer, said today no contract had been signed, but that Duke agreed to play if the naval station insisted. Plumb said Bainbridge had insisted, but had received no reply from Eddie Cameron, Duke coach and athletic director.

"We're not going to be nasty about this," Plumb added. "We're not going to try to force them to play."

Paul Menton, Baltimore Evening Sun sports editor, said Cameron told him Duke never had scheduled a game with Bainbridge.

"We talked about it last summer, just as we talked to many other colleges and service schools. The Bainbridge game never advanced far enough to even be put before our athletic council or the Navy and naturally it did not appear on our schedule when it was released. Our season will close next Saturday with the second North Carolina game."

Plumb said Cameron agreed by telephone to play and agreed to send a contract, which never arrived.

Ruffin Kayoes Bagnato in 2d

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Bobby Ruffin, 137½, New York, knocked out Joey Bagnato, 134, Toronto, in the second round of their scheduled 10-round windup bout tonight at the St. Nicholas Arena.

A crowd of 3607 that contributed to a gross gate of $5088 saw Ruffin drop Bagnato for a nine count in the first round. Bagnato was floored three more times in the second before Ruffin whipped over a hard right cross for the finishing blow. The time was 2:24.

Carmine Fatta, 134½, Newburgh, N. Y., was declared the winner over Eddie Dowl, 136, Newark, in the scheduled eight-round semiwindup. Referee Jim Crowley stopped the bout after warning Dowl for holding in 1:35 of the fifth round.

Basora Matched

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP).—Matchmaker Nick Londes announced today the signing of Coley Welch of Portland, Me., to meet Jose Basora, Puerto Rican middleweight from New York, in the 10-round feature of a fight card November 26 at Olympia Stadium. In his last bout here, Basora upset Fritzie Zivic in a 10-round decision.

Huskies Play Cinderella Role in Rose Bowl Classic

By Jim Hutcheson

Seattle, Nov. 15 (AP).—From the orphans' ward to the Rose Bowl—that's the long jump made by the University of Washington football team. The Rose Bowl committee's selection of the Huskies to meet Southern California in the richest of the post-season gridiron stakes, with the Pacific Coast Conference title on the line, was a reward which Washington supporters have been pulling for all along.

Washington became the orphan of West Coast football when the Northern Division of the conference folded on the eve of the first scheduled games. With Washington having the only Navy-Marine enrollment in the division, it looked too one-sided for fun—or for finances.

The Huskies rolled through their four salvaged games with 150 points to 26 to gain a powerhouse reputation on the home front. But, except for its impressive 27-7 upset of the March Field Fliers, Washington remains the team nobody knows outside the Pacific Northwest.

A powerful running attack gave Washington its start toward Pasadena. The team ranks fourth in the Nation in total offensive yardage, with an average of 375 per game. Of that, 292 yards are by rushing.

The team, suffering an acute shortage of reserves, was built around Washington Navy-Marine holdovers and a trio of transfers from Washington State, with one freshman and one 4-F'er thrown in.

In comparing Washington and USC records, don't put too much maxuma on the Huskies' 27-7 victory over March Field and Southern California's 35-0 loss to the Fliers.

Washington's Rose Bowl outfit won't have the punch of the team that beat the Fliers. USC lost to the Fliers after the mid-term transfer of several of its stars for officer training. Washington's abbreviated season was completed before transfers cut into the squad. But they cut hard, taking the West Coast's two highest scorers, Fullback Pete Susick and Halfback Jay Stoves. Tony Balchunas a starting tackle, also was lost.

Replacements will be one of Coach Ralph (Pest) Welch's big jobs upon resumption of practice after Thanksgiving, but the game will fulfill his recent wish for a chance to play Southern California anywhere and anytime.

Welch scouted the March Field-Southern California contest Saturday.

"We figured a Washington-USC playoff in the Rose Bowl was the practical thing," commented Washington Athletic Manager Roland Belshaw.

"Most available Eastern teams are built around Navy men, too, and they are up against the 48-hour absence rule that prevented our having a playoff with USC any time except during the yearend leave period."

Gonzaga, St. John's Renew Rivalry Friday

Tech, Riders Battle for Second Place

Two important schoolboy grid battles come to the fore this week, the home stretch of the interhigh and prep series, as Gonzaga High meets St. John's Prep and Tech clashes with Roosevelt in a game to decide second place in the high series.

The Gonzaga-St. John's rivalry is 28 years long and always is one of the standout gridiron battles of the season. The game will be played at Griffith Stadium at 8:30 p. m. Friday—the two Catholic schools' first meeting under the lights. Tickets are on sale at both schools and at the Stadium. Servicemen will be admitted without charge.

St. John's on Top

The record shows St. John's far overshadowing the lighter Purple team. The Vermont ave. boys have been defeated only by the Bullis powerhouse, 14-7, one of the few close ones Bullis has played. But past records are thrown into the ash can when St. John's and Gonzaga clash, for both teams invaribly play over their heads in the annual meetings. They go at it hammer and tongs from the opening whistle.

Coach Samuel (Bo) Richards at Gonzaga has made several shifts in the starting line-up for the game, and will have Dave Carroll at left end, Harry Miller at center, and Bill Murphy at fullback, changes which he believes will strengthen the team no end.

The Tech-Roosevelt meeting will be the spot game of the week and will be played at Central stadium at 3 p. m. Saturday.

Riders Have Another Chance

If Roosevelt wins, the Riders will automatically get another shot at league-leading Coolidge, which defeated them in the spot game at Griffith Stadium last week.

If Tech wins, it will mean a playoff of the tie game between the Trainers and Woodrow Wilson on Thanksgiving, with the winner playing Coolidge for the championship on November 30.

With Gene Emsweller back in the starting lineup and the rest of the squad vastly improved over the early games, Tech has a better than fighting chance of overthrowing the Riders and going on to the tie playoff with Wilson—possibly to the championship playoff.

As a matter of fact, the championship playoff is a bit mythical this year, for Coolidge has overcome all local opposition with no difficulty and hasn't even been scored on so far. The Colts' only remaining hurdle is the Western team, which they meet on Raider ground at 3:45 p. m Friday.

Central and Eastern will meet at Central Stadium on Friday also, but aside from the old rivalry between the schools there isn't too much interest there, for both teams are out of the championship running. Wilson will entertain Fairfax High on Friday.

Knights' Quest Wins Belmont Steeplechase

Belmont Park, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP). Leading for every step of the "about" 2½-mile distance over 16 fences, Bayard Sharp's Knight's Quest, trained and ridden by Willie Passmore, today romped to a popular eight-length victory in the Temple Gwathmey Steeplechase Handicap as a one-day United Hunts war relief meeting ended New York's longest and most flourishing racing season of 190 days.

A 2-to-1 choice in the event named as a memorial to the man who played a prominent part in the development of steeplechasing and hunt racing, Knight's Quest was timed in 4:56 4-5 and earned a purse of $4550, in addition to a cup. Bank Note, from the Rokeby Stables, was second by a half dozen lengths over Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Greek Flag. Then came Miss Elia Widener's Gray Iron Shot, topweight and winner of the fixture last year.

15,291 See Event

A crowd of 15,291 braved the bleak elements and wagered briskly on the eight events. It was the most successful United Hunts meeting in history.

Wait a Bit, winner of the Victory Handicap at Jamaica Saturday, came right back with an easy two-lengths score in the Garden City Handicap of seven furlongs, best flat race on the card. William Ziegler jr.'s colt, giving Jockey Ted Atkinson a double and favorite players their fourth success of the afternoon, was timed in 1:24 1-5 as he outfinished Great Rush. The latter held four lengths margin over Suncap for the place. The victor was a 6-to-5 shot.

Rated third in the early stages, Wait A Bit drew off through the stretch under the highest burden of 126 pounds. Great Rush, as usual, had to overcome a sluggish beginning.

Today's play was $1,543,461, which, added to the $266,435,665 for the 180-day regular session and the $16,656,591 wagered at the extra nine-day victory meeting at Jamaica, made the total for the entire 190-day New York season, $284,635,717.

Game Season In Maryland Appears Good

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—Maryland's upland game-hunting season opened today and, despite an acute shortage of shells on the open market, officials of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission predicted that the game kill would approach that of former years.

Harold Smith Kolmer, executive secretary of the commission, said he had a number of calls this morning for additional supplies of licenses, and he declared that nonresident licenses were selling particularly well.

Kolmer said he received calls for additional licenses today from Somerset, Cecil, Frederick and Washington Counties, as well as from one agency in Baltimore and the State's only agency in Washington.

The Washington agency, he said, already has sold approximately 440 nonresident licenses—about double last year's sales.

Local sporting goods houses meanwhile reported that many prospective hunters were disappointed in their attempts to obtain shotgun shells, which have been rationed on a State-wide basis this year by the War Production Board.

Kolmer said that up-to-date reports on license sales were not available, but that early sales equaled or surpassed those of last year. In September, he said, sales ran about $7000 ahead of those in September, 1942.

He declared that the shortage of ammunition probably would make hunters more conservative in their shooting, and less inclined to fire at any moving object.

Officials of the commission urged hunters to be extremely careful not to shoot unless they were sure of their target.

Dorazio Meets Bolden Dec. 10

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (AP).—Gus Dorazio, Philadelphia heavyweight, has accepted a 10-round match with Nate Bolden, Chicago Negro, at the Coliseum in Chicago, December 10.

Frank Palermo, Dorazio's manager, who announced the match, said that in accepting the Bolden match Dorazio rejected two other offers. Palermo said bids to fight Melio Bettina in Detroit November 29 and another for a bout with Tami Mauriello at Madison Square Garden December 17 were declined.

In his last two bouts Dorazio registered decisions over Al Hart in Washington.

Swimmer Katie Rawls Is Sued for Divorce

West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 15 (AP).—Theodore Harry Thompson has filed suit for divorce here from the former swimming champion, Katherine Rawls, charging extreme cruelty and saying his wife has fallen in love with an Army Lieutenant.

It said both Thompson, a civilian captain in the Royal Air Force Command, and his wife, a civilian pilot with the Woman's Auxiliary Ferrying Command, have been away from their Fort Lauderdale, Fla., home most of the time during the past year.

Mrs. Thompson was one of the world's most renowned swimmers, holding many national and world's records at one time.

Cheerleader Is Casualty In Richmond Grid Game

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—The only casualty of the John Marshall-Thomas Jefferson football game here Saturday was Phil Lacy, Teejay cheerleader.

In the public demonstration of a much-practiced-in-private flip, he landed awry, sprained his left ankle and had to be carried to the bench by friends.

Conkright, Of Dodgers, Joins 'Skins

Conkright is married and has two children.

The Bears also dipped into the waiver list last week for a player and to the surprise of the Redskins and Eagles it was Bob Masters, the former Baylor Bear. Masters has been released a half dozen times in his pro career, but he has always bounced back. He played in the quarterback spot Sunday against the Giants when Sid Luckman was rested. The Redskins let him go in September, the Eagles in October.

The Bears will not report here until Saturday, but whether they returned home or planned to spend the week in New York was not known last night.

NOTES—An offer for the Redskins to meet March Field, 35-0 conqueror of Southern California's Rose Bowl team has been wired from the coast . . . Ole Olsen, of Olsen and Johnson, watched the Redskins and Lions last Sunday and plans to fly here from Pittsburgh next week to see the Redskin-Bear game. Olson and Dutch Bergman were backfield mates on the Peru (Ind.) High School team many years ago . . . The National Cathedral Post, American Legion, hopes to induct Redskin George Cafego on November 24, according to Les Steinem, athletic director. Cafego served 2 years and 18 days in the Army . . . Bill Conkright told the Redskin coaches yesterday that George Cafego, in the proper surroundings, will turn out to be a great back. He talked more of Cafego, his teammate until last week on the Dodgers, than himself . . . The most ridiculous plan ever to hit the pro league, and they've been mixed in many, that of taking the championship playoff to California, has apparently died a rightful death.

Cleveland Players Tie in Puck Scoring

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 15 (AP).—Earl Bartholome and Tom Burlington, both of Cleveland, are tied with 13 points for top position in the American Hockey League scoring, the weekly statistics report issued today by President Maurice Podoloff shows.

William Hudson, Hershey, last week's leader, shares second place with six others.

$51,000 Purse Distribution At Marlboro

Little more than a sideshow to the great four-track meeting at Pimlico, but promising some interesting action, Marlboro will put the finishing touches on Maryland's abbreviated 1943 racing season. For ten days, starting tomorrow, the bangtails will circle the nearby half-mile track. After that it will be on to Charles Town for 18 days.

Horsemen will have a chance to shoot at $51,000 in purses during the session, a fact that has drawn many horses who might have headed for winter quarters with the conclusion of the major track season. Five of the 11 feature events will carry $1000 purses. Ten races will have $700 purses and the remaining 65 offer $600. The total purse distribution sets a record for Marlboro which usually holds forth in August.

Post time for the first race is 1:30 p. m. with the daily double to be conducted on the first and second races. With safety in mind, all fields will be limited to eight starters.

The daily feature events follow:

Tomorrow—$1000 Upper Marlboro Purse; mile and one-sixteenth; for 3-year-olds and upward.
November 18—$700 Bel Air Stud Purse; 6½ furlongs; for 3-and-4-year-olds.
November 19—$700 Willard Hotel Purse; 6½ furlongs; for 3-year-olds and upward.
November 20—$1000 Marlboro Hotel Handicap; 6½ furlongs; 3-year-olds and upward.
November 22—$700 Andover Farm Purse; 6½ furlongs; for 3-year-olds and upward.
November 23—$700 Chesapeake Beach Purse; mile and one-sixteenth; for 3-and-4-year-olds.
November 24—$700 Crain Highway Purse; 5½ furlongs; for 3-year-olds.
November 25—$1000 Thanksgiving Handicap; mile and one-sixteenth; all ages; and the $1000 Sandy Spring Purse; 6½ furlongs; for 3-year-olds and upward.
November 26—$700 La Plata Purse; 5½ furlongs; for 3-year-olds and upward.
November 27—$1000 Carvel Hall Handicap; 6½ furlongs; for 3-year-olds and upward.

Army Starts Secret Drills; Squad Intact

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—Army started secret practice today in order to try out new formations that may be used against Brown on Saturday and the all-important Navy struggle on November 27. Trainer Rollie Bevan reported the Cadets came through the tough Sampson game without serious injury.

CORNELL PREPS FOR PENN

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—Although idle this week, Cornell started practice today for its traditional Thanksgiving Day clash with Pennsylvania with a dummy scrimmage in the snow.

INDIANS REST

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 15 (AP).—Dartmouth was given a day of rest today following the 20-0 victory over Cornell Saturday. The Indians start practice tomorrow for their final game of season against Princeton this week.

PRINCETON LIMBERS UP

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP).—Princeton gridders held a brief drill today, running through limbering-up exercises and a long signal workout.

BLUEJACKETS IDLE

Sampson, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—The Sampson Bluejackets enjoyed a day off today after their fierce struggle against Army. They will start tomorrow for their last game of the season against Muhlenberg Saturday.

COLGATE DRILLS IN SNOW

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—Colgate worked out on a snow-covered field today in preparation for Columbia on Saturday.

Goshen Allowance To Dinner Party

Salem, N. H., Nov. 15 (AP).—Dinner Party, White Star Stable's gelded 3-year-old son of Cavalcade, came with a rush in the stretch today to capture the Goshen Allowance Purse, feature event on the Rockingham Park card.

Dinner Party covered the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:48 3-5 and paid $5.60, $3.20 and $2. Landslide returned $3.60 and $3 and Blue Steel paid $4.40 to show.

Phillies' Northey Faces Draft Call

Frackville, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP).—Ron Northey, 23-year-old Phillies' right fielder, has been ordered by his local draft board to report for a physical examination Saturday at Williamsport, Pa.

Northey, who is married and the father of an infant son born early last month, was purchased from the Williamsport club in the Eastern League in 1941.

Navy Squad Workouts Light For Annual Clash With Army

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—The Navy football squad, in good physical condition after its 61-0 runaway with the Columbia Lions in New York, turned today to light drills and workouts as it began training sights on the annual service classic with Army at West Point.

The Army, on presidential order because of travel restrictions, is host for the classic which will be played on November 27, with attendance at the game limited to persons living within a 10-mile radius of the Military Academy.

Game Will Be Standout

Similar restrictions were applicable last year when the Naval Academy was host, and as result only about 10,000 persons saw the classic which had, in prewar years, drawn capacity crowds at Philadelphia and New York.

But while the attendance may be low, in comparison with previous games, the spectators who are fortunate enough to get the pasteboards are expected to see a battle royal between a tough Army team and a Navy squad that has won seven of its eight games this season.

As Navy has no other game scheduled before November 27, Capt. John E. Whelchel hopes to come up with a superbly trained team two weeks hence that will ride the Army mule.

But the Tar coach, regardless of the fine showing his boys have made this season, is taking no chances on the big classic, for he knows as well as anyone that surprising things can, and do, happen in the clashes between the two service schools.

Navy Winning Underdog Last Year

Rated the underdog prior to last year's game, the Navy battled a strong Army eleven through four quarters, and when the smoke cleared away at game's end the score was: Navy 14, Army 0.

So, with a wealth of gridiron material, captained by hard-playing Left End Al Channell, the Navy football machine is settling down to hard, thorough practice after today's light drills, with the goal in view of blowing holes in the Army T-formation, then going on to make it eight victories this year.

Reds' Profit $18,000

Cincinnati, Nov. 15 (AP).—A profit of $18,000 was made this year by the Cincinnati baseball club, operators of the Cincinnati Reds, it was reported today at the annual meeting of officers and directors. This compares with a loss of $500 in 1942.

FREE ENTERPRISE

WHAT IS IT? HOW DOES IT WORK?

OURS is a free-enterprise economy the chief motivating forces of which are the prospective rewards for effort and risk-taking. Its smooth operation depends: first, on adequate incentives for risk-taking, innovation, and individual effort; and second, on sufficient competition to minimize the need for government regulation and to prevent artificially high prices or wages from being maintained in large segments of the economy. Trouble comes when these incentives and this competition are tampered with or removed.

● America was founded by men who had the urge to better themselves and the courage to take a chance. These men uprooted themselves in Europe and braved the unknown. They risked all for freedom. They knew that, to be free, they had to attain economic freedom. Their goal was an economic freedom which permits the private ownership of property, the free choice of jobs, and free entry into entrepreneurial pursuits. Their efforts, therefore, were directed toward individual opportunity with no limit on individual achievement. Their foresight and the endeavors of those who followed them created the world's greatest industrial nation enjoying the highest standards of living.

● We can take pride in the knowledge that our country has been the greatest single contributor to the world's physical assets even though we remember that an abundance of natural resources contributed materially to America's economic development. But the fact that our progress has been interrupted, again and again, by depressions which resulted in enormous wastes of our human and material resources is sobering proof that our economic mechanism still is far from perfect.

● Our production per man-hour has been increasing at the rate of 2½% per year. Improved machines and greater efficiency have more than tripled the output per hour of work since 1900. Looking to the future, this annual rise indicates that our production per hour of work will double in the course of the next 25 to 30 years. This means that we can have twice our present volume of goods and services per capita or an equivalent combination of more production and more leisure. In other words, we can further increase the living standards and further decrease the working hours of the American people by further intensifying our industrial efficiency.

● This is no idle dream. It can be achieved, and it will be achieved, if only we maintain the essential features of our system of individual enterprise which alone makes possible this near-utopian goal. Intensification of our efficiency, however, means that we can have full employment only if we expand enormously our production, and particularly our production of new goods. We can expand total production only if we have the markets and the demands for the vast output of goods and services made possible by our technological development. To attain these, we will need to venture into new markets, new inventions, and new methods. Such ventures involve risks, and risks will be taken only if there is sufficient prospect of reward.

● Let us never lose sight of the fact that the essential features of free enterprise are the prospective rewards for risk-taking as well as for effort.

● The evidence is clear that incentive methods of wage payments will boost production. Carefully devised systems of salary payment with large differential inducements for superior performance have been powerful means of raising the standards of managerial accomplishment.

● Free enterprise cannot operate effectively unless the wage and salary system offers greater rewards for greater effort. Neither can it operate effectively unless the prospects for profit are sufficient to encourage the employment of resources which otherwise would be kept idle.

● Unless the prospects of profit are superior to the prospects of loss, new ventures will not be undertaken and going concerns will not expand or continue long in business. When the hope for profits wanes, employment and production slump; when that hope revives, employment and production recover.

● Business initiative must be given every possible inducement in order that maximum employment may be achieved through private enterprise. This involves the removal and avoidance of restrictions on business by government, by labor, and by business itself.

● Competition is the life-blood of the free enterprise system. Business and industry must rely upon efficiency rather than upon protection from competition for their survival.

● Those government controls which were made necessary during the war by the magnitude of government demands for goods should be lifted at the earliest possible moment. As soon as the danger of inflation has receded, price controls must be removed and profit margins again left free to be determined by market forces. The excess profits tax must be repealed and the burden of other taxes on business profits greatly reduced. Tax laws should be revised so as to permit adequate rewards for assuming risks. The modernizing of anti-trust laws and their vigorous enforcement, not indiscriminate persecution, will be supported by all who really want free enterprise. Such measures will strengthen the incentives to expand old businesses and to start new ventures.

● Grants of unlimited monopoly powers to labor unions which enable them, consciously or not, to sabotage the profit incentive in business must be withdrawn. Labor has certain legitimate rights; and in order to preserve them and its freedom, labor must come to realize that its best interests lie in a well functioning, self-disciplined competitive free-enterprise economy.

● There must be evolved in the minds of business, labor, and the public a recognition of the need for private business enterprise and a realization that policies which throttle it are harmful not only to businessmen but to workers and consumers as well. Unless we achieve this understanding and avoid needless deterrents to business expansion, we are likely to pay for our folly in the destruction of our free enterprise system.

● We cannot tolerate conditions in which special interest groups in business, labor, agriculture, or politics prevent free access to the market by would-be competitors. Such monopolizing of opportunities stifles progress and creates profits or wage rates based on artificial scarcity. In such cases government interference to open the market to all comers is clearly indicated. We must recognize the need for constructive policies by business, labor, and government which will insure the competition necessary for the successful operation of our economy.

● Increased government regulation and control of business activities is not conducive to strengthening the virility of private enterprise. Government ownership and operation of productive resources certainly is not to be condoned. The more government rules and regulates business, the less will be the incentive to assume risks and to exercise individual initiative. Government regulation of the detailed operation of industry inhibits progress, is prey to political pressures, and is subject to the human failings of its administrators. Better far the rough guidance and justice of vigorous, though somewhat imperfect, competition than the uncertainty of arbitrary regulation.

● The gravest threats to our competitive system exist in legalized monopolies, such as the N.R.A. once comprised, such as the labor unions and farm groups have recently achieved, such as businessmen themselves have sometimes sought. The power of labor monopolies to encroach on business profits will tend to interfere seriously with the needed flow of new investment. And when any group is strong enough to move the average level of costs as much as the labor groups and the farm groups are able to do, there is good reason to fear that, when we begin to approach high levels of employment and production in time of peace, these groups will induce a price-wage spiral which will waste money incomes on price increases instead of permitting them to draw unemployed resources into production. While the demands of labor for collective bargaining rights and the demands of farmers for protection against the rigors of depression have validity, there can be no reason for excessive grants of power and privilege which threaten to make our system of free enterprise unworkable.

● Ours is a complex economic structure. The functions which prices, income, savings, investments, and taxes play in this system are difficult to comprehend.

● As I have said before: Thinking is hard work, and we will have to work hard if we are to develop business policies, labor policies, and government policies which will insure full employment and the opportunity for consistent profit. Yet only through such policies can we guarantee that private enterprise will be the predominant source of jobs, income, and production.

● Even more difficult than thinking, and more important, is the implementation of many policies that are in the interest of the free enterprise system. Not all measures will satisfy all people. Special interests will have to be subordinated to the total interests of the nation. Sacrifice and vision have been essential to the winning of the war. They will be no less essential to the winning of the peace.

● If we can gain recognition of the crucial role of incentives for enterprise, if we stand squarely for competition and against protection or privilege for special interests, and if we bend our efforts to find satisfactory ways and means to prevent large-scale unemployment, we can have the full benefits which only a free enterprise system can produce—in industrial progress, in improved standards of living, and in the preservation of our democratic ways of life.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

'Critical' U. S. Workers May Get Deferment

Federal employes in any one of the 149 critical jobs listed by the War Manpower Commission soon may be given the same protection from the draft as are private employes in similar jobs. When this is done it'll be the first step toward placing Federal workers on the same footing as private employes. As the draft is now operated, Federal Workers are discriminated against. A survey recently made for Selective Service shows that highly skilled employes in Government—electrical and mechanical engineers, meteorologists and chemists among others—are being drafted at a time when there is an acute shortage of these people.

KLUTTZ

In private industry these people couldn't be drafted. Draft boards are required to refer men with critical skills whose numbers come up to the United States Employment Service, and this Federal agency places them in other private jobs if they aren't being fully utilized in their present work, and if they are being utilized, they're automatically deferred. This week Selective Service can be expected to take action on a proposal to put a stop to the drafting of skilled people in Government. It's suggested that the Government refer the names of its skilled employes who are about to be drafted to the War Manpower Commission for placement in other jobs, Government or private. Professional men, it's suggested, should be referred to WMC's national roster of scientific and professional personnel for placement.

Uncle Sam isn't at all consistent in his manpower policies. The 149 jobs, ranging from accountants to seismologists, have been declared critical . . . we're told that people with critical skills must be rationed to meet the supply. Moreover, millions in Federal funds have been used to train people for such jobs. College students who can finish their courses in 24 months are automatically deferred and yet people in the Government who have these skills are being drafted every day. It doesn't make a bit of sense and the only reason it exists is because the Administration believes it's good politics to discriminate against Federal workers. Incidentally, everyone within draft age in Government with a professional or scientific skill should register with WMC's National Roster. This unit performs an advisory service for both the Army and the Navy and in case you're drafted your skills will be called to the attention of the service you're assigned to.

'Name' Bands Coming

It's a deep, dark secret, but Federal workers here soon will be given the opportunity to hear a series of concerts by "name" bands and it won't cost them a cent. Tentatively scheduled for a concert next month is Benny Goodman and his band. To appear with the Goodman Band, it is reported, will be Frank Sinatra. the swoon singer. Yes—it'll all be free and the entertainment will be limited to Federal workers. The sponsors yesterday had a conference with police officials to find out if it would be safe to bring Frankie here for a free show. You'll be hearing more very soon about the concerts.

Doris S. Whitmach is an economist at Office of Price Administration and she's pretty. The other day she was representing OPA at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing to oppose an increase in rail rates. Doris wass called to the stand and the ICC lawyer asked her the customary preliminary questions such as name, address, who she was representing and the like. During the questioning a railroad man cried out: "Get her phone number." . . . War Labor Board Chairman William Davis was asked the other day what he was going to tell the steel workers and other unions when they demand a wage increase similar to that give to John Lewis' miners. "I've got the answer for them," Davis said, "I'll tell them to go find another Ickes." The quip shows in some small way how WLB feels about the Interior Secretary who cracked their "little steel" formula.

A joint health program for employes of the Commerce Department, Maritime Commission and the Office of Inter-American Affairs is being mapped by Commerce Secretary Jones. These three agencies occupy space in the Commerce Building and they have retained Dr. Leon Schwartz of the Public Health Service, to be chief of the medical unit. Moreover, the office will be staffed by nurses through the Central Employes' Health Service, a bureau within the Public Health Service. The employes' service is headed by Dr. Beatrice B. Berle, the wife of the Assistant State Secretary, who set up the health unit at War Production Board. Sick employes will be treated in the office, but the emphasis will be on how to keep well. Services of outside physicians will be arranged for through the office.

OPA Finds Eating Places Void Ceilings

A survey of 480 restaurants and other eating places in Washington recently completed by the District Office of Price Administration has disclosed that 260, or 54 per cent, were charging above ceiling prices, it was learned yesterday.

As a result of more than 100 conferences between restaurateurs and price panels attached to 16 local boards, most of the operators found overcharging voluntarily corrected their prices, it was said.

The survey was made to determine the extent of compliance with the OPA restaurant price-freezing order, which limits the prices eating establishments may charge to those in effect during the base period, April 4 to 10.

Follow-up checks by the price panel assistants meanwhile showed that the violators changed their menus to conform with price ceilings. Since the survey started a month ago, it was said, all operators investigated are now virtually 100 per cent in compliance with regulations.

Instead of direct legal enforcement, OPA price panels settled the overcharges in "neighbor to neighbor" conferences. Of the 260 found in violation, only one case has been referred to District OPA Attorney John Lackey for legal action if he deems it necessary, it was said.

"Response of restaurateurs to the price panel action has been most encouraging," said Robert K. Thompson, District OPA director.

"Coverage of restaurants and other retail establishments would be more complete," Thompson said, "if price panels had a sufficient number of assistants to render the service to retailers and their community."

Esquire Goes On Cosmos Ration List

Life is not all peace and quietude in the dignified confines of the Cosmos Club, exclusive hangout for men at Madison pl. and H st. nw.

And, confidentially, the library committee is a little hurt at the untoward conduct of some of its members. In mild reproof, this notice appeared yesterday on the club bulletin board:

"In view of the fact that the October and November numbers of Esquire have disappeared as soon as they were placed on the reading tables, the December number will be kept at the front desk."

The Cosmos management revealed later that if a member wishes to read the "magazine for men," he is asked to sign a receipt for it. It was evident that recent Postoffice Department hearings to decide if Esquire should be barred from second-class mails had no unfavorable effect on first-class males.

Nominees For Bishop Are Studied

By Robert Tate Allan

Seventy lay and clerical deputies to the Washington Diocesan Convention, November 23 met last night at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church to consider the nominating committee's report on a potential successor to the late Bishop James E. Freeman.

With Diocesan Chancellor Charles Wilson presiding, the delegates studied potential and real nominee's qualifications, such as spiritual leadership, intellectual vigor, social vision, pastoral effectiveness, preaching power and administrative ability.

Meanwhile, it was learned last night that the following four out-of-town clergymen named by the nominating committee last week received a two-thirds vote of the committee headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts.

The nominees were the Very Rev. Angus Dun of Cambridge, Mass.; Dr. Donald Bradshaw Aldrich, New York City; Dr. Dudley Scott Stark, Chicago, and the eVry Rev. Sidney Edward Sweet, St. Louis.

Discounting rumors of "politics" in the nominating committee's selection of the out-of-towners, the Rev. Peyton R. Williams, secretary of the ocmmittee, last night told The Post:

"No one local man received a majority vote of the nominating committee, and therefore could not be nominated by the committee because the resolution of the committee stated that we were to determine the nominee by a majority vote of the committee."

Mr. Williams, intterviewed before the meeting at St. Margaret's, said that a preference vote was taken after the selection of the four nominees, with the result that Dr. Dun was listed as No. 1 nominee; Dr. Alridge, No. 2; Dr. Stark, No. 3, and Dr. Sweet, No. 4.

Sisters Have Children in Same Room

House Passes Dependent Child Bill

The House yesterday passed without opposition a bill granting aid to dependent children in the District and empowering the Board of Public Welfare to determine the amount of assistance and manner of providing it to each individual case.

Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee, who introduced the bill in September, reported it favorably from the committee without amendment.

"At the present time the Home Care Act for Dependent Children, approved June 22, 1926, has been held by the Social Security Board to be wholly inadequate to meet their requirements," the West Virginia Congressman said. "For some time the board has been insisting that the District obtain a revision of the act to meet Federal requirements, and it has stated that the District is endangering the continued receipt of funds from it due to this fact.

"In order to meet these standards and bring the act in conformity with standards of the Social Security Board, the Board of Public Welfare has drafted the proposed bill, in conjunction with the Social Security Board.

"In addition, the bill provides one procedure instead of two to deal with cases where aid to dependent children is involved; defines eligibility in terms of social-security legislation through which Federal matched payments are obtained; permits the inclusion in the grant of an incapacitated father who lives with his family; determines eligibility for aid on the residence of a child instead of the residence of the parent; permits assistance to children 16 and 17 years of age; removes from a standing committee of the Board of Public Welfare the necessity of reviewing each case, and will permit the control of this function by regulations and procedure through its agencies."

The bill has not been introduced in the Senate.

For the first time in the history of Doctors Hospital, two sisters have just become mothers, one of twins, and are occupying the same room in the maternity wing.

The two women, daughters of Representative and Mrs. Ross Rizley (Republican) of Oklahoma, are Mrs. Elaine Camp, 26, whose twin boys were born Sunday night, and Mrs. ortense Barrere, 25, whose son was born nine days ago.

A cable was sent yesterday to Lieut. Melvin Camp, father of the twins, who was sent overseas several weeks ago. Although his family does not yet know where he is stationed, they vired the news through his APO number and trusted that the officer would learn soon that he is the father of two healthy boys instead of one child.

Mrs. Rizley, the youthful appearing grandmother, explained yesterday that being a "granny" was a new experience for her but she was pleased that three grandsons arrived in such close succession.

"I always wanted twins myself," she said with a chuckle. "Now, I'm glad that my oldest daughter had them." The twins caught the family by surprise so that they had not planned on names. Mrs. Barrere has named her son Michel, suggested by her husband, Corpl. Gabriel P. Barrere, who was home on furlough from Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri when the baby arrived.

The first twin boy arrived at 9:22 p. m. Sunday and the second at 9:30. They weighed 6 pounds and 5 pounds 7 ounces. The young mothers and their children will live with Representative and Mrs. Rizley, 6140 Thirty-fist pl. nw., while their husbands are in the

Chastleton Tenants Ask Open Hearing

Residents of the Chastleton Hotel, informed by their tenants committee that a contract is under negotiation to convert the property into temporary WAVE quarters, last night called for an open hearing with naval officials in an effort to retain their homes.

Meanwhile, another protest meeting similar to those held Saturday and yesterday as a result of reports that the Navy would take over, was scheduled for tonight at 9, when Thomas D. Carson, president of Washington Properties, Inc., proprietor of the house, will be asked to attend. While the Navy had refused to comment, Carson has denied that officials had taken any specific action.

Charging that about 85 per cent of the Chastleton tenants are trained Government workers engaged in war work, the residents also signed a petition to Congress—and specifically members of the Naval Affairs Committee—to determine whether the alleged action is "reasonable, economical and vitally necessary for the successful prosecution of the war and whether all other feasible means for providing temporary housing" have been investigated.

Paul Miller, president of the Washington Guest House Association, told the mass meeting that approximately 26,000 vacancies existed in Washington, according to figures released by officials of the War Housing Center, the NHA, NCHA and the Guest House Association.

Miller also questioned centralization of the WAVES, while WAC housing is decentralized, and called upon Chastleton tenants to "bring pressure" on their Congressmen. He suggested formation of a central committee with members of other large apartment houses which might conceivably be taken over for duration housing.

Liquor Men Meet With ABC Head

A regulation that would force dealers to keep a high percentage of their liquor on the shelves is the proposal being most seriously considered as a means of stamping out irregularities in liquor sales here, Thomas Lodge. chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, told the District Retail Liquor Dealers Association last night.

The meeting, in the Jewish Community Center, attended by 300, was marked by accusations and denials passed between District officials and the dealers' association.

Harry S. Wechsler, president of the association, denied that a "black market" in liquor exists here, but admitted that 5 per cent of the liquor dealers are "rotten." Commissioner Guy Mason told the group that there was illicit liquor trade in the District, and "no doubt about it."

"It's up to you people to keep your own house clean," he told the dealers.

"Reaping What They've Sown"

But Martin F. O'Donoughue, attorney for the dealers, said the ABC Board is "now reaping what they've sown" and added that the responsibility is that of the Commissioners and the ABC Board, not the dealers. O'Donoughue urged liquor rationing as the "real solution."

Regulations requiring that specific amounts of stock be displayed on shelves are already in effect in two States, Lodge pointed out.

"And we're going to pull the merchandise out on the shelves here if we can get approval of the commission," Lodge declared.

Included in other proposals now being considered, Lodge said, is a requirement that all wholesalers furnish the ABC Board with reports of all the merchandise they distribute.

"Then we might suggest that you people give each of your customers a receipt, which would bear the customer's name and address and a description of the sale," he said. "Then we'd have an accurate check on where the liquor that comes in here goes."

Also Under Consideration

Other suggestions being considered by the board, Lodge said, are reduction of the maximum one customer can buy, reducing importation permits and reducing the hours of sale. Reducing the hours of sale is not a good suggestion, he said.

The ABC Board nowadays is "catching thunder," Lodge said. The public, he said, has four major complaints:

1. The public is bitter about prices—especially "cat and dog" brands, produced to evade price ceilings.
2. The poor quality of liquor.
3. Non availability.
4. The arrogance, impoliteness and disrespect noticeable lately on the part of liquor store clerks.

"There's a very large supply coming in here that never gets on the shelves," Lodge charged. "There are too many transactions in back rooms."

Mason and Lodge warned the dealers that Government control was in the offing if the situation isn't cleaned up, and Lodge added that "if something isn't done" he "wouldn't be a bit surprised if the distillers cut the District's quota of supply."

'Flying Lawyer' Sponsors Wife's Admission to High Court Bar

Ruth Lloyd Wilkins of Columbus, Ohio, was admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court yesterday on the motion of her husband, Naval Air Force Lieut. Ralph W. Wilkins, rounding out a strictly modern marital and professional romance.

Her admission as a member of the Supreme Court bar was the first, in recollections of Court attaches, in which a husband, himself a member of the bar, made a motion in behalf of a helpmate.

LIEUT. AND MRS. WILKINS

The couple met as students at Ohio University in 1924, and after Lieutenant Wilkins was graduated a year later went separate professional ways until 1938. They kept their romance alive, however, and married that year, combining their law practices.

Like her husband, who is stationed with the Navy Air Force at Patuxent River, Md., Mrs. Wilkins is a former member of the Ohio Legislature and one-time chairman of Ohio"s Tax Commission. She is the only woman in Ohio history to have served as taxation chairman.

Preceding Mrs. Wilkins in signing the Lawyers' Register in the anteroom of the court, was Sergt. Louis Glickhouse, who is stationed at Bolling Field as a weather observer with the U. S. Air Force. With him was his bride of five months and, in his pocket, a furlough order for their honeymoon.

U. S. Agency Fund Solicitation To Be Intensified Thursday

In a concentrated demand for additional Community War Fund contributions from Federal employes, still 14.7 per cent short of their share of the $4,800,000 goal, the Government division yesterday designated Thurssday, the day before the campaign closes here, as "Mission Accomplished Day."

The one-day special drive is aimed to raise the average Government employe gift, $7.79 per person, to the overall average fund gift, $11, in an effort to bring in the full $2,500,000 quota for which that division is responsible.

In a letter to heads of all departments, establishments and agencies of the Government yesterday, Preston Delano, division chairman, urged workers to get behind "Mission Accomplished Day" to make up the $353,000 deficiency

On Thursday, employes receiving a base salary of $3000 or more, who have pledged less than $10, will be asked to give $5 more in cash. Employes receiving a base salary under that amount, who have pledged less than $5, will be asked for at least $1 more. Special appeals for gifts of at least $1 will be made to those employes who have not contributed at all.

Reports of achievements on "Mission Accomplished Day" will be turned in to audit headquarters, Bureau of Engraving, before 6 p. m. Thursday, or to the auditors at the "Hall of Flags," U. S. Chamber of Commerce, not later than 12:15 p. m. Friday, when the final overall report meeting of the Community War Fund will be held.

The "four ace" war photographer and correspondent, Therese Bonney, will give an illustrated lecture in behalf of the fund at the "Hall of Flags," tomorrow at 5:30 p. m. Emphasizing the needs of the United Nations—one of the three fronts benefitted by the fund this year, her address will be a "Tale of Europe's Children."

Father Edmund A. Walsh, grand regent of foreign service at Georgetown University, will introduce Miss Bonney. The lecture, sponsored by the United Nations Committe of the Community War Fund, is open to the public.

Fund Standby Squads Await Your Summons

If you have neglected your responsibility to the Community War Fund, which is still appealing for at least $570,000 for 145 Washington agencies, call fund headquarters, Metropolitan 2284, to make up that deficiency today.

"Standby squads," organized by the Metropolitan Division, went into action yesterday to receive calls from those not yet solicited in an emergency measure designed to put the campaign over by Friday.

Meridian Hill Dance Designed To Prove Theory

Government girls of Meridian Hill Hotel have already proved that despite the manpower shortage you can still have a dance in Washington without "wallflowers"—if you have a celebrity or two on hand to attract the crowd.

And Saturday night they are going to prove that the men will come to a dance just to dance. They don't plan to have a celebrity around.

It will be their fourth dance in two months for United Nations officers. At the first dance there were many girls and only a handful of men, but at the last, the day before Halloween, there were 400 couples.

The policy of having a celebrity around will be resumed as soon as the girls prove to themselves Saturday night that the officers will come just to dance. The last dance attracted many officers from Walter Reed Hospital. Dancing Saturday will be from 9 p. m. to midnight in the hotel ballroom.

'Sons o' Fun' Show Sued for $10,000 By Spectator

Dr. Michael J. Harris, 1000 Rittenhouse st. nw., filed suit in District Court yesterday for $10,000 damages against the operators of the "Sons o' Fun" show, on the ground that he suffered a broken bone in his foot and a chipped ankle when he was brought up on the stage during an act in the stage show last week.

The suit says Dr. Harris, a dentist, was "negligently and carelessly assaulted" and was forced to the stage and then thrown to the floor by the players. Also named as defendants are the National Theater, the Messrs. Shubert, Inc., Select Theaters Corp., Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson. Dr. Harris is represented by Attorneys Nathan M. and Samuel B. Brown.

Taxi Driver Reports 2 Soldiers Robbed Him

Robert Cohen, 26, of 21 Kennedy st. nw., reported to police that he was held up and robbed of $28 in cash by two white soldiers, one of whom wore the stripes of a sergeant.

Cohen, who is a taxicab driver, said the soldiers hailed him early yesterday and told him to drive to the 1800 block of Lamont st. nw. When they got there, he said the men got out of the car and ordered him to turn over his money at the point of a gun.

Revenue Act May 'Catch' Scalpers

Sam Rappaport, 41, of 4236 Wisconsin ave. nw., pleaded guilty in Municipal Court yesterday to selling tickets for the Redskins-Lions game on public space outside Griffith Stadium Sunday.

The mitigating circumstances offered by Rappaport was that he had been overcharged on a ticket he purchased from a scalper and was attempting to retrieve his loss by becoming a scalper himself.

Judge Walter P. Casey referred the case to the probation office.

Orlando Alston, 23, Negro, of 1629 9th st. nw., was exonerated of a similar charge when police declined to press charges, stating they could not find the witness to the alleged transaction.

Leonard C. Jackson, 29, Negro, of 900 44th st. ne., forfeited $25 on the same charge when he failed to appear in court.

Dairy Worker Ordered Held In Man's Death

Andrew Monroe Sluss, 65-year-old dairy worker of 1128 25th st. nw., was ordered held for the grand jury at a coroner's inquest yesterday in connection with the death of William Harrison Johnston, 59, of 1116 North Fillmore st., Arlington.

An autopsy performed at the morgue showed that Johnston had died of a fractured skull after he was struck on the nose. Detective Sergt. Walter Perry of the Homicide Squad testified at the inquest that Sluss had admitted to him earlier that he had struck Johnston on the nose. Sluss did not testify, however.

D. C. Liquor Dealer Convicted of Tie-in Wine, Whisky Sale

Aaron Aaronson, manager of the A. B. Liquor Store at 1805 Columbia rd. nw., was found guilty by a Municipal Court jury yesterday of having violated an Office of Price Administration regulation by making a tie-in sale of wine with whisky.

This is the first case of its kind to come to trial here. Judge George D. Neilson is to impose sentence on November 22.

H. C. Walburn, an OPA inspector, testified he entered the store on October 3, asking for a quart of whisky, but that Aaronson refused to sell the whisky unless a bottle of wine also was purchased.

Aaronson testified in his defense that he had merely "offered" to sell the wine with the whisky but did not attempt to make a forced sale.

The maximum penalty for the offense is $1000 fine. Attorneys for Aaronson said they will file a motion for a new trial.

Senator Truman to Talk

Senator Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, will speak to the Democratic Women's National Council in Room W-424 at the Statler Hotel at 8. p. m. today.

U. S. Education Division Chief Is Found Dead

Giles M. Ruch, 52, chief of the Division of Research and Statistical Service of the Office of Education, was found shot to death at his home, 4225 43d st. nw. about 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

In ill health for a number of years, Ruch had been home from his office since Saturday and was confined to his bed. His wife, Verness, and a 12-year-old daughter, Arlysle, were preparing dinner in kitchen when they heard an "unusual noise" upstairs.

Ruch was found in his second floor bedroom with a bullet wound in his head. A .25-caliber repeating rifle with one shell discharged was held in his left, hand and the bullet apparently had entered his mouth.

Detective Sergt. Richard Felber of the homicide squad said a note to the man's family simply said, "This is the end."

City News In Brief

Municipal Court trial of three persons accused of liquor violations in "pocket" sales allegedly made near Thomas Circle was set for November 23, after arraignment yesterday.

Defendants are Chester O. Collins, 26, and Albert Goodman, 40, both accused of illegal sale and possession of whisky, and Harold Hoskinson, 24, accused of illegal possession. All reside at 1328 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Stamp Theft Tabulated

An accounting at No. 31 War Ration Board in the Denison School, 13th st. and Arkansas ave. nw., disclosed thieves who entered November 9. carried off the following: 337 gasoline books, 150,000 loose canned foods stamps, 24,000 meat stamps, 40 shoe coupons and certificates for 1821 gallons of fuel oil, 14 bicycles, 27 stoves and 523 Nos. 1 and 2 ration books.

Boys to See Actress

Jean Parker, movie actress, is to be present at the Eastern Branch of the Boys Club of Washington, 17th and Massachusetts ave. se., at 5 p. m. today.

Her appearance is scheduled to stimulate interest and increase contributions of Boys Club members to the Red Cross for purchase of a mobile canteen overseas.

Grange Renames Goss

Albert S. Goss of 2800 McKinley pl. nw., former Federal Land Bank Commissioner, was reelected national master of the National Grange at a convention in Grand Rapids, Mich., yesterday. Goss received 65 votes to one for Louis J. Taber, former head of the grange.

A native of Rochester, N. Y., Goss was master of Washington State Grange for 11 years. He also served as a member of the board of the Federal Land Bank at Spokane, Wash.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After Three Months of Sharing Her Apartment With Girl Friend, Woman Is Worn and Irritable; How Reclaim Privacy, Without Causing Ill Will?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am involved in a situation similar to that discussed in your column last Thursday. I refer to the problem of a woman who impulsively offered to share her home with her brother's wife and child, when he went to war; and who is now having nervous prostration at the prospect. I am married and have a small child; and my husband enlisted in the Army some time ago. Since then I have had my girl friend living with me. Things have worked out very well financially, but her sloppy Bohemian habits have been a constant source of irritation to my already frayed nerves.

She has been married, and she has a child. She has been looking forward to bringing the child here with us; but I realize now it would never work out. I get home before she does, which means the bulk of housework and cooking falls on me. Also, from what I have observed of her habits, I feel sure she hasn't the energy to take on additional duties. This means I probably would have to do most of the housework for four,—because even if we did agree on a co-operative plan for sharing household tasks, I doubt that she would live up to it. At least, she hasn't in the three months she has been with me.

My problem is,—How to "let her down" without hurting her, if that is possible? She has good qualities and is a fine artist; but has messed up her life so badly, through her irresponsibility and masochistic trend of thinking, that sometimes I feel we haven't even intellectual interests in common. Is it callous and selfish of me to deny her another chance to prove herself? Or should I simply tell her it is going to be too much responsibility for me? I feel things would work out far better for her, eventually, if she had her own apartment.

WORKING MOTHER.

This Is Business; Treat It as Such

DEAR W. M.: In my opinion, you owe your married girl friend nothing in the way of purely sentimental sufferance. In essence, this shared household arrangement is a business proposition, primarily designed to lighten the burdens of both principals involved. Implicit in the informal negotiations was the understanding, I am sure, that each would profit equally, though perhaps in different ways, as a result of the trustful merger of means and responsibilities. There was no more expectation on her part than there was intention on your part, to promote a situation in which you would be progressively penalized as a convenience to her. And thus you do her an injustice, in a sense, in glumly espousing the theory that you are somehow honor-bound to perpetuate, for her sake, a set-up that is becoming daily more distasteful to you.

YOUR ATTITUDE toward the situation shows confusion of mind. And this confusion of mind doubtless is the direct result of chronic undue fatigue,—occasioned (1) by the psychic pressure of bearing the unaccustomed load of full responsibility for the welfare of yourself and child, in your husband's absence; and (2) by the loss of domestic privacy plus the additional housework entailed by having a "paying guest." Because you are so tired, in mind and nerve and body, you simply aren't seeing things straight; and thus, have lost sight of the probability that, in the beginning, you welcomed and perhaps even urged the two-family arrangement, because the monetary aspect of the transaction looked "good" to you. Now that you are practically worn out trying to earn that extra dividend, you tend to embrace the fretful conclusion that your friend is selfishly trading on sentiment to impose upon you.

Call Quits on Deal As a Mutual Service

WHICH BRINGS us to your crucial question: How to "let her down" without hurting her feelings, if possible? The way to do that is to rid yourself of the neurasthenic notion that this is an intensely personal arrangement,—with you in the sentimental protector and she in the parasitic dependent role,—and proceed to reorganize the situation with wholesome, objective firmness, as a necessary service to both. Tell her, in effect, that although in many ways it has been wonderful having her with you, nevertheless you find to your regret that you just aren't equal to the task of keeping up your end of the bargain.

EXPLAIN that, in taking her money, you have felt you owed her "returns" in the way of housekeeper-service that, your experience proves, are beyond your power to deliver,—owing to limitations of time and strength. Conclude by saying, with pleasant finality, that conscience therefore compels you to call quits on the deal,—before you crack up on the home-front job; and before she has cumulative reason to accuse you of taking money under false pretenses! And you might suggest, as an after-thought, that she really ought to get settled in an apartment of her own, if she expects to have her child with her permanently.

M.H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

POST DISCOVERIES—

Gifts That Make Sense—

Whether you're spending one dollar, ten, or much more on a Christmas gift, why not plan on gifts that make sense during a wartime Christmas?

We have tracked down any number of attractive presents that are practical, but that does not mean they're grim. Pretty-Practical might be a good slogan for this Christmas.

Here are just a few, and in this space from now on we'll tell you of many others. We will find gifts that are gay, that are a pleasure to give, and are also guaranteed to be gratefully received.

Give a Pair of Gloves—

If she doesn't have a pair of heavy wool gloves, she'd probably want these. They're made of 100 per cent wool; they're long, they're roomy, they look handknitted. All of this and pretty, too! Around $4.

Give a Pair of Bed Sox

We've found a pair that we think are the very best buy for your money. They're 100 per cent wool; they're firmly knitted but weigh next to nothing and there are no rough seams to hurt the feet. The drawstring tie around the ankles keeps them snugly in place. You can get them in both women's and men's sizes. Soft pastel shades for the women and black, brown, navy, khaki, and gray for the men. Around $1.

Give a Sweater—

Here's a real find for a Christmas gift. It's a 100 per cent wool slipon sweater with long sleeves. It fits nicely over the hips and gives a long torso look without being sloppy. It comes in a wonderful array of colors that will cheer up your skirts and suits—maize, red, pink, powder blue, rust, leaf green, and beige. Sizes 34-40. At $2.50 and $3.95.

Give a Handbag

This one has all the points that please. It's big, it's drawstring, it's very nicely finished, and is lined in a bright contrasting color. The material is a good quality flannel, 100 per cent wool. Around $5.

Give a Scarf—

This is a gift that will never wear out. It's an imported 100 per cent wool plaid scarf. The wool is soft and fine and the plaids are gentle on the eye. She'll wear it as a shawl over her suits and at home these wintry nights. Around $10.

Give a Shirt—

Here's an idea. Buy her a cotton flannel shirt that comes in brilliant plaids. They're tops for skirts and slacks because they're warm and colorful. These are guaranteed not to fade and they'll wash over and over again. We found them in the boys' department, but they'll fit misses sizes 14, 16, and 18. $1.40.

'Cotton Ed' Smith To Be Honored by S. C. State Society

In honor of Senator Ellison D. Smith, dean of the Senate, who has served 36 years as a member of that body, the South Carolina Society will hold a dance tomorrow from 9 p. m. to 12:30 a. m., in the Hotel Statler.

Members of the South Carolina delegation in Congress will be on hand to receive their constituents and friends. Representative Joseph Raleigh Bryson, president of the society, will head the receiving line. The welcoming committee will be composed of Mr. Hampton P. Fulmer, Mr. Butler B. Hare, Mr. Charles E. Jackson, Mr. Edgar Morris, Mr. J. Austin Latimer, Mr. John L. McMillian, all former presidents of the society.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Joseph R. Bryson, Mrs. Hampton P. Fulmer, Mrs. Butler B. Hare, Mrs. L. Mendel Rivers, Mrs. Burnet R. Maybank, Mrs. Charles E. Jackson, Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Mrs. J. Austin Latimer, Mrs. John L. McMillan, Mrs. James P. Richards, Mrs. Clara G. McMillan, Mrs. Warren R. Clardy, Mrs. Willis Nettles, Mrs. Dillard C. Rogers and Mrs. Alfred Lawton.

Paper Stuffing

When it comes time to put away winter or summer shoes, if there aren't enough shoe trees to go around, pad the toes well with crumpled up newspaper. This is also an excellent means of keeping shoes in shape while they're drying.

Shintoism Unpopular Says Mme. Lim

By Genevieve Reynolds

Just how the American WACS work, play and live in North Africa was told in a gripping, illustrated motion picture by Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, director of the WACS, at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon meeting yesterday at which time Mme. Lim, wife of Gen. Lim, first Filipino to graduate from West Point, gave a dramatic talk on the history of the Philippines.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

At the conclusion of the film shown by Colonel Hobby, Mme. Lim said: "I want every American to know and every American to see this picture so that they may take courage and consistency to go ahead in this liberation task. I am sure victory is going to be ours. But your task (U. S.) will be heavy for winning the peace as well as the war. And if you fail, there will be no hopes for the rest of the world."

Attired in a native costume, the skirt made of American Beauty rose-colored velvet and the blouse a gossamer poof of thinner materials, the former president of the Federation of Clubs in the Philippines pointed out that the United States has been the only nation to found and develop a democracy in the Orient. And that the Philippine Commonwealth was the first democratic government in the Orient.

"Cry of the white people has been, 'the peoples are not prepared,'" she said. To that she answered: "Countries are ruled by the same rules as individuals. If you pamper a child, or prevent his walking because he may fall, then he will never learn to walk."

Declaring that there are 18 million Christian people in the Philippines with a small group of Mohammedans and pagans, Mme. Lim asserted vehemently that Japan, now forcing Shintoism on the peoples, can't eliminate the Christian beliefs of the Philippines with a swish of the pen and swaggering of the sword.

"Not only do we have to fight for peace, but our homes," she averred. "For what is a home without a woman."

Referring to the history of her country, she said that every time the Philippines had been able to raise its head above a certain level some unforseen tragedy pushed it down again. But just as you can't keep a good man down," she insisted, "neither can you keep good people and a good country down."

But back to the WACs in Africa. You could see them operating switchboards, parading for General Giraud, comparing notes and uniforms with the French WACs, talking to the soldiers who had returned from the first line of battle. Also, you were given a glimpse of their quarters, how they washed their clothes in helmets, shampooed their hair with cold water.

Mrs. Hale T. Shenefield, vice president of the club, introduced Colonel Hobby and Mrs. Norman Littell, program chairman, introduced Mme. Lim.

Did You Know That . . . ?

In order to purchase a heavy bomber, the Federated Women's Clubs of Virginia has set a goal of $600,000. All this is to be raised this month during the federation's buy-a-bomber campaign. Of this amount the Arlington County Club expects to raise $75,000. During the first week of the drive, which got under way last week at a tea held in the Clarendon Recreation Center, Mrs. B. M. Miller chalked up a sale of $3535 for the Arlington clubs.

From now on visiting Republicans will have an opportunity to get acquainted with those in the District. For the District of Columbia League of Republican Women has inaugurated a series of teas to be given periodically at the clubhouse, 1612 Rhode Island ave. nw. Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, league president, says that since the elimination of the weekly luncheons and teas as a wartime measure last year, members, especially the new ones, have had no chances for sociability at the clubhouse. Incidentally, the large monthly political meetings lately have been crowded to capacity.

Doings of the Day

Park View Woman's Club, day bridge section, meets with Mrs. C. B. Scott, 3813 5th st. nw. Assistant hostesses are Mrs. P. B. Ashburn and Mrs. M. Smith . . . You Can't Stop Christmas

Can you stop children from laughter?
Can you stop people from falling in love?
Can you stop friendship? good fellowship? and gentleness?
No! and who wants to—except Hitler?
Can you stop Christmas because there's a war?
No, because it has lasted through too many wars.
It's bigger than war. It's what we're fighting for—the kind of a world where all peoples can have Christmas.
And since we're fighting for fundamental values, let us go back this Christmas to what Christmas really means.
Let's stop the phoney value type of Christmas—the Christmas that has been built up on spending dollars.
The "Show her you love her with a sable coat" type of Christmas is what our Government wants to stop.
Price tags do not make a Christmas. Warmth, kindness, thoughtfulness do.
Generosity is not judged by "how much?" but by "how sincere."
And in this wartime year, the built up spend more story of Christmas suddenly takes on the tawdriness that has been obscured by the security of peace.
We're at war. Men are dying. Whole countries are being desecrated. Surely Christmas this year is a time for thought, for reason, for good judgment.
Yes, let us have Christmas. Yes, let us keep our traditions. Yes, let us show our hope and our faith and our belief. Let us be men of good will—but let us also be sensible!
Let us keep our customs of gift giving if we must.
But let the gift show an awareness of this Christmas Year, this war-torn year, and let us not allow our gifts to reflect a lack of patriotism, a lack of good taste.
Let our gifts be useful, practical, and lasting.
Ostentation is out for the duration.
Let us realize that manpower, time, transportation, and dollars are worthy of the cause we're fighting for. It is unconscious sabotage to waste these vitally needed commodities on unnecessary purchases. L. S.

THE WARP AND WOOF: KEEP IT STRAIGHT

Self-yarns are the best for mending woolens. You may get these ravelings from scraps of the material or from seams and hems of the garment. Use lengthwise yarns for darning lengthwise, and crosswise yarns when your needle travels in and out of the warp.

Always use a short thread (in a reasonably fine needle) so that you won't stretch the hole. Work from the right side to keep an eye on effect. Steam press on the wrong side, and brush lightly on the outside to lift the nap.

Capt. Luis Somoza On Embassy Staff

Capt. Luis Somoza, son of the President of Nicaragua and Senora de Somoza and brother of Senora de Sevilla Sacasa, wife of the Nicaraguan Ambassador, has been appointed Military Attache of the Embassy.

Captain Somoza was a recent visitor to the Pan American Union, calling on the director general, Dr. L. S. Rowe.

Like his sister, Senora de Sevilla Sacasa, who attended school in this country, Captain Somoza studied at the University of California from 1939 to 1942. While carrying on his duties here he plans to attend classes at the University of Maryland.

I bring you Four Aids to Beauty in One Single Cream!

My one 4-Purpose Face Cream, by itself, helps all these 6 Skin Troubles

IMAGINE a face cream—one remarkable, scientific face cream—that does all these important things for your skin!

As though by the touch of a magic wand, it seems to cream away the cobwebs of tiny, tired lines around your eyes and mouth due to dryness. It seems to help end the very condition that causes big pores—blackheads—oily skin—dry, flaky skin.

And here's the reason Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream can do all this! It works with nature and helps nature. This one cream, by itself, takes care of four essential needs of your skin! Every time you use Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream, it thoroughly but gently cleans your skin—it softens your skin and relieves flaky dryness—it helps nature refine the pores—it leaves a smooth, perfect base for powder and make-up.

No wonder millions of lovely women all over the country now use no other cream for the daily care of their skin than Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream! Many of them say that Lady Esther Face Cream, by itself, makes their skin look smoother, fresher and younger—than any of the elaborate, expensive methods they used before!

Living Proof—In Your Own Mirror!

Why choose a face cream because it's expensive, or because of a clever package? Judge it only by what it does for your skin!

That's why I say—try Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream! Get the smallest size jar if you like—but try it! When you see how radiantly clean and fresh your skin looks after the very first application—when you see how much smoother and more youthful it appears—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But for living proof in your own mirror that this is the most beautifying cream you have ever used, get the small-size jar of Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream today!

WHICH OF THESE 6 SKIN TROUBLES IS YOURS?

Exhibit of Navy Scenes to Open at National Gallery

An unusual exhibition opens at the National Gallery on Sunday afternoon, November 21, when 101 paintings on preflight to combat operations will be put on view. Sponsored by the Navy, and underwritten by a private concern, seven leading American artists lived at the various naval stations to completely and accurately cover preflight, primary and intermediate training, lighter-than-air, the WAVES in mansize occupations, carrier operations and, finally, combat operations in the Pacific area.

The pictures—oils, water colors, and black and whites—are in sequence, with an official explanatory caption written by the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, thus giving to the public an unusually comprehensive picture of these activities.

John S. McCain, vice admiral, USN, deputy chief of Naval Operations for Air, has written an introduction for the exhibition's catalogue which says in part:

"The Navy takes keen pride in the pictorial exhibit of naval aviation represented in this exhibition. Such a wartime record of its planes, its flyers and ground crews is an important historical contribution and a major accomplishment in enlightening the American people about this fast-growing branch of the Navy.

"It is felt that these works by patriotic American artists are a worthy addition to the written and photographic record of the training program in wartime. They have caught the spirit of the men who fly and maintain Navy's planes. They have, in short, captured the essence of naval aviation."

'Callie' Shaw Carries On in Mother's Place as Social Arbiter

By Martha Rhyne

The green suede-bound "Social List of Washington," the book which a cave-dweller, the late Helen Ray Hagner made famous and the book which made her name a byword and the arbiter of things social in the Nation's Capital, rolled off the presses November 13 with a new byline. Carrying on in her mother's stead is Mrs. Carolyn Hagner Shaw of Bethesda who, not at all superstitious, took over her new duties on June 13 in the thirteenth year of the book's publication, approved the final proofs on October 13 and viewed her work complete Saturday, November 13.

Something new has been added —700 new names to testify to Washington's growth socially as well as otherwise.

Background of Book Dignified

The book's founding has a background as dignified as the customs it portrays and the names and titles it lists. For the founder was the daughter of the Robert Clary Rays, pillars of early Capital society. It was Helen Hagner's sister-in-law, Isabella Hagner, who started the White House fad for social secretaries under the regime of the first President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Hagner's right to pass on social precedence was never challenged. It was natural that her daughter "Callie" should carry on. Her background, too, is strictly social; she was secretary to the late Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson, a granddaughter of the famous Mark Hanna. In the same capacity, she served Mrs. Joseph Leiter and Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, as well as acting as her mother's first assistant during the years of publishing the Social List.

Editor Will Review Problems

Of great importance to the Washington hostess is this tome which lists the executive departments, the 78th Congress and their families, the Diplomatic Corps, high-ranking officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and a social list of Washington of approximately 3000 names. Correct titles, a matter of great import to the bearers, are given for all officials. Correct address, verbal and written; correct use of calling cards and invitation forms and answers are only a few of the matters of social precedence covered. The key of the list is corrected daily and subscribers may call Mrs. Shaw regarding any change, receiving up-to-date information on either the list or social problems which may arise. She Shaw always has the right answer.

Mrs. Dunlap Named Head Of Art Unit

Mrs. Robert Dunlap has been appointed chairman of the arts and skills unit of the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. George A. Garrett, chairman of volunteer special services. The arts and skills unit was launched at a recent meeting of the District of Columbia Chapter and is designed to bring in artists to teach handicrafts to bed-ridden patients and those with limited strength. Any artist wishing to volunteer his or her time and talent for this new project is asked to call Mrs. Dunlap or her assistant, Mrs. Victor I. Morrison, at Republic 8300, extension 762.

Woman's Club To Open Season

The Alexandria Woman's Club will hold its annual guest night at the ballroom in Gadsby's Tavern, Wednesday evening, November 17, beginning at 8:30. This event marks the winter debut of the club when husbands and guests will be presented. A musical program will be given in charge of Mrs. James T. Oliver, jr.

The sale of War Bonds by club members is in charge of Mrs. Walter DuBois Brookings. Alexandria Woman's Club is a part of the unified bond sale by Virginia clubs. The proceeds will be used to purchase bombers. The Literature and Art sections devote their usual meeting days to Red Cross activities.

"Aloha Party" Speeds One Governor Homeward While Another Settles Down for Month's Stay

TWO "TERRITORIAL" Governors, in town to make reports to headquarters, are taking over their share of the current Capital spotlight.

After having been here for some time, the Governor of Hawaii and Mrs. Ingram M. Stainback will soon be starting homeward. Arriving only a few days ago with plans to stay a month are the Governor of Alaska and Mrs. Ernest Gruening, the latter of whom has been in the United States since August.

Governor and Mrs. Stainback have been entertained at a continuous series of parties ever since they came here last month and settled down at the Mayflower Hotel. So-o-o, yesterday afternoon they gathered in a number of their friends for an "Aloha party," all by way of announcing that their own goodby to the Capital was in the offing.

Governor and Mrs. Greuning, who formerly lived in Washington and have a host of friends here, will be wined and dined every available minute during their stay. They are at the Fairfax.

Although both Governor Gruening and his wife got to the Nation's Capital about the same time, they came from different points . . . and hadn't seen each other since that early August day when Mrs. Gruening took off by plane from Juneau. She came by Seattle and then dropped down to the Southwest to visit her sons, Huntington F. Gruening of the Air Corps, who will receive his wings December 7 in Yuma, Ariz., and Peter Gruening, also in the Air Corps and now stationed at Lubbock, Tex. Then she came on East and stopped off in New York August 15 to christen the cruiser Alaska in New York. Since then she has been visiting her mother in Medford, Mass., and she came to Washington last week directly from there. About the same time, Governor Gruening arrived from Alaska.

MRS. ERNEST GRUENING

THE TWO, incidentally, received some very special attention on Saturday afternoon when they were presented with pink chrysanthemum leis by pretty Beverly Farrington, daughter of the Delegate from Hawaii and Mrs. Joseph Farrington. The gesture of tribute from one United States Territory to another climaxed an impromptu program of Hawaiian numbers that accented the Saturday afternoon party given by the Farringtons.

If local hula teachers aren't already besieged by prospective pupils they soon will be. They will, that is, if many Washington women have a chance to see Beverly swing into that Pacific Paradise rhythm as gracefully as she did at this particular fete. Stepping out in a white cellophane costume, with red leis on ankle and wrist, she went into a song and dance that was a prelude for the presentation to the Alaska Governor and his wife. Incidentally, that gesture of tribute climaxed the informal program.

Attractively attired in holokus, those picturesque Hawaiian dresses fashioned of bright prints and styled with trains, were three guests who had lived in the islands—Mrs. Blake Clark, who is one of the prettiest young women around Washington; Mrs. Herman Nichols, who plays the ukelele as if that were her life's work, and Mrs. Benjamin W. Cassaday, who lived in Hawaii for a number of years when her husband was stationed there and who yearns for the time when both can return.

MRS. CLARK does a nifty hula . . . and it was just after she finished one number that she told how the type of frock she was wearing happened to be called a holoku. Seems that back in the days when the missionaries began making their influence felt in Hawaii, their first task was to get the natives to wear clothes. But the Hawaii women, having an eye for beauty, did not take to the sack-like garments originally designed for them. They wanted something more becoming; they consulted Godey's Lady's Book for ideas . . . and decided on a streamlined princess dress with a train.

They made their own frocks, of course, and stitched them on the first sewing machines ever in the islands. And that's where the name holoku came in. They called the machine the "run-stop" or "holoku" and finally the dress itself took over that name.

Adding an especially lively touch of interest to the Farringtons' party was the superb piano playing of Margaret Scott Penn (Mrs. John Alfred White), who is winning wide acclaim for her songs. The latest, by the way, is a lilting Yuletide number, written for a friend's son who is overseas. By the time the composer had played it a couple of times Saturday afternoon, dozens of guests had crowded around the piano to sing the refrain—"So while it's Christmas over here . . . say a prayer for the boys over there."

Purely Personal

Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, USMC, and Mrs. Denig arrived in New York Sunday to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lauren D. Lymans at the Park Lane Hotel. Mr. Lymans is vice president of United Aircraft.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilbur Jenkins will entertain at tea on Sunday, November 28, in celebration of their wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Francis S. Dunigan is spending some time at Palm Springs, Calif., following the marriage of her daughter, Margaret, to Ensign John L. Scully, jr., which took place at Roosevelt Base, Long Beach, Calif.

Miss Esther Waite of Berkeley, Calif., author and illustrator of children's books, is at the Lee Sheraton Hotel for a week's stay. Miss Waite, an alumna of Mills College in Oakland, Calif., is connected with the college office of student recommendation and is being entertained by Mills alumnae and friends of the college, including Mrs. Stephen Brunauer, Miss Carolyn Rowcliffe, daughter of Admiral Gilbert Rowcliffe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Aaron Newton are making their home in Washington, where Mr. Newton, pharmacist mate third class, USNR, is stationed. Mrs. Newton is the former Miss Mary Stella Davis, daughter of Mrs. J. N. Davis of Anderson, S. C. They were married recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Kaufman have left for Santa Monica, Calif., for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bashwitz. They will stop at the Mirimar Hotel.

Mrs. John G. Ladd, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Ladd, now overseas, spent the week in Pennsylvania with her mother, Mrs. James Irvin Steele, who returned with her to Washington where she will spend the winter.

Latin-American Institute Holds Open House Tea

Senora de Castro, wife of the Ambassador of El Salvador, was among those at the open house Sunday afternoon given by the Latin-American Institute, the third in a series of fetes for students and their friends.

Others there during the course of the afternoon were Capt. Jesus M. Gomez-Arelano, Assistant Military Attache of the Venezuelan Embassy; Francisco Alvarez Chacin, Assistant Commercial Attache of the Venezuelan Embassy; Senorita Consuelo Batista, Attache of the Cuban Embassy; Mrs. David Castro, Dr. Vladimir Gsovski of the Library of Congress, Mrs. Walter Hammond and her daughter, Miss Geraldine Hammond, of New York who have just taken an apartment at Dorchester House; Mrs. Karl B. Lamb, Maj. Alleyne Freeman.

Also Capt. Bert Alvera, Maj. D. Greystoke-Allen and Maj. Clifford Stead of the British Army, Miss Emily French Myers, Mannix Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Dimen, Dr. and Mrs. John B. Crane, Miss Anita Gonzales, Rudolfo Gonzales, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Wolf and the Misses Nina and Irena Lawes.

Adm. Merino Honored at Farewell Fete

Vice Admiral Vicente Merino, head of the Chilean Naval Mission, and Senora de Merino were guests at an informal dinner given last evening by the Military Attache of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Lopez-Larrain. This was another in a series of farewell fetes for Admiral Merino, who will leave the end of the month by plane to return to Chile. Senora de Merino and her two children, Maria Teresa and Alfredo, will leave by train tomorrow for the West Coast and will take a boat for home.

The only other guests at the dinner last night were the Naval Attache of the Chilean Embassy, Capt. Immanuel Holger, and Senora de Holger, who had entertained for Admiral and Senora de Merino Saturday evening.

This evening Gen. Oscar Fuentes, head of the Chilean Military Mission, and Senora de Fuentes will give a dinner for Admiral and Senora de Merino.

Blanche Jowers Is Married to Albert Claggett

Miss Blanche Mae Jowers was married to Albert M. Claggett, radioman, third class, USN, on Saturday evening with the Rev. C. C. Roberts officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beige suit with brown accessories and a shoulder bouquet of white roses. Miss Helene Hooper and Earl Watkins, USN, were attendants. An informal reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Jowers.

After a wedding trip to Norfolk, where the bridegroom is stationed, the bride will return to the home of her parents here. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Claggett of Washington.

Thanksgiving Dance Planned by WAVES

A Thanksgiving dance for officers of the Women's Reserve of the U. S. Naval Reserve, to be held Thursday night, November 25, at the Statler Hotel, has been announced by the WAVE Officers dance committee. Proceeds will be turned over to the Navy Relief Society. Music will be played by the United States Navy Band Dance Orchestra.

Members of the dance committee are Ensign Evelyn Faller, chairman; Lieut. Eleanor J. Durrett, Lieuts. (jg) Sally Russell, Sara Rau, Anne Lauman and Ruth Hawkins, Ensigns Jane Barton, Mary McDonald, Jeannette Stanton, Marion Stewart, Ida P. Teatter and Helen Hood.

Sanhedrin Club Members Feted

Members of Sanhedrin, a group formed by residents of the Wardman Park Hotel, were entertained recently at a buffet supper given by Matthew B. Claussen and James E. Duke.

Among the guests were former Senator Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona, Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, Judge William W. Arnold and Claude R. Porter, Interstate Commerce Commissioner.

Also present were Representatives A. L. Bulwinkle and W. O. Burgin of North Carolina, Karl M. LeCompte of Iowa, Eugene Cox of Georgia, Earl W. Michener of Michigan, Frank Fellows of Maine and William M. Whittington of Mississippi.

'Uncle Harry' Holds Audience In Grip of the Perfect Crime

Eva Le Gallienne and Joseph Schildkraut Are Costars of Broadway Hit, at National For an Engagement of Two Tense Weeks

By Nelson B. Bell

"UNCLE HARRY." Clifford Hayman, in association with Lennie Hatten, presents the six-scene play by Thomas Job, costarring Eva Le Gallienne and Joseph Schildkraut. Staged by Lem Ward; settings by Howard Bay. At the National Theater.

In "Uncle Harry," Thomas Job has fashioned a drama of wide dimensions and sufficient depth to plumb the distorted lives of a group of arresting characters who reveal many fearful and fascinating facets of human nature.

Not only has he provided a pattern for "the perfect crime" as the basis of his murder story, but with disarming deftness has relieved the tautness of that major theme with a warm touch of romance to balance its tragedy and a quiet flow of humor to relax the tension of increasingly stark developments. From this unique blending of diverse dramatic elements he has drawn a final conclusion that the guilty, set free, suffer more intensely than the innocent who are hanged.

In mood and manner the play, which last night opened a fortnight's engagement in the National Theater to the enthusiastic acclaim of a large audience, is not quite so grim as "Ladies in Retirement" and far less comic in plan and purpose than "Arsenic and Old Lace," of both of which it is remotely suggestive.

Arranged in six closely knit scenes that are divided into three acts only by the arbitrary program announcement of brief intermissions following the second and fourth, "Uncle Harry" employs the familiar device of the cinema's "flashback" method of narration, first utilized in the modern theater, if memory serves, in Elmer Rice's "On Trial" three decades ago.

Murder Is the Topic

In the introductory scene a current murder is being discussed in the tavern, to which the later action twice reverts. A loquacious patron is enlarging upon the intricacies of successful crime when he is interrupted by a stranger who wishes to set him right by recalling the disturbing circumstances of the Quincy case in which the innocent accused went to the gallows and the real murderer was permitted to remain at large, unmolested and his confession unbelieved. The ensuing periods of the play pick up the threads of "Uncle Harry's" story of the florid events that transpired in the home he shared with two maiden sisters, whose dominance, jealousy and incessant bickering had wrecked his one great love and hatched the solution that had proved a more exquisite torture than the bitter problem it was designed to resolve.

The tenseness and power of the play repose as firmly in the penetrating analysis and revelation of character as in the engrossing shaping of events that lead inexorably to a gripping final curtain that descends upon the most compelling scene of the six.

Since "Uncle Harry" is a panorama of character studies, as well as incidents and situations that weave themselves into a perfect mosaic, its effectiveness depends in no small measure upon the manner of its playing. In that particular Producer Clifford Hayman has given Playwright Thomas Job the benefit of impeccable casting.

Is Brilliantly Played

As portrayed by Joseph Schildkraut, the title role, upon which all the others pivot, is a skillful composite of tenderness, rage and sly roguery that disguises itself as vacillation, meekness, resignation, resentment and a monumental selfishness, by turns. With unerring cunning, he plans and executes the scheme to rid himself of both his sisters and marry the childhood sweetheart, since betrothed to a noisy oaf, whose rivalry "Uncle Harry" still holds lightly. To this masquerade Mr. Schildkraut brings the fruits of a long and varied experience that lend it grace, fluency and even a measure of sympathy.

Eva Le Gallienne's portrayal of the more engaging of the sisters is similarly a skillful depiction of complex qualities that are limned in delicate and telling strokes that sharpen both the play's interest and its gentler appeal. Marion Evensen's Hester, the elder sister and instigator of most of the household strife, is played with an acrid efficiency that gives the central movement of the plot ample motivation.

In lesser roles the acting standard is held high by Marguerite Lewis, as Lucy, the object of Harry's futile adoration; Fiona O'Shiel, a dizzy, but discerning, barmaid; Leona Roberts, the ancient and amusing family retainer; Paul Byron, A. P. Kaye, Ralph Theadore, William Bush and Colville Dunn.

The late Lem Ward's direction is nicely paced to the divergent requirements of the six scenes, and Howard Bay's settings and Peggy Clark's costuming are additional factors in compiling the rare quality of excellence that characterizes as cleverly devised a "thriller" as any season is apt to bring to the boards.

Gossip From Gotham

New York, Nov. 15.

At the Warner Bros. studio, some of the minor executives were watching Bette Davis making her new picture. An official expressed dissatisfaction with one scene. "Bette isn't herself," he lamentmented. "She just isn't acting right today. Someone ought to tell her." He noticed an assistant director "Hey, you!" the official called him, "want to do something for the company? Go over to Bette Davis and tell her she isn't acting well." . . . "I should tell Bette Davis she's not a good movie actress?" said the assistant director. "She'll hit me over the head with one of her Oscars."

At the Hollywood Canteen, a few days ago, the entertainers were Bob Hope, Martha Raye, Jack Benny, Joe E. Brown, Kay Francis and Adolphe Menjou. "Tell 'em that I'm over 38, and that I received my discharge papers today." . . . Hope introduced him that way. Silvers took the platform, pointed to the six film stars—all of whom have entertained overseas — and explained: "Frankly, boys, I applied for my Army discharge so that I can get overseas."

HEDDA HOPPER

Ida Lupino Is Lucky!

IDA LUPINO

It was through Colman and "The Light That Failed" that she got her chance to prove she was a dramatic actress. Remember? . . . Ida's husband, Louis Hayward, is down with malaria in the South Pacific and doesn't want to come back home. He's afraid he'll be stuck behind a desk for the duration. . . . Zorina is a study in contrasts. A year ago I wached her do a ballet with elephants in Madison Square Garden. Yesterday she was improvising a jitterbug routine to the tune of "Pistol Packing Mama." . . . Patricia Mace, late of "Cobra Woman," wrote from Mexico City that she would arrive in New York December 16 to meet and marry Capt. Jack Warner, jr. . . . It must mean something. Pat Stillman's buying a trousseau. But I don't believe Randolph Scott's divorced. . . . Jack Chertok wants Bob Alda, who's just finished "George Gershwin," for a remak of "Patent Leather Kid." They hope the picture will cement Italian-American relations.

Success in Hollywood

It could happen only here. Lieut. Arthur Gregor, honorably discharged from our Army, came to tell me that he'll direct a new version of "Ramona" at Republic, which Walter C. Colmes is producing. Colmes is looking for an unknown girl. The budget is already half a million. Then Gregor proceeded to tell me all about Mr. Colmes. When he'd finished I said, "Yes, I know. He was one of my leg men six months ago. Then he worked for Henry Rogers in publicity. Henry Rogers now does his publicity. But he's a fine fellow. Good luck to all of you."

Could Be

If Greta Garbo makes "Lena Storme" at RKO, they don't know a thing about it. It could be that her friend, Salka Viertel, is trying to sell them a bill of goods, which includes her services as a writer. She's done it before. In fact, she's been doing it ever since a friend of mine did most of the work on "Queen Christina," for which Salka got big money, credit, and a Metro contract. . . . You'd die at Bill Bendix putting on the dog and getting prettied up for his M. C. job in "Greenwich Village." Quite a change from "Lifeboat," where, as he said, he was his repulsive self. . . . Irene Dunn, back from Mexico City sooner than she anticipated, says it's the most hospitable city in the world and that the war seems very far away there. She'll do a new ending for "A Guy Named Joe." Instead of finding happiness at the end, she'll join the ghost of Spencer Tracy in the great beyond.

Santa rides again—up and down Hollywood blvd. Which is all right, if they keep it strictly for the kiddies.

New Payroll Bond Buying Plan Outlined

Am I doing all that I can?

This simple question was suggested yesterday as the slogan of the new Payroll Savings Division of the District War Finance Committee by its chairman, Robert C. McCann, and will be put squarely before every wage earner in Washington within the next few months . . . "the bloodiest phase of the war."

In the face of the mounting number of returning casualties—and of those who will not return . . . representatives of the Payroll Savings Division will simply ask: "Are you doing all you can?"

'Not a Campaign'

At a "kickoff" luncheon of the new division, McCann, who is vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., declared that "their effort will not be a campaign—but rather a sustained and going-concern duration activity. Nor will it be a pressure activity."

"Full employe understanding," McCann explained, "will sell bonds that will stay sold."

He asserted that ,at present, only 54 per cent of all employes in the larger Washington establishments are allotting 6.3 per cent of their wages to the payroll savings purchase of bonds. This amounts to 3.4 per cent of total gross payrolls, or $850,000 a month.

Effect of 10 Per Cent Allotment

"If 90 per cent of all employes were purchasing to the extent of 10 per cent of gross payrolls," he said, in outlining the aim of the division, "the monthly allotment would be over 1½ million dollars greater than the present $850,000—or something approaching 2½ million dollars."

McCann announced the names of six group chairmen of the new division as follows: Charles T. Penn, construction; Bruce Baird, president, National Savings & Trust Co., banking and finance; Albert W. Atwood, president of the Rotary Club, institutional; James W. S. Hardey, publicity; Marcy L. Sperry, president, Washington Gas Light Co., utilities; and Martin T. Wiegand, business.

WORKERS! WHO SUFFER

'FACTORY' ITCH SKIN RASHES

Zemo promptly relieves torture!

First applications of wonderful soothing, medicated liquid Zemo—a Doctor's formula—promptly relieve intense itch and burning of simple skin rashes, eczema and similar skin and scalp irritations due to external cause. Zemo also aids healing. Backed by 35 years' success! Clean, stainless, invisible Zemo won't show on skin. 3 different sizes. → ZEMO

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exquisitely prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy . . . it helps keep the skin soft and pliable . . . thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin . . . for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Mother's Friend

Amazing Way for "RUN-DOWN" people to get NEW VITALITY..PEP!

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

THESE two important steps may help you to overcome the discomforts or embarrassment of sour stomach, jerky nerves, loss of appetite, underweight, digestive complaints, weakness, poor complexion!

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

So with ample stomach digestive juices PLUS RICH, RED BLOOD you should enjoy that sense of well being which denotes physical fitness . . . mental alertness!

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need as it is especially designed to promote the flow of VITAL DIGESTIVE JUICES in the stomach and to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient.

Build Sturdy Health and Help America Win

Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. S.S.S. Co.

You must hear better after making this simple test or you get your money back at once. Ask about Ourine Ear Drops today. Your chain or independent drug store has or can get Ourine for you.

Give Your Lazy Liver This Gentle "Nudge"

Follow Noted Ohio Doctor's Advice To Relieve CONSTIPATION!

If liver bile doesn't flow every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So stir up your liver bile flow and see how much better you should feel! Just try Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. Edwards for his patients with constipation and sluggish liver bile.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful to stimulate bile flow and also assure gentle yet thorough bowel movements. Test their goodness TONIGHT! Follow label directions. 15¢, 30¢, 60¢. All drugstores.

then HEADACHE

WHEN the cares, worries and anxieties of the day bring on a jittery, nervous headache, you will find Capudine a wonderful help. Capudine contains ingredients which are celebrated all over the world for their effectiveness in relieving this type of headache. Capudine not only quickly relieves the headache but also gently soothes the nerves that have been upset by the pain. Because Capudine is liquid it saves time—there's no waiting for it to dissolve either before or after taking. Use only as directed. Capudine. 10c, 30c, 60c.

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

FASTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. FASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CREOMULSION for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

Asthma Mucus Loosened First Day

For Thousands of Sufferers

Choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma ruin your sleep and rob your blood of vitally important oxygen because you can't get air in and out of your lungs properly. But now it is no longer necessary to suffer from these terrible attacks without the benefit you may receive from a physician's prescription called Mendaco. Within a very short time after the first dose, Mendaco ingredients start circulating thru the blood, thus reaching the smallest as well as the largest Bronchial tubes where they usually quickly help liquefy, loosen and remove thick, strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. In fact, Mendaco has proved so successful in helping thousands of sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma that it is sold under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. So get Mendaco from your druggist today for only 60c.

I THINK SO. WE'RE COMIN' DOWN.
WE'RE GOING TO STOP OVER IN CAIRO.
HEY—THAT'S SOME BOIG AN WE GOT A LOTTA DOUGH COMIN'. WE'LL RAISE HECK.

JANE ARDEN — Jane's Words Rankle — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

BITTER BECAUSE OF HIS EXPERIENCE WITH FLORA PHILANDER STUN ORDERED JANE OUT WHEN SHE ASKED HIM TO HELP A POOR WIDOW—
YES—MILLIONS OF DOLLARS AND AN EMPTY HEART. I TRIED TO SNAP YOU OUT OF IT, BUT IT'S NO USE—
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, I NEED HELP MORE THAN SHE DOES? I'VE GOT MILLIONS—
THIS TIME I WON'T COME BACK—GOODBYE!
THE LITTLE WHIPPER SNAPPER—LECTURING ME!
I'VE LEARNED MY LESSON—I'M NO SUCKER—
I TRIED PLAYING SANTA CLAUS AND IT DIDN'T WORK—BUT—

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

YOU CAN'T JUST TAKE ME OFF A TRAIN LIKE THIS! IT—IT'S ILLEGAL!
ILLEGAL? HOW ABOUT YOUR IMPERSONATION OF LOIS LANE? AND THE FACT THAT YOU'RE A SPY?
SOMEHOW I DON'T MIND BEING CAPTURED BY YOU—YOU'RE SO DYNAMIC, SO STRONG, SO MASTERFUL—SORRY, MISS DRESSER, BUT YOU'RE OFF YOUR TROLLEY, YOU SEE—
—YOU LOOK TOO MUCH LIKE LOIS, AND THERE CAN NEVER BE MORE THAN ONE LOIS FOR ME...
THEN WH-WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO WITH ME?
I'M GOING TO TURN YOU OVER TO MISS LANE!
NO, NO! NOT THAT—PLEASE! TURN ME OVER TO THE FBI—ANYTHING BUT DON'T GIVE ME TO HER!!!

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Low-Life on a High Frequency — By Milton Caniff

SO! OUR IMITATION FRENCH CAPTAIN DOES WELL AT ESPIONAGE! WE WILL TRANSMIT THIS INFORMATION AT ONCE!
WHEN I SAW THE CAPTAIN' LEAN AGAINST THE WALL AT THE APPOINTED PLACE, I LEFT MY WORK ON THE AIR FIELD...
...AS I PASSED, THE 'CAPTAIN' DROPPED THE PELLET INTO MY BASKET, AS AGREED! THE YANKEES SUSPECT NOTHING!...
NOR DO THE STUPID YANKEES SUSPECT THE PRESENCE OF THIS TRANSMITTER!
DO THEY NOT HEAR THE STRONG IMPULSE OF THE TRANSMISSION FROM SUCH A NEARBY POINT?
OF COURSE, BUT THEY DO NOT EVEN UNDERSTAND JAPANESE—MUCH LESS OUR CODE!
THEY THINK IT IS A JAPANESE AIRCRAFT IN THE AREA!. BUT I MUST HASTEN...THE COMMANDER WILL WISH TO WELCOME A CHINA NATIONAL AVIATION TRANSPORT CARRYING IMPORTANT CHINESE FINANCE EXPERTS...
